La. Legislative Session May Be Most Explosive

BATON ROUGE, May 10 (UP) — At high noon Monday Speaker of the House Robert Angelle and Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar, president of the senate, will rap into being what could turn into the most elaborate legislative session in the history of Louisiana lawmaking.

All the elements for a volatile session are present—money, segregation, right to work, repeal of the two-thirds law necessary to pass new or higher taxes; repeal of the so-called "Little Hatch Act" for civil service workers, not to mention the pending battle between the Sen. Rex. McCullough committee and LSU over control of higher education in Louisiana.

However, without a doubt the chief issue will be money — and the taxes to supply funds. The largest chunk presently needed is revenue to maintain the salaries of some 13,000 public school teachers.

Early this week the governor's budget committee wound up two months of work and reported it lopped $91 million off of the state agency budget requests cutting back to $424 million, about $30 million below current spending. The budget was set on the basis of figures supplied by the state's chief fiscal officer Harvey Rester, on anticipated income.

Budget Details Unreleased

Details of the budget committee's recommendations for the various agencies have not been released. And it appears the detailed statement will not be made until the legislature is underway.

Department heads have been button-holing newsmen in the capitol for the past several days asking if they have any information on what their "share" of the overall reduction will be. Reporters have little information that has not been printed.

A reliable source told United Press, however, that the actual cut is not so bad as the administration would have it appear. Instead of the $30 million figure released by Sen. B. B. "Sixty" Rayburn, chairman of the budget committee, the figure should be nearer $8 million because "more than $21 million is pay for teachers that came out of surplus last year."

Hands Off By Governor

Gov. Earl Long shrugs his shoulders and acts if the word "taxes" is nasty.

"I am not going to have any tax bills," he says. "We have shown them what the need is, now let the Legislature sweat it out."

However, Long leaves little doubt that he will welcome the opportunity to fix his signature on any bill that will help bolster the state coffers. After weeks of dodging the issue, he told his news conference Tuesday that he "would welcome the opportunity"

Kim Learns Sweetheart Has 6 Kids

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Wide-eyed Kim Novak told of a budding romance with the gift - giving son of Dominican strong man Rafael Trujillo Saturday: then learned the young man has a wife and six children.

"I am surprised," she admitted, "but I am sure the marriage is over. Why else would a man date me in public? I've been out socially with his sister and I've talked to his family on the telephone. No man in his right mind would do such things if he had a wife and six children."

The whole thing started when a Hollywood car dealer reported Rafael Trujillo Jr., 29, had shelled out $28,300 for fancy foreign cars for Miss Novak, Zsa Zsa Gabor and himself. The big-spending Dominican lieutenant general has been a figure in Hollywood cafe society while on leave from the U. S. Comman and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

In New York, Miss. Gabor cheerily confirmed that Trujillo had given her a car as a Christmas gift. The talkative Hungarian said: "He's a wonderful friend and I'm very, very fond of him."

Crest Of Red River Past 1 Trouble Spot

SHREVEPORT La. (AP) — The Red River flood crest rolled past Grand Ecore, another trouble spot Saturday and was expected to keep the river at 41½ to 42 feet for another 36 hours.

Flood stage at Grand Ecore, about half way between here and Alexandria, is 33 feet.

A weather bureau bulletin said rains over the basin were not expected to affect the river involved except for slowing down the falls in places.

A slight rise, the bureau said, was possible at Horatio, on the Little River, which has received considerable rain.

The crest was expected to reach Alexandria Monday. The river is expected to remain at about 41 feet for some 48 hours before beginning an appreciable fall.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers said levees are in good shape in the Alexandria area and no trouble is expected.

The Red crest reached Coushatta after noon Friday. The river hung at 38½ feet last night and showed a one-tenth foot fall saturday morning.

The Red above Shreveport and the Sulphur and Cypress are expected to fall.

Horseback Solon Readies Arrival

BATON ROUE (AP)—Rep. Jack Crane and his eight saddle pals camped Saturday night on the outskirts of Baton Rouge, preparing for a grand arrival at the state capitol Sunday afternoon.

Averaging more than 35 miles a day, the 59-year-old Concordia Parish legislator and his companions made the 120-mile journey from Ferriday in three days.

The Louisiana Legislature opens a 60-day session Monday.

West May Give Red Economy Helping Hand

Officials Report Red Boss Can Get Much Machinery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will be able to buy much machinery in the West to boost Russian consumer goods output, if he really wants it, diplomatic officials said Saturday.

But if he is seeking to break down Western barriers against the sale of machines of military importance, he is in for a fight.

Khrushchev very likely is quite serious about increasing the supply of consumer goods, these authorities said. Yet the assumption here is that this is only one of his objectives and that a new Soviet offensive whole Western trade ern trade control system now must be expected.

This threatens to raise an issue which almost invariably causes some dissension among the Western allies. Britain particularly is anxious for maximum trade opportunities with the Soviet Union, and the United States is trying to maintain the barriers on East-West commerce at the highest possible levels of security.

Khrushchev, in the light of this history, may use whatever orders he intends to place in the consumer goods field as instruments or dividing the West.

His prospects for progress would be better, however, in the view of State Department officials, if his policies on two other issues — a summit conference and relations with Yugoslavia—were changed.

Against Tax Cut To Boost U.S. Economy

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks said Saturday his business-advisers are opposed about 3-1 to tax reduction as a quick antidote to the recession.

Weeks also said a majority of the 100 major corporation heads serving on his Business Advisory Council favors the administration program for a five year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act. He predicted enactment of a satisfactory extension law despite strong opposition which has developed in Congress.

The commerce secretary said he made a personal, informal sampling of the BAC members conferring with him here. He did so after sharp disagreement on the tax issue developed in Friday's closed session of the council.

The clash was touched off by the report of a special anti-recession committee, set up at Weeks' request. It recommended against any general tax cut now but said an across-the-board income tax reduction might be appropriate later if the business slump worsens.

Harlow Curtice, president of General Motors Corp., was understood to have been among those who spoke in favor of tax reduction to stimulate purchasing power. Some representatives of retailing and other industries reportedly agreed with him. Weeks then decided to button-hole BAC members to learn the extent of the split on the ax issue.

ON MOTHER'S DAY

'Mother' Of 54 To Have A Happy Day

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Herman Bock may not hear from all 54 of her children Sunday, but the 9 at home are planning something special for Mothers Day.

Mrs. Bock is one of 73 women in Anne Arundel County with whom motherhood is a wholesale role. She is a foster mother for the County Welfare Department.

The county pays Mrs. Bock, but welfare officials feel no pay is adequate for the warmth with which such women take on their jobs.

Most Hurt, Lonely

Children come to them as discards from upset homes. They come not singly, but by the dozens. Most are hurt and lonely, and some are real problems.

Many of the foster mothers have children of their own or adopt some of the children for whom they provided temporary homes. Mrs. Bock has a daughter of her own and has adopted two others.

One of the county's most experienced foster mothers, she took in her first child two weeks after she was married. A slight, gentle woman, she has made a specialty of caring for "bad boys" sent to her by the department.

'I'll Try'

"I always say I'll try," she said. "Ninety-nine per cent of the children respond to kindness."

In addition to her own daughter, 19, Mrs. Bock has cared for 28 children from the welfare agency and 25 from nonagency families in her home on a 65-acre farm near Annapolis.

Her husband, a labor foreman with a gas and electric company, is an enthusiastic foster father. Mrs. Bock, a foster child herself at 6, would like to get a bigger house so she could take in more children.

She has pretended not to hear a lot of whispering at the house this week, but Sunday promises to be one of those days that have a special meaning and make her job so rewarding.

Sandbagging Is Started Along Levee At Monroe

Bill Banning Secret Solon Vote Reported

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Three Louisiana lawmakers said Saturday they will sponsor a bill to banish secret voting of some House and Senate committees.

Reps. A. T. Sanders Jr. and Wayne Gaudin of East Baton Rouge and Elmer Bernard of West Baton Rouge plan the war against legislative secrecy.

The Legislature opens Monday, and in this state it is a 60-day kaleidoscope of scores of committee sessions—the heart of the legislative process.

Many vote openly. The great majority hold open hearings. Some, on touchy issues, prefer closed session voting.

One of the major committees voting in secret is the House Appropriations Committee, which gets first crack at all money bills. The Appropriations Committee is the kingpin around which all other committees revolve. The administration in power always controls it.

Sanders, Guadin and Bernard thought of trying their proposal in the 1957 fiscal session, but abandoned it until the regular Legislature in 1958.

Their primary target is secret voting, not the closed meetings feel are necessary.

Louisiana laws tend toward open public view. The state has a public record act, permitting citizens to examine public documents at will unless exempt by law.

A few years ago, the Legislature passed a law requiring all public agencies to conduct voting in public—and that law is effective.

Public agencies may stay in secret session for hours, but the final voting must be done in public. The Legislature, however, remains exempt from this provision.

"If you don't have the nerve to vote in the open, you don't belong in the Legislature," big, muscular Sanders said. "I don't believe in hiding behind doors to vote."

Bernard agreed, saying "legislators should have the backbone to let their people know how they vote." Gaudin took a similar view.

Auto In D'Loutre Bayou With Two Persons Trapped

A man and woman were trapped and drowned last night in a car which went off Highway 2 near Marion and submerged in the flood-swollen waters of Bayou d'Loutre, next to d'Loutre bridge.

Union Parish Sheriff Jurd Stewart of Farmerville rushed to the scene at 11 p.m., and said he tor boat onto the bayou to locate planned to take his outboard mothe car and bring out the bodies.

Stewart said a man and woman were known to be in the vehicle but did not elaborate on details.

He also stated that water has not covered the highway, but had risen up on either side of the road.

The site of the reported tragedy is nine miles northeast of Farmerville.

State Police from Troop F in Monroe said the car was completely submerged. The American Legion Rescue Truck was dispatched to the scene at 10:25 p.m.

N.O. Taxi Drivers Defy Court Order

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Other taxicab drivers Saturday defied a court order that only drivers for Yellow Cab Co. be permitted to solicit business at Moisant International Airport.

The city council May 1 granted an exclusive franchise to Yellow Cab. The action was taken after Edward J. Rapier, chairman of the city Aviation Board, reported a state of "warfare" exists between cab drivers at the airport. Rapier said air passengers had been insulted, abused and injured in the struggle for their cab transportation.

Judge Walter Hamlin of Civil District Court Saturday issued a restraining order against drivers other than Yellow Cab, but the competitors of the franchise company continued to solicit business.

TRIPOLI NEAR SIEGE

Mobs Sack U. S. Library Abroad

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UP)—Anti-government mobs sacked the U.S. Information Service library Saturday and clashed in violent riots with police and soldiers.

Saturday night this second largest city of Lebanon was in a state of virtual siege.

There were no official estimates of dead or wounded, and there was no immediate indication that any Americans were hurt.

But reliable sources said there were at least 15 dead and more than 125 wounded, some seriously.

One report said the USIS building was set afire. Another said its books were burned in the street.

But the violence raged widely until army units using tanks and trucks were able to drive the rioting mobs off the streets.

Call For Strike

The clash was the second in 24 hours in Tripoli, a seaport 40 miles northeast of Beirut. The demonstrations followed the assassination Thursday of left-wing editor Nassib El Metni, whose newspaper was a vigorous foe of President Camille Chamoun and Premier Sami El Sol'h.

Opposition leaders called for a general strike and the closing of all businesses Friday as a sign of mourning and anger. The strike all but failed in Beirut, but was 75 to 90 per cent effective in Tripoli. There was a clash Friday in Tripoli in which eight persons were injured.

Angry crowds re - formed in Tripoli Saturday morning, shouting "Down with Chamoun" and "Down with his prime minister." They ignored pleas by the police to disperse, and their numbers grew.

Police tried to break up the crowds with a club - swinging charge when the demonstrators added rock-throwing to their oral insults. The police were driven back, and the rioters started firing at them.

They swept on to attack the USIS library, where damage was not clear. One report said the building itself was set afire. But another said the crowds rushed the building, looted books from its shelves and threw them into a street bonfire.

At least three shops also were looted.

Then one section of the mob marched on the government office building in Tripoli and pelted another group of policemen with stones when they tried to disperse the rioters.

A nearby force of soldiers was called in when the demonstrators again started using firearms. The troops first fired over the heads of the rioters but when their fire was returned, the soldiers began shooting into the ground in front of the crowd.

This shooting apparently caused most of the casualties, with soldiers and civilians included among the victims.

Overcast, Mild Seen For Today

A mild Sunday with partly overcast skies was predicted for the Monroe area, with tomorrow expected to be warmer with light rain.

Yesterday's temperature range was almost identical to Friday's, with an 83-65 reading recorded. Friday's high and low were 83-63.

Arkansas is expected to have partly cloudy skies today and tomorrow with warm temperatures.

Expect Crest At 49 Feet Here May 18

By GEORGE FOX
Staff Writer

Sandbags were going up along a seven block stretch of South Grand yesterday after the weather bureau issued predictions of further rain along the Ouachita River and its Arkansas watersheds.

A steady rise of approximately .5 of a foot each day during the past week coupled with the possibility of further rain prompted the action.

Roy Snider, of Delhi, president of the levee commissioners for the Tensas Basin Levee District stated, "We intend to do everything in our power to protect the city of Monroe, or any other threatened area in our district, from any possible flood damage. The river has reached a point where we can no longer gamble on its rise and fall."

The river has risen 4.5 feet during the past several days, and a high of 49 feet is predicted in the Monroe area by May 18.

Saturday morning reading at Monroe was 45.53 feet, a .53 foot rise over the previous day's level.

A. W. Newkirk, resident engineer for the U. S. Corps of Engineers, pointed out that a heavy 3 to 6 inch rain around El Dorado, Ark. and the upper watershed of the Ouachita River could easily swell the river to 51 or 52 feet.

'Stop Log Barriers'

Construction of "stop log barriers" in the breaks of the levee wall, and the sandbagging of an open stretch extending in front of Ouachita Parish High School is expected to be completed sometime tomorrow.

Barriers for the several levee breaks on the south side of West Monroe will also be finished tomorrow.

The "stop log barriers" are wooden partitions extending between open sections of the levee wall. They are approximately five feet high, depending upon the elevation of the ground at that particular point, and are so constructed as to allow the pouring of cement to form a permanent barrier in the event of severe flooding.

The barriers, as well as the sandbags which are being placed in the one open section, are expected to handle a maximum flood level of 51 feet, two feet above the predicted crest.

Snider stated, "We are trying

Bastrop Man Is Drowned In Black Bayou

A Bastrop man, fishing on Black Bayou with his nephew yesterday, suffered a heart attack, fell from his boat and drowned, according to Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John Burton.

The victim was identified as Floyd Leslie Landers, 48 of 911 Roberts St., Bastrop.

After a preliminary investigation, Burton said Mr. Landers plunged forward when stricken by the attack, and capsized the boat, also occupied by Carl Allen Landers, nephew of the victim.

Mr. Landers' nephew told the coroner that his uncle had a heart ailment for several years.

Monroe firemen and members of the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department recovered the body from six feet of water at 10:10 yesterday morning. The spot was less than a mile from Brewster's boat dock.

Mr. Landers was a welder for the International Paper Co. and was a Mason.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Cherry Ridge Baptist Church with the Rev. W. R. Rogers, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Christ's Church Cemetery in Bastrop by Blackwell-Golden Funeral Home.

Leukemia Kills Nine-Year-Old Skelton Child

Died At 8:30 P.M.

A UCLA Medical Center spokesman said the fragile, red-haired boy, stricken with the dread disease two years ago, died at 3:30 p.m. (PDT).

The comedian had taken the boy to Europe last summer in a vain attempt to obtain treatment that might save his life.

Richard had been admitted to the UCLA Medical Center from time to time in the past several months.

AS SESSION NEARS

Political Rumblings Heard Around Area

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

The hoopla of Louisiana politics has a different effect on different politicians and people in general.

Take for instance the issues involved. On face value, one wouldn't think a gas gathering tax could create a rumble from one end of the state to the other.

But when an army of school teachers gets behind that rumble, clamoring for a pay raise, it's an entirely different story, one which will make some but break others, politically speaking.

In this case, the aftermath of the pre-session demands in Ouachita Parish went as follows:

Rep. Gilbert Faulk, looking up over a stack of letters from advocates of the gas gathering tax and friends and pupils of the teachers — He's in favor of the raise, but opposed to the tax.

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, quoting the Huey Long philosophy of share-the-wealth—He's in favor of the raise and also in favor of the tax.

Accord on Several

When contacted for their views on the Louisiana Legislature, which opens at noon tomorrow, both were in accord on several local matters, but shared different ideas on the gas gathering tax and the pay raise.

Sen James Sparks, who for several weeks has been vacationing in Europe, has not returned to his Monroe home. Therefore he missed out on the pre-session fun. According to a member of his family, he will arrive here Tuesday.

In supporting the teacher pay raise, Faulk proposes to get the

Auto In D'Loutre Bayou With Two Persons Trapped

A man and woman were trapped and drowned last night in a car which went off Highway 2 near Marion and submerged in the flood-swollen waters of Bayou d'Loutre, next to d'Loutre bridge.

Union Parish Sheriff Jurd Stewart of Farmerville rushed to the scene at 11 p.m., and said he tor boat onto the bayou to locate planned to take his outboard mothe car and bring out the bodies.

Stewart said a man and woman were known to be in the vehicle but did not elaborate on details.

He also stated that water has not covered the highway, but had risen up on either side of the road.

The site of the reported tragedy is nine miles northeast of Farmerville.

State Police from Troop F in Monroe said the car was completely submerged. The American Legion Rescue Truck was dispatched to the scene at 10:25 p.m.

N. O. Taxi Drivers Defy Court Order

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Other taxi-cab drivers Saturday defied a court order that only drivers for Yellow Cab Co. be permitted to solicit business at Moisant International Airport.

The city council May 1 granted an exclusive franchise to Yellow Cab. The action was taken after Edward J. Rapier, chairman of the city Aviation Board, reported a state of "warfare" exists between cab drivers at the airport. Rapier said air passengers had been insulted, abused and injured in the struggle for their cab transportation.

Judge Walter Hamlin of Civil District Court Saturday issued a restraining order against drivers other than Yellow Cab, but the competitors of the franchise company continued to solicit business.

TRIPOLI NEAR SIEGE

Mobs Sack U. S. Library Abroad

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UP)—Anti-government mobs sacked the U. S. Information Service library Saturday and clashed in violent riots with police and soldiers.

Saturday night this second largest city of Lebanon was in a state of virtual siege.

There were no official estimates of dead or wounded, and there was no immediate indication that any Americans were hurt.

But reliable sources said there were at least 15 dead and more than 125 wounded, some seriously.

One report said the USIS building was set afire. Another said its books were burned in the street.

But the violence raged widely until army units using tanks and trucks were able to drive the rioting mobs off the streets.

Call For Strike

The clash was the second in 24 hours in Tripoli, a seaport 40 miles northeast of Beirut. The demonstrations followed the assassination Thursday of left-wing editor Nassib El Metni, whose newspaper was a vigorous foe of President Camille Chamoun and Premier Sami El Solh.

Opposition leaders called for a general strike and the closing of all businesses Friday as a sign of mourning and anger. The strike all but failed in Beirut, but was 75 to 90 per cent effective in Tripoli. There was a clash Friday in Tripoli in which eight persons were injured.

Angry crowds re - formed in Tripoli Saturday morning, shouting "Down with Chamoun" and "Down with his prime minister." They ignored pleas by the police to disperse, and their numbers grew.

Police tried to break up the crowds with a club - swinging charge when the demonstrators added rock-throwing to their oral insults. The police were driven back, and the rioters started firing at them.

They swept on to attack the USIS library, where damage was not clear. One report said the building itself was set afire. But another said the crowds rushed the building, looted books from its shelves and threw them into a street bonfire.

At least three shops also were looted.

Then one section of the mob marched on the government office building in Tripoli and pelted another group of policemen with stones when they tried to disperse the rioters.

A nearby force of soldiers was called in when the demonstrators again started using firearms. The troops first fired over the heads of the rioters but when their fire was returned, the soldiers began shooting into the ground in front of the crowd.

This shooting apparently caused most of the casualties, with soldiers and civilians included among the victims.

Overcast, Mild Seen For Today

A mild Sunday with partly overcast skies was predicted for the Monroe area, with tomorrow expected to be warmer with light rain.

Yesterday's temperature range was almost identical to Friday's, with an 83-65 reading recorded. Friday's high and low were 83-63.

Arkansas is expected to have partly cloudy skies today and tomorrow with warm temperatures.

Bastrop Man Is Drowned In Black Bayou

A Bastrop man, fishing on Black Bayou with his nephew yesterday, suffered a heart attack, fell from his boat and drowned, according to Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John Burton.

The victim was identified as Floyd Leslie Landers, 48 of 911 Roberts St., Bastrop.

After a preliminary investigation, Burton said Mr. Landers plunged forward when stricken by the attack, and capsized the boat, also occupied by Carl Allen Landers, nephew of the victim.

Mr. Landers' nephew told the coroner that his uncle had a heart ailment for several years.

Monroe firemen and members of the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department recovered the body from six feet of water at 10:10 yesterday morning. The spot was less than a mile from Brewster's boat dock.

Mr. Landers was a welder for the International Paper Co. and was a Mason.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Cherry Ridge Baptist Church with the Rev. W. R. Rogers, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Christ's Church Cemetery in Bastrop by Blackwell-Golden Funeral Home.

Expect Crest At 49 Feet Here May 18

By GEORGE FOX
Staff Writer

Sandbags were going up along a seven block stretch of South Grand yesterday after the weather bureau issued predictions of further rain along the Ouachita River and its Arkansas watersheds.

A steady rise of approximately .5 of a foot each day during the past week coupled with the possibility of further rain prompted the action.

Roy Snider, of Delhi, president of the levee commissioners for the Tensas Basin Levee District stated, "We intend to do everything in our power to protect the city of Monroe, or any other threatened area in our district, from any possible flood damage. The river has reached a point where we can no longer gamble on its rise and fall."

The river has risen 4.5 feet during the past several days, and a high of 49 feet is predicted in the Monroe area by May 18.

Saturday morning reading at Monroe was 45.53 feet, a .53 foot rise over the previous day's level.

A. W. Newkirk, resident engineer for the U. S. Corps of Engineers, pointed out that a heavy 3 to 6 inch rain around El Dorado, Ark. and the upper watershed of the Ouachita River could easily swell the river to 51 or 52 feet.

'Stop Log Barriers'

Construction of "stop log barriers" in the breaks of the levee wall, and the sandbagging of an open stretch extending in front of Ouachita Parish High School is expected to be completed sometime tomorrow.

Barriers for the several levee breaks on the south side of West Monroe will also be finished tomorrow.

The "stop log barriers" are wooden partitions extending between open sections of the levee wall. They are approximately five feet high, depending upon the elevation of the ground at that particular point, and are so constructed as to allow the pouring of cement to form a permanent barrier in the event of severe flooding.

The barriers, as well as the sandbags which are being placed in the one open section, are expected to handle a maximum flood level of 51 feet, two feet above the predicted crest.

Snider stated, "We are trying

Leukemia Kills Nine-Year-Old Skelton Child

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Comedian Red Skelton's nine-year-old son, Richard, whose fight against leukemia won the hearts of people throughout the world, died Saturday night at the UCLA Medical Center.

Died At 8:30 P.M.

A UCLA Medical Center spokesman said the fragile, red-haired boy, stricken with the dread disease two years ago, died at 3:30 p.m. (PDT).

The comedian had taken the boy to Europe last summer in a vain attempt to obtain treatment that might save his life.

Richard had been admitted to the UCLA Medical Center from time to time in the past several months.

ON MOTHER'S DAY

'Mother' Of 54 To Have A Happy Day

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Herman Bock may not hear from all 54 of her children Sunday, but the 9 at home are planning something special for Mothers Day.

Mrs. Bock is one of 73 women in Anne Arundel County with whom motherhood is a wholesale role. She is a foster mother for the County Welfare Department.

The county pays Mrs. Bock, but welfare officials feel no pay is adequate for the warmth with which such women take on their jobs.

Most Hurt, Lonely

Children come to them as discards from upset homes. They come not singly, but by the dozens. Most are hurt and lonely, and some are real problems.

Many of the foster mothers have children of their own or adopt some of the children for whom they provided temporary homes. Mrs. Bock has a daughter of her own and has adopted two others.

One of the county's most experienced foster mothers, she took job so rewarding.

in her first child two weeks after she was married. A slight, gentle woman, she has made a specialty of caring for "bad boys" sent to her by the department.

'I'll Try'

"I always say I'll try," she said. "Ninety-nine per cent of the children respond to kindness."

In addition to her own daughter, 19, Mrs. Bock has cared for 28 children from the welfare agency and 25 from nonagency families in her home on a 65-acre farm near Annapolis.

Her husband, a labor foreman with a gas and electric company, is an enthusiastic foster father. Mrs. Bock, a foster child herself at 6, would like to get a bigger house so she could take in more children.

She has pretended not to hear a lot of whispering at the house this week, but Sunday promises to be one of those days that have a special meaning and make her

AS SESSION NEARS

Political Rumblings Heard Around Area

(Editor's Note: This is the 11th in a series of articles by staff writer Sam Hanna dealing with bills which district lawmakers plan to introduce or support at the session of the Louisiana Legislature opening tomorrow.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

The hoopla of Louisiana politics has a different effect on different politicians and people in general.

Take for instance the issues involved. On face value, one wouldn't think a gas gathering tax could create a rumble from one end of the state to the other.

But when an army of school teachers gets behind that rumble, clamoring for a pay raise, it's an entirely different story, one which will make some but break others, politically speaking.

In this case, the aftermath of the pre-session demands in Ouachita Parish went as follows:

Rep. Gilbert Faulk, looking up over a stack of letters from advocates of the gas gathering tax and friends and pupils of the teachers — He's in favor of the raise, but opposed to the tax.

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, quoting the Huey Long philosophy of share-the-wealth—He's in favor of the raise and also in favor of the tax.

Accord on Several

When contacted for their views on the Louisiana Legislature, which opens at noon tomorrow, both were in accord on several local matters, but shared different ideas on the gas gathering tax and the pay raise.

Sen James Sparks, who for several weeks has been vacationing in Europe, has not returned to his Monroe home. Therefore he missed out on the pre-session fun. According to a member of his family, he will arrive here Tuesday.

In supporting the teacher pay raise, Faulk proposes to get the

British Move To Stop Strike By Train Men

LONDON (UP) -- The government was reported ready Saturday to offer a token wage increase to 450,000 workers on the nationalized railways to head off a threatened nationwide strike.

Such a rail walkout, when combined with the present strike by 50,000 London bus workers, would confront the country with its worst transport tie-up since the great general strike of 1926.

Mobile District Engineers Let Contract Work

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The Mobile district office of the Army Corps of Engineers has kept southeastern construction workers going at a rapid clip during the past four months.

Col. Harold E. Bisbort, the district engineer, said the quarter was one of the busiest in the peacetime history of the district.

Contracts let since Jan. 1 totaled $33,755, 546. In addition, $4,-493,192 was expended on purchases and on contracts in force.

The contracts awarded included construction of the Jackson lock and dam on the Tombigbee River near Jackson, Ala. The contract was the largest ever awarded for a civil works project in the district.

Most of the 19 million dollars in military contracts was for construction connected with the guided missile program.

Other major construction contracts were awarded for Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; Bates Field, Mobile's municipal airport: Keesler AFB, Biloxi, Miss.; and Columbus AFB, Miss.

At Keesler, the engineers awarded a $1,376,622 contract for a missile guidance training facility and three other contracts totaling more than $300,000.

Twelve contracts totaling more than one million dollars were let for work at Columbus AFB, which is being converted from a training base to a Strategic Air Command base.

GRAY SAYS

High Zinc Tariff Protects Miners

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Kenneth J. Gray said Saturday he would "rather have Peruvians throw rocks at American visitors than have unemployed miners in my district go on relief."

The Illinois Democrat spoke out in the wake of rock - throwing demonstrations against Vice President Richard M. Nixon by students at Lima, Peru. Some Peruvians are angered over threatened U.S. moves to impose high tariffs on imports on Peruvian lead and zinc to protect domestic producers.

The issue will come to a head soon when Congress begins action on President Eisenhower's embattled reciprocal trade extension bill.

Powerful protectionist forces are determined to write in an administration - opposed amendment to impose important quotas on petroleum, lead, zinc, acid-grade fluorspar, copper, and tungsten. They assert that imports have caused unemployment and economic distress in their districts.

O.R. Stackbein, chairman of the Nationwide Committee on Import Policy, charged Saturday that Eisenhower, who wants even more liberal tariff-cutting powers than he has now, is trying to take over Congress' historical powers. He said the executive departments under the President want "to disembowel" the tariff laws. "They are as busy as any Madison Avenue group and dip freely into the public till to finance their busy propaganda," he added.

Imports Capturing Market

Gray is one of the original sponsors of the proposed amendment. Fluorspar is the only one of the products produced in his district. But he said in an interview that he feels that all congressmen from mining areas must stick together if they are to win relief.

He said that Mexico and other countries supplied less than half of the domestic market for fluorspar three years ago but now have "captured 90 per cent of it."

Commenting on dispatches from Lima stating the Communists were enabled to stir up the demonstration against Nixon because of the import issue, Gray said:

"I still maintain it's better to have rocks thrown at you in Peru than to have hungry people in America. If we have to buy friendship to appease our neighbors, then we might as well have a showdown."

The House Ways and Means Committee resumes consideration of the trade bill Monday.

The last meet also featured a Memorial Service in honor of Sister Theresa Baur and Knight W. C. Fleet.

Also on hand were Spencer, W. F. Lewis, vice president in charge of marketing for Alco Products.

Hebert Gets Triple Honors In N. Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 10 (UP)—Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La.) tomorrow will be awarded simultaneously triple honors from his state, the city of New Orleans, and from the military.

In a ceremony at Camp Leroy Johnson here tomorrow afternoon, the veteran Louisiana congressman will be given the Louisiana Distinguished Service medal, the New Orleans International Order of Merit, and a citation by the Association of the United States Army.

The state award wil be made by Maj. Gen. Raymond Hufft, adjutant general. Mayor deLesseps S. Morrison will present the New Orleans award, and Wallace M. Davis, president of the New Orleans chapter of the Army association, will make the military presentation.

Officils of the event said it would mark the first time that a congressman has received triple honors of this nature in Louisiana.

The Army citation was given to Hebert as "outstanding for his leadership on the house armed services committee.

The New Orleans award encompassed a number of accomplishments in congress by Hebert in recent years.

The state award credited the congressman with securing title to Jackson Barracks, contributions to the Louisiana National Guard, and commended his leadership in the establishment of the Alvin Callender Field, the first joint air training center in the nation.

Plans will be outlined for the day and the workers will meet that night at 7:30 at Lexington School after they have made the maximum number of calls.

Powerful protectionist forces are determined to write in an administration - opposed amendment to impose important quotas on petroleum, lead, zinc, acid-grade fluorspar, copper, and tungsten. They assert that imports have caused unemployment and economic distress in their districts.

O.R. Stackbein, chairman of the Nationwide Committee on Import Policy, charged Saturday that Eisenhower, who wants even more liberal tariff-cutting powers than he has now, is trying to take over Congress' historical powers. He said the executive departments under the President want "to disembowel" the tariff laws. "They are as busy as any Madison Avenue group and dip freely into the public till to finance their busy propaganda," he added.

Imports Capturing Market

Gray is one of the original sponsors of the proposed amendment. Fluorspar is the only one of the products produced in his district. But he said in an interview that he feels that all congressmen from mining areas must stick together if they are to win relief.

He said that Mexico and other countries supplied less than half of the domestic market for fluorspar three years ago but now have "captured 90 per cent of it."

Commenting on dispatches from Lima stating the Communists were enabled to stir up the demonstration against Nixon because of the import issue, Gray said:

"I still maintain it's better to have rocks thrown at you in Peru than to have hungry people in America. If we have to buy friendship to appease our neighbors, then we might as well have a showdown."

Mobile District Engineers Let Contract Work

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The Mobile district office of the Army Corps of Engineers has kept southeastern construction workers going at a rapid clip during the past four months.

Col. Harold E. Bisbort, the district engineer, said the quarter was one of the busiest in the peacetime history of the district.

Contracts let since Jan. 1 totaled $33,755, 546. In addition, $4,-493,192 was expended on purchases and on contracts in force.

The contracts awarded included construction of the Jackson lock and dam on the Tombigbee River near Jackson, Ala. The contract was the largest ever awarded for a civil works project in the district.

Other major construction contracts were awarded for Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; Bates Field, Mobile's municipal airport; Keesler AFB, Biloxi, Miss.; and Columbus AFB, Miss.

At Keesler, the engineers awarded a $1,376,622 contract for a missile guidance training facility and three other contracts totaling more than $300,000.

Twelve contracts totaling more than one million dollars were let for work at Columbus AFB, which is being converted from a training base to a Strategic Air Command base.

Other installations for which major construction work was placed this year included: Gulfport municipal airport, $419,035.

IN MODERN HOSPITAL

Skilled Hands Aid The Sick, Injured

By AUSTIN ABRAMS
Staff Writer

The sickening wail of a siren in the night creates a disorderly array of eyes peering from houses and autos as the ambulance rushes past.

For the doctors and nurses who work the night shift in the hospital emergency rooms throughout the city it sets off a swift and methodical reaction.

A telephone message has already warned the emergency crew the nature of the case ... auto crash ... gunshot wound . . . stabbing.

Whatever the situation every member of these skilled staffs knows the necessary preparations.

A surgery table is kept in 24-hour readiness. Surrounding its white sheeted form are bottles of anesthetics, surgical trays loaded with equipment. Medications line a nearby cabinet. Any type of emergency can be fully prepared for in minutes.

A doctor enters the emergency room ahead of the patient and makes a mental note of the readied equipment.

An ambulance driver whisks the injured inside. A quick look by the doctor and work begins.

In case of obvious critical injury tension mounts. Only the silent swiftness of moving technicians reflects the swelling anxiety the staff feels as it fights against death.

Slow Procession

Minutes parade by like a procession of turtles before death is clasped tightly inside its cloak.

The doctor lifts his head. Tense muscles relax, for the present death has been averted.

This is the life which all veterans of emergency rooms hold dear and they reluctantly accept transfers to other hospital departments.

What is this magnetic force ever drawing surgeons and nurses closer to emergency work.

Some day it's the accomplishment felt when a life has been saved. Others say the work is interesting. None can put into words just exactly why they feel inseparable from emergency room work.

With all the accomplishments found in emergency room work, most veterans of such service admit that they cringe when encountering injuries which greatly hamper or destroy a person's breathing and respiratory system. This is when time must be whipped. A few seconds may stand between life and death.

Progressed

Hospitals have progressed to thousand-fold efficiency since the day Florence Nightingale marched into the battlefronts of the Crimean War and stepped-up sanitary procedures.

Born May 12, 1820, the fiery Englishwoman cast away the veil of taboos surrounding women who would enter the nursing profession and began her famous career on the Crimean battlefronts in 1854.

She terminated a striking career with writings on hospital procedures and founding St. Thomas' school for training nurses.

So on May 12, 1958, just 138 years from her birth, hospitals the nation over set aside a week of rememberance of Florence Nightingale.

In many places guided tours of modern hospitals will show contrasts of sanitary conditions in the days of old.

Where then a hospital was any building filled with sick and wounded, today's hospitals harbor a hotel atmosphere with the utmost in medical care.

The white uniform of nurses as well as doctors today reflect years of improvement began when a woman who cared, did what she wanted to do.

And today as then, the intangible value of the medical profession can be seen in the eyes of its followers, and felt in the discharge of their work.

Children Saved By Dog's Alarm

AUBURN, Maine (AP) — Three small children were rescued from a blazing farm home Saturday thanks to a dog's barking. The animal then scampered into the flaming building and perished.

The fire leveled the home and barn of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oakes of North Auburn at a loss undetermined.

The Oakes' daughter-in-law, Virginia, was alone in the house with her children when the one-year-old terrier drew her attention by barking wildly and scraping on a door. Opening the door she was met by a wall of flames. She rushed upstairs and carried the children, 8 months to 5 years, to safety.

Work By Law Makers Continues

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The hectic days of the 1958 Legislature have ended and the lawmaking halls are strangely quiet for the first time in nearly six months.

Visitors to the marbled, vaulted Senate and House chambers see only empty leather chairs silent loudspeakers where 10 days ago 189 lawmakers drove home their argumentrbaon proposed legislation.

Although only a few persons know it, legislative work still continues at a steady, exacting pace.

From the stenographic offices of the House and Senate come a rhythmic tap-tap-tap of typewriters and a quiet drone of reading voices as the stenographers complete their tedius job: Recording the actions of the Legislature.

Heading the operation in the House is Mrs. Marjorie Randall of Jackson, whose contageous smile inspires nearly everyone to call her "Margie."

Mrs. Randall has two jobs: office supervisor to nine stenographers and personal secretary to House Speaker Walter Sillers of Bolivar County since 1944.

It's her responsibility to see that the final copies of the bills that are signed into law are exactly as the House passed them.

That's the tedious part.

The stenographic staff must enroll all bills passed by the Legislature for presentution to the governor.

Enrolling a bill entails typing it on a special form, initialed by the stenographer, signed by the House clerk as accurate, and signed by the lieutenant governor for the Senate and the speaker for the House.

To ensure accuracy, each enrolled bill is read twice. Appropriations bills — disbursement of money to state agencies — must be read three times, a time-consuming but necessary requirequirement.

Mrs. Randall and her nine stenographers qualify as experts, having years of legal or legislative experience behind them.

Yet most of them are housewives who work only during legislative sessions because they do not want permanent jobs.

During the session, the stenographers act as secretaries to the legislators, typing their letters, preparing bills for them and other office work.

The monumental job of enrolling the bills before the midnight Saturday deadline was completed in time.

But the stenographers still face the task of reading for accuracy the myriad pages of stencils for every bill and resolution approved length from one page to 52 pages.

Although the stenographers work by the House. Bills range in eight or more hours a day a few feet from where the Legislature enacts laws, they are largely unaware of the action just outside their glass-paneled door.

"We don't have time to sit out in the House to listen to the debate," Mrs. Randall says. "We usually have too much to do here."

Rio Train Wreck Deaths Revised

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL (AP) —The city morgue reduced from 131 to 113 Saturday the number of dead in Thursday's commuter train crash. Officials explained there had been duplications in the death roll.

It was the second worst train wreck in Brazilian history. A crash on the same line—the Central Do Brasil—took 119 lives in 1952.

President Juscelino Kubitschek fired three top officials of the road as a result of preliminary investigations into Thursday night's headon collision 10 miles north of Rio.

Thank These Legislators

Louisiana's legislative session opens tomorrow amid clear indications that the state administration die-hard tax increase boys will employ every conceivable and insidious political maneuver to slip a tax increase through.

If you are in doubt as to such a course, read Governor Earl Long's recent statements in which he gave his political sidekicks the green light. Specifically, the Governor has endorsed a proposal to triple the present gas gathering tax—a 200 per cent hike—and even has given his approval to use of school children, in school hours, to further propaganda for this particular tax hike.

Long and his same legislators attempted to hoodwink the public into accepting a batch of new taxes two years ago—six months after he had made a solemn promise to the people of Louisiana that he would not increase taxes.

This ruthless attempt was blocked by a number of representatives in the House who battled day and night. Among those who stood solidly against the tax increase attempts by the Long administration and educational forces were a number from Northeast Louisiana. They were Reps. Gilbert Faulk, of Ouachita; L. D. Napper, Lincoln parish; Woodrow Wilson, Morehouse; T. T. Fields, Union; Lasley Downes, Richland, and Edgar H. Lancaster Jr., Madison.

Those representatives are entitled to a big vote of appreciation from Northeast Louisiana residents for the tremendous job they did in blocking tax increases. Those same representatives will be on hand when the Legislature convenes tomorrow. You should write to them and express your thanks and loyalty for the fine job they did two years ago and to let them know you are still backing them to the limit.

Their action was not for their benefit; it was for you. They were subjected to every conceivable pressure, yet they did not yield to the selfish group that used all the methods known to hijack them into voting against the best interests of their constituency.

Since their firm stand on the tax increases, efforts have been made to discredit them; to defeat them on various issues, but not a single one has lost. The results of the November 6, 1956, election showed conclusively that the majority of the people in Louisiana, including the northeast section, approved the action taken by these men. The approval came when voters rejected the constitutional convention. Had this proposal been approved, the Long forces next would have attempted to have the two-thirds majority rule repealed. This amendment means that for any tax increase to pass, two-thirds of the legislators must approve it. It has been a big factor in helping our lawmakers defeat the tax hike proposals. It is no wonder that the Long forces hate it with a passion and are doing their utmost to have it repealed. They cannot as long as you—the public—keep your eyes open and back your representatives and senators who are giving their everything in the fight to block tax increases.

Your legislators will need your loyal support at this session of the legislature more than ever before. The gas-gathering tax increase is certain to be introduced by administration forces. This group has been setting the stage for it for the past year or so. They have done it by roping in the state's teachers. These legislators helped to vote the teachers a pay raise, but then failed to provide the necessary funds. Since then, they have told the teachers they not only will not receive a raise, but will have their salaries cut unless tax increases are voted. . . . . .

This is an insidious threat to people that should not be threatened. It has resulted in some of the teachers pushing for tax increases—and using methods that are questionable, to say the least. The money for the pay increase could have been provided without new taxes; it still can. These teacher groups, including the Louisiana Teachers Association, should put the pressure on Governor Long; that is where it belongs.

There is no need for a tax increase. In fact, there is a good reason under existing economic conditions to avoid any kind of tax increase. An increase in the gas-gathering tax would be particularly harmful to Northeast Louisiana with its large gas-consuming industries. It will be felt right down to the paper mill worker, the pulp wood hauler, the grocery store clerk and all others in all walks of life.

Those forces who would increase the gas-gathering tax by 200 per cent have told you that the out-of-state consumer would have to pay the bulk of the increase. This is not true; you, and you alone, will foot most of the bill for any increase.

If this group is allowed to win approval for the gas tax increase, there will be no stopping them. Bills calling for increases in most all existing taxes, plus new ones, will be introduced. Once the gate is opened, the flood starts.

These tax hike plans come not only as a repetition of Governor Long's breaking of his solemnly and frequently uttered campaign pledges that there would be no tax increases during his entire administration, but when there is a demand across the nation for reduction of federal taxes as an anti-recession step.

In his printed campaign platform before his last election, the Governor said:

"I pledge there will be no increase in taxes. My administration will work untiringly to achieve maximum efficiency in every branch of our state government, and we will operate with strict economy. Should the tidelands income continue at its present rate, I believe a portion of it should be used for the purpose of reducing the state debt, with a view of substantial reductions."

In making this and other pledges, the Governor turned solemnly—but with what now seems to have been irreverence—to the Bible and invoked the help of Almighty God. Here is another quote on this from his platform:

"In closing, please permit me again to quote to you that passage from the Holy Bible, which I quoted when I first became your Governor in June, 1939:

"Better a little with Righteousness
Than great revenues without right."

"I have earnestly striven to follow this inspired precept throughout my lifetime. Those who know me well, know this to be true.

"I shall pursue the same course when I am governor, with the help of Almighty God."

Governor Long has kept that pledge about no increase in taxes so far, but not because he wanted to himself. He has kept it because a group of legislators, fighting for the rights of the people of Louisiana, forced him to keep it by rejecting his tax increase proposals.

No one will argue the point that Governor Long isn't a shrewd politician. He has not hesitated at times to take ruthless and even reckless means to justify whatever end he sought. But his approval of the use of public school children to propagandize legislators in behalf of plans to hike taxes in violation of his own solemn pledges is shocking almost beyond comprehension.

Even some of the Long Legislators, including the sponsor of the gas-gathering tax hike bill, has been critical of this aspect of the situation.

So if you are in doubt as to what is going on, now is the time to get your eyes open to the under-the-table campaign. Back those men who stood firm two years ago.

Thus informed that their efforts are appreciated and that they are being counted upon to defend Louisiana's citizens and industries against the threat of additional taxation, the lawmakers will be better prepared to wage another fight against these forces which are seeking to impose new taxes for their own special interests.

U.S. Variance Of Opinion On Communism Is Great

Washington, D. C.—It would be a strange and possibly an undemocratic thing if Americans were to agree on one highly controversial subject, but on Communism and what it accomplishes, in both the U.S. and the rest of the world, the variance of opinion, even among well informed people, is probably wider in this country than on any world question in history.

Since at least 80 per cent of American citizens may be rated as anti-Communist, the correctness of that statement may be doubted. It therefore needs some documentation. As a starter, these conflicting points of view may be cited:

1. Allen Dulles, Central Intelligence agency chief and brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in convention here that Soviet industrial production is climbing this year at about the same rate it has declined in the United States. In investment in producer goods—electric power, metallurgical development and military goods—, it "will probably exceed the U. S. this year."

2. The comment of other Russian experts in this country was that production capacity is not the correct yardstick. Production here centers on consumer goods, which account for less than half of total production in the USSR, against two thirds in the U.S. In Russia, consumer demand is not even a factor in expansion of production.

3. Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland industrialist, asserted that there are no Communists to speak of in the U. S. except in the minds of those on the FBI payroll. This was an attempt in one sentence to refute the record of Communist activity set forth in the new book "Masters of Deceit" by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, which has been given a respectful hearing throughout the country.

4. U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Robert C. Hill was quoted as having frequently asserted "There is no Communism in Mexico" though American companies with investments there cite the unquestioned fact that the country is a haven for Communists leaders expelled from Central American countries. Some Mexican political leaders contradict Hill, though the Red strength south of the border is generally treated with kid gloves.

The inconsistencies are disturbing but at least they provide one more demonstration that disagreement always exists in a true democracy, which would not be permissible in Russia, nor in any satellite nation. Communist propaganda constantly takes new forms in this country, but the important point is that it is now spotted almost as soon as it crops up, which was not the case 20 years ago, when several bloody riots grew out of labor disturbances, with local police authorities receiving the blame, rather than the unidentified Communists who inspired the conflicts.

As it stands today, the principal difficulty which the U.S. faces in fending off Communist intrusion is pressure from western Europe and other free nations who have benefited from our foreign aid program that we yield to the Khrushchev government on the Summit conference and other unavailing meetings, where the advantage of totalitarian gestures over a republican form of government is marked to begin with.

If Americans are confused by the conflict between statements from usually respected sources in their own country, they should realize that they are hearing all points of view, and that they must use their own intelligence, which they have had ample opportunity to develop, to decide which of many spokesmen express the most convincing point of view, based upon their qualifications to speak.

To speak authoritatively on the threat of Communism to the U.S., at home and throughout the world, requires an objective quality which seems to be reserved to those who have time and opportunity to study and weigh information.

To those who have seen the cold war wax and wane in Washington, there is one reassurance. Regardless of a few pop-offs in high quarters which seem to ignore the whole pattern of Communism, the hysterical attitude of postwar years has been succeeded by a common sense approach.

American expansion has been based upon trial and error and patience. The current Communist expansion is and will continue to be by totalitarian rule, which has never triumphed in the 20th century.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Auto Worker Pay Increase Is Seen

NO STRIKE, MORE PAY — From a very, very inside source of auto management in Detroit come these predictions: There will be no strike, there will be a nine cent an hour increase in pay; car prices will stay up, except that there will be a saving to the buyer equal to the size of any excise tax reduction the Federal government may make.

NEXT ONE WILL BE ROUGHER — Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Labor Mitchell head a group of prominent Republicans who think the Administration should make a real effort to find common ground with Democrats in order to get a semblance of the legislative program the Administration has asked. Their reasoning is that the Democrats will have an even larger majority in the next Congress and will be even more difficult to do business with then.

FBI AND DIXIE — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is not distrubed by attacks such as made on it during the week by Cyrus S. Eaton, the leftist Ohio industrialist. What does trouble the FBI, however, is the growing suspicion of its activities which are reported prevalent in the South. It was this section which more than any other in the past has given the FBI the strongest support and now voices the loudest protest that "people are being crept up on." In Alabama, first 1958 Southern primary, Tuesday, Judge George Wallace, who advocated jailing "snooping FBI agents," won a place in the gubernatorial run-off primary.

SOUTHERLAND REPUBLICAN TROUBLE — Southern Republican Congresmen are protesting the impending appointment of E. Frederic Morrow, a Negro, as President Eisenhower's adviser on racial matters. The post was formerly held by Maxwell Rabb. Southerners think the appointment would diminish their already dim chances of winning re - election to Congress.

DESCRIPTIVE PRONUNCIATION — Although Representative Carl Vinson, 74- year old chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, is the advertised toughest foe of the Administration's Defense re- organiation plan actually there is a feeling in the Pentagon that Representative F. Edward Hebert (pronounced "a bear") of Louisiana is an even more resourceful opponent. Hebert, an old New Orleans City Editor who has made himself a military expert, is living up to his reputation as a quick - witted newspaper man. He asks witnesses disconcerting questions and issues well - timed statements. Secretaries, Generals and Admirals agree that the French pronunciation of his name is quite appropriate.

RAYBURN AND ANDERSON — Regardless of the many reports of a firm understanding between Secretary of the Treasury Anderson and Speaker Sam Rayburn on tax cutting, it really never existed. What happened was that it was convenient to both to wait awhile before making up their minds on whether there should be a tax slash and if so what kind. Both are free to advance their plans whenever they desire. Anderson and Rayburn remain close friends, but their ideas on the kind of tax cut which would be of the most benefit are very dissimilar.

THE LABOR CLASH— Look for party lines to break wide open when Senate debate begins on labor legislation (probably the week of June 15). Vote a week ago when Democrats of such diverse views as Byrd and Morse, and with the entire Democratic membership except Lausche of Ohio, lined up solidly is deceptive. That result was achieved by promising legislative action after a committee hearing. Whatever the form of the bill prepared by the subcommittee headed by Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts there will be dozens of amendments offered from the Senate floor.

REDUCING VULNERABILITY — In a little noticed speech here General Curtis LeMay, Vice Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, explained the dispersal needed to reduce vulnerability and increase the reaction capability of our air units. Ultimately, LeMay said, it is expected that not more than 15 B-52's or 45 B-47's will occupy one base. This dispersal of the strategic bomber force not only cuts down vulnerability, but improves reaction time because aircraft can thus be launched faster.

ACRES BY THE MILLION — Look for a hard fight against the Alaskan Statehood bill in both Senate and House, if it reaches the floor of those bodies. Principal point of attack will be the provision donating to the proposed Alaskan State of 193,000,000 acres of public land, with the State having the privilege of selecting the land giving the most promise of the production of rich mineral resources.

QUICK SERVICE

ONEDIA, N.Y. — (UP) — Robert H. Vredenburg was driving when his car caught fire. He drove straight to a fire station where firemen doused the blaze.

DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Twin Philosophy Good For Nation

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Senator J. W. Fulbright, the Arkansas academician, was lecturing the Senate recently on the relics of our two-party system. With specific reference to interest rates on Federal loans, the Oxonian from Fayetteville declared:

" . . . I can recall no other issue upon which the Democratic majority and the Republican minority have disagreed so consistently. Perhaps it is because the minority members, with some praiseworthy exceptions, argue for the owners of money; whereas the majority members, by and large, argue for the vast majority of the American people — the users of money."

This is as close as anybody has recently come to making the partisan division of our political thought. We may not have a clear-cut, two party system any longer —more's the pity—but we do have a two-philosophy conflict in our minds, and it's as vital as a heartbeat to our nation. When a time comes when everybody in the Senate is slavering for love of the poor ("the users of money"), or cadging favors for the rich ("the owners of money"), then we can drop the flag to half-mast —the American republic will be a goner.

Today there are still spokesmen for both sides but, alas, there is nothing that looks like equipoise. It has become so politically profitable to coddle the poor, to sentimentalize upon unsuccess' that even men of intelligence get into the act. Significantly, the millionaires in politics are mostly Democrats. This would indicate that there is no personal prejudice against "owners of money" inside the party — but there is a political prejudice against the idea of wealth. There is precious little outspoken bias in the other direction.

We need somebody of moment in politics to stand up for the rich. The most trampled-upon minority of our time is the man of property. The least-sung attribute of national leadership is that of making money, although it is a trait to which all good Americans aspire. One of the noisiest and most unsupported campaigns for the Presidential nomination in memory was carried on in 1952 by Democratic Senator Bob Kerr, a 30 million dollar self-made man. But Kerr boasted about almost everything else except his shekels. In 1952 as well as '56, an aspirant for the Democratic nomination was Averell Harriman, who inherited a railroad fortune and kept it thriftily and well. But Harriman's pitch was that he "understood foreign affairs," as well he may. He and his backers behaved as if they were ashamed that Harriman "understood" money.

James Madison was one of the first, and regrettaby one of the few American statesmen, to have no embarrassment about stating the case for the rich. When he was ex-president, far beyond ambition or prejudice, Madison noted a number of ways in which the poor oppressed the rich. Madison could have been speaking of 1958. He mentioned cheap interest rates, such as Senator Fulbright was advocating. He spoke of "leveling schemes," a category which covers the whole area of putting property like houses and automobiles into the hands of people for little or no down payment. He named confiscation of property, such as we get by taxation which exempts the lower incomes and soaks the rich.

Madison did not say, nor should anyone say, that a responsive government such as ours should ignore the troubles of the poor. But neither should politicians be allowed to batten upon other people's miseries. This is what too many Democratic Congressmen get away with — the old Robin Hood play of rob the rich and patronize the poor. The majority party has been in charge of Congress almost continuously for a quarter-century of depression and war, broken only by President Eisenhower's first term. And yet today this party has nothing on the books which really protects the working people from sudden and adverse turns of our industrial economy. An outside observer might readily assume that the so-called popular party has a vested interest in popular distress.

Without doubt, the poor still need protection. They have got almost none from those who call themselves friends. There is little point in giving money to people who obviously do not know how to save it or manage it. Perhaps we should give relief in consumer goods and should arrange wage-hikes beyond a certain limit in the same tender. But, while we're about it, let's have more statesmen speaking up for the protection of wealth and enterprise. In the final analysis, this means protecting the road of opportunity. It is the best of all escape routes from poverty.

ONLY TODAY COUNTS

Winnsboro, La.

I have lived up on this earth 83 years — will be May 11th. It's been hard work — very little play. More than that, I live for God today. God only knows how long your life will be on this earth, and it's up to you to prove your everlasting worth. The past has gone forever, and tomorrow will never come. So, today is all that counts to prove your sincerety. This day and only this one counts with all the deeds you do. Remember that and live for God with all the soul in you.

Remember His commandment, and He is everybody's friend. Today may be the last on earth that you will ever spend. So when you go to church on Sunday and meet your loved ones in the aisle, greet them with a smile. Don't turn your eyes to the skies. It might be the last time you pass your Aunt Nettie in the aisle.

WANTS FLOOD CONTROL

Shreveport, La.

Editor, Morning World

What is this about flood control being called "Pork Barrel" legislation? Have we not suffered enough from these floods — even as late as last year? By way of solving the problem, it would be hard for us to live all our lives in houseboats like the Yangtze River people. April showers flood the flowered land of the Red River — Caddo Lake area again so soon — and even the sincere opponents of flood control call it "Pork Barrel!" Because of the present houseboat appearance of the Red River-Caddo Lake area, I propose a renewed effort for Flood Control—but since seeing is believing, I know that some reliable authority should stem the tide here and now. "Pork Barrel" the foreign aiders say! I say: So much for foreign aid — and so little for domestic neglect!

"I have earnestly striven to follow this inspired precept throughout my lifetime. Those who know me well, know this to be true.

"I shall pursue the same course when I am governor, with the help of Almighty God."

Governor Long has kept that pledge about no increase in taxes so far, but not because he wanted to himself. He has kept it because a group of legislators, fighting for the rights of the people of Louisiana, forced him to keep it by rejecting his tax increase proposals.

No one will argue the point that Governor Long isn't a shrewd politician. He has not hesitated at times to take ruthless and even reckless means to justify whatever end he sought. But his approval of the use of public school children to propagandize legislators in behalf of plans to hike taxes in violation of his own solemn pledges is shocking almost beyond comprehension.

Even some of the Long Legislators, including the sponsor of the gas-gathering tax hike bill, has been critical of this aspect of the situation.

So if you are in doubt as to what is going on, now is the time to get your eyes open to the under-the-table campaign. Back those men who stood firm two years ago.

Thus informed that their efforts are appreciated and that they are being counted upon to defend Louisiana's citizens and industries against the threat of additional taxation, the lawmakers will be better prepared to wage another fight against these forces which are seeking to impose new taxes for their own special interests.

U.S. Variance Of Opinion On Communism Is Great

Washington, D. C.—It would be a strange and possibly an undemocratic thing if Americans were to agree on one highly controversial subject, but on Communism and what it accomplishes, in both the U.S. and the rest of the world, the variance of opinion, even among well informed people, is probably wider in this country than on any world question in history.

Since at least 80 per cent of American citizens may be rated as anti-Communist, the correctness of that statement may be doubted. It therefore needs some documentation. As a starter, these conflicting points of view may be cited:

1. Allen Dulles, Central Intelligence agency chief and brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in convention here that Soviet industrial production is climbing this year at about the same rate it has declined in the United States. In investment in producer goods—electric power, metallurgical development and military goods—, it "will probably exceed the U. S. this year."

2. The comment of other Russian experts in this country was that production capacity is not the correct yardstick. Production here centers on consumer goods, which account for less than half of total production in the USSR, against two thirds in the U.S. In Russia, consumer demand is not even a factor in expansion of production.

3. Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland industrialist, asserted that there are no Communists to speak of in the U. S. except in the minds of those on the FBI payroll. This was an attempt in one sentence to refute the record of Communist activity set forth in the new book "Masters of Deceit" by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, which has been given a respectful hearing throughout the country.

4. U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Robert C. Hill was quoted as having frequently asserted "There is no Communism in Mexico" though American companies with investments there cite the unquestioned fact that the country is a haven for Communists leaders expelled from Central American countries. Some Mexican political leaders contradict Hill, though the Red strength south of the border is generally treated with kid gloves.

The inconsistencies are disturbing but at least they provide one more demonstration that disagreement always exists in a true democracy, which would not be permissible in Russia, nor in any satellite nation. Communist propaganda constantly takes new forms in this country, but the important point is that it is now spotted almost as soon as it crops up, which was not the case 20 years ago, when several bloody riots grew out of labor disturbances, with local police authorities receiving the blame, rather than the unidentified Communists who inspired the conflicts.

As it stands today, the principal difficulty which the U.S. faces in fending off Communist intrusion is pressure from western Europe and other free nations who have benefited from our foreign aid program that we yield to the Khrushchev government on the Summit conference and other unavailing meetings, where the advantage of totalitarian gestures over a republican form of government is marked to begin with.

If Americans are confused by the conflict between statements from usually respected sources in their own country, they should realize that they are hearing all points of view, and that they must use their own intelligence, which they have had ample opportunity to develop, to decide which of many spokesmen express the most convincing point of view, based upon their qualifications to speak.

To speak authoritatively on the threat of Communism to the U.S., at home and throughout the world, requires an objective quality which seems to be reserved to those who have time and opportunity to study and weigh information.

To those who have seen the cold war wax and wane in Washington, there is one reassurance. Regardless of a few pop-offs in high quarters which seem to ignore the whole pattern of Communism, the hysterical attitude of postwar years has been succeeded by a common sense approach.

American expansion has been based upon trial and error and patience. The current Communist expansion is and will continue to be by totalitarian rule, which has never triumphed in the 20th century.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Auto Worker Pay Increase Is Seen

NO STRIKE, MORE PAY — From a very, very inside source of auto management in Detroit come these predictions: There will be no strike, there will be a nine cent an hour increase in pay; car prices will stay up, except that there will be a saving to the buyer equal to the size of any excise tax reduction the Federal government may make.

NEXT ONE WILL BE ROUGHER — Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Labor Mitchell head a group of prominent Republicans who think the Administration should make a real effort to find common ground with Democrats in order to get a semblance of the legislative program the Administration has asked. Their reasoning is that the Democrats will have an even larger majority in the next Congress and will be even more difficult to do business with then.

FBI AND DIXIE — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is not distrubed by attacks such as made on it during the week by Cyrus S. Eaton, the leftist Ohio industrialist. What does trouble the FBI, however, is the growing suspicision of its activities which are reported prevalent in the South. It was this section which more than any other in the past has given the FBI the strongest support and now voices the loudest protest that "people are being crept up on." In Alabama, first 1958 Southern primary, Tuesday, Judge George Wallace, who advocated jailing "snooping FBI agents," won a place in the gubernatorial run-off primary.

SOUTHERLAND REPUBLICAN TROUBLE — Southern Republican Congresmen are protesting the impending appointment of E. Frederic Morrow, a Negro, as President Eisenhower's adviser on racial matters. The post was formerly held by Maxwell Rabb. Southerners think the appointment would diminish their already dim chances of winning re - election to Congress.

DESCRIPTIVE PRONUNCIATION — Although Representative Carl Vinson, 74- year old chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, is the advertised toughest foe of the Administration's Defense re- organiation plan actually there is a feeling in the Pentagon that Representative F. Edward Hebert (pronounced "a bear") of Louisiana is an even more resourceful opponent. Hebert, an old New Orleans City Editor who has made himself a military expert, is living up to his reputation as a quick - witted newspaper man. He asks witnesses disconcerting questions and issues well - timed statements. Secretaries, Generals and Admirals agree that the French pronunciation of his name is quite appropriate.

RAYBURN AND ANDERSON — Regardless of the many reports of a firm understanding between Secretary of the Treasury Anderson and Speaker Sam Rayburn on tax cutting, it really never existed. What happened was that it was convenient to both to wait awhile before making up their minds on whether there should be a tax slash and if so what kind. Both are free to advance their plans whenever they desire. Anderson and Rayburn remain close friends, but their ideas on the kind of tax cut which would be of the most benefit are very dissimilar.

THE LABOR CLASH— Look for party lines to break wide open when Senate debate begins on labor legislation (probably the week of June 15). Vote a week ago when Democrats of such diverse views as Byrd and Morse, and with the entire Democratic membership except Lausche of Ohio, lined up solidly is deceptive. That result was achieved by promising legislative action after a committee hearing. Whatever the form of the bill prepared by the subcommittee headed by Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts there will be dozens of amendments offered from the Senate floor.

REDUCING VULNERABILITY — In a little noticed speech here General Curtis LeMay, Vice Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, explained the dispersal needed to reduce vulnerability and increase the reaction capability of our air units. Ultimately, LeMay said, it is expected that not more than 15 B-52's or 45 B-47's will occupy one base. This dispersal of the strategic bomber force not only cuts down vulnerability, but improves reaction time because aircraft can thus be launched faster.

ACRES BY THE MILLION — Look for a hard fight against the Alaskan Statehood bill in both Senate and House, if it reaches the floor of those bodies. Principal point of attack will be the provision donating to the proposed Alaskan State of 193,000,000 acres of public land, with the State having the privilege of selecting the land giving the most promise of the production of rich mineral resources.

Twin Philosophy Good For Nation

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Senator J. W. Fulbright, the Arkansas academician, was lecturing the Senate recently on the relics of our two-party system. With specific reference to interest rates on Federal loans, the Oxonian from Fayetteville declared:

" . . . I can recall no other issue upon which the Democratic majority and the Republican minority have disagreed so consistently. Perhaps it is because the ninority members, with some praiseworthy exceptions, argue for the owners of money; whereas the majority members, by and large, argue for the vast majority of the American people — the users of money."

This is as close as anybody has recently come to making the partisan division of our political thought. We may not have a clear-cut, two party system any longer —more's the pity—but we do have a two-philosophy conflict in our minds, and it's as vital as a heartbeat to our nation. When a time comes when everybody in the Senate is slavering for love of the poor ("the users of money"), or cadging favors for the rich ("the owners of money"), then we can drop the flag to half-mast —the American republic will be a goner.

Today there are still spokesmen for both sides but, alas, there is nothing that looks like equipoise. It has become so politically profitable to coddle the poor, to sentimentalize upon unsuccess' that even men of intelligence get into the act. Significantly, the millionaires in politics are mostly Democrats. This would indicate that there is no personal prejudice against "owners of money" inside the party — but there is a political prejudice against the idea of wealth. There is precious little outspoken bias in the other direction.

We need somebody of moment in politics to stand up for the rich. The most trampled-upon minority of our time is the man of property. The least-sung attribute of national leadership is that of making money, although it is a trait to which all good Americans aspire. One of the noisiest and most unsupported campaigns for the Presidential nomination in memory was carried on in 1952 by Democratic Senator Bob Kerr, a 30 million dollar self-made man. But Kerr boasted about almost everything else except his shekels. In 1952 as well as '56, an aspirant for the Democratic nomination was Averell Harriman, who inherited a railroad fortune and kept it thriftily and well. But Harriman's pitch was that he "understood foreign affairs," as well he may. He and his backers behaved as if they were ashamed that Harriman "understood" money.

James Madison was one of the first, and regrettaby one of the few American statesmen, to have no embarrassment about stating the case for the rich. When he was ex-president, far beyond ambition or prejudice, Madison noted a number of ways in which the poor oppressed the rich. Madison could have been speaking of 1958. He mentioned cheap interest rates, such as Senator Fulbright was advocating. He spoke of "leveling schemes," a category which covers the whole area of putting property like houses and automobiles into the hands of people for little or no down payment. He named confiscation of property, such as we get by taxation which exempts the lower incomes and soaks the rich.

Madison did not say, nor should anyone say, that a responsive government such as ours should ignore the troubles of the poor. But neither should politicians be allowed to batten upon other people's miseries. This is what too many Democratic Congressmen get away with — the old Robin Hood play of rob the rich and patronize the poor. The majority party has been in charge of Congress almost continuously for a quarter-century of depression and war, broken only by President Eisenhower's first term. And yet today this party has nothing on the books which really protects the working people from sudden and adverse turns of our industrial economy. An outside observer might readily assume that the so-called popular party has a vested interest in popular distress.

Without doubt, the poor still need protection. They have got almost none from those who call themselves friends. There is little point in giving money to people who obviously do not know how to save it or manage it. Perhaps we should give relief in consumer goods and should arrange wage-hikes beyond a certain limit in the same tender. But, while we're about it, let's have more statesmen speaking up for the protection of wealth and enterprise. In the final analysis, this means protecting the road of opportunity. It is the best of all escape routes from poverty.

ONLY TODAY COUNTS

Winnsboro, La.

I have lived up on this earth 83 years — will be May 11th. It's been hard work — very little play. More than that, I live for God today. God only knows how long your life will be on this earth, and it's up to you to prove your everlasting worth. The past has gone forever, and tomorrow will never come. So, today is all that counts to prove your sincerety. This day and only this one counts with all the deeds you do. Remember that and live for God with all the soul in you.

Remember His commandment, and He is everybody's friend. Today may be the last on earth that you will ever spend. So when you go to church on Sunday and meet your loved ones in the aisle, greet them with a smile. Don't turn your eyes to the skies. It might be the last time you pass your Aunt Nettie in the aisle.

WANTS FLOOD CONTROL

Shreveport, La.

Editor, Morning World

What is this about flood control being called "Pork Barrel" legislation? Have we not suffered enough from these floods — even as late as last year? By way of solving the problem, it would be hard for us to live all our lives in houseboats like the Yangtze River people. April showers flood the flowered land of the Red River — Caddo Lake area again so soon — and even the sincere opponents of flood control call it "Pork Barrel!" Because of the present houseboat appearance of the Red River-Caddo Lake area, I propose a renewed effort for Flood Control—but since seeing is believing, I know that some reliable authority should stem the tide here and now. "Pork Barrel" the foreign aiders say! I say: So much for foreign aid — and so little for domestic neglect!

FULTON, S.Y.— (UP) —It was April Fool's Day, so Stanley Roberts thought it was just a prank and smiled when he saw the wallet lying on the sidewalk. Finally, after watching other pedestrains ignore the wallet, Roberts picked it up and took it to police who returned the wallet and the enclosed $10 to the man who lost it, Robert Griswold.

Political Rumblings Heard Around Area

money for the increase from the state's general fund.

He plans to send a resolution through the House directing the appropriations committee to award the increase from the general fund.

Faulk voted for the gas-gathering tax before. He explains his present views as, "Because I feel that Ouachita parish would be severely crippled, I see nothing to change my position."

On this point, Gibbs, who plans to vote for the gas-gathering tax for the teacher raise, differs. He shares the opinion that the property owner with gas wells is being hurt by the gas industry.

"The gas companies, by underdevelopment, have deprived landowners for two generations of untold sums of money," Gibbs said. "They hold leases on thousands of acres by dribbling gas wells that only net the land owners checks anywhere from three to five cents a month."

Gibbs' View

Gibbs said the land owners would receive $100 to $500 monthly if the "fields were properly developed, whereas, now, in reality, they receive only one-half cent per acre annually."

"The gas company has been unmerciful to my people of Monroe," he said. "They are paying as low as three to four cents per thousand cubic feet for gas in this area and I understand residents of this area are paying gas bills anywhere from $16 to $20 monthly."

Gibbs finished, "As I appreciate the gas gathering tax, it is one way we can share the wealth."

Ouachita'a representatives, however, will band together on local projects, their statements indicate.

Gibbs will introduce a $200,000 bill for the purchase of Cheniere Lake and its flowage rights. Faulk will co-sponsor it.

They also will co-sponsor a bill calling for $300.000 to be spent on the Ouachita Health Center. Gibbs is asking for $800,000 for the Ouachita Valley Vocational School. He proposes to change its name to Ouachita Valley Vocational - Technical School.

A bill which should interest attorneys and court clerks is a change on deficiency judgements, one which will be dropped in by Faulk.

Explanation

He explained that a great many hardships are caused deficiency judgement in cases where a person's name is a common one. His bill will require a description of the person when the deficiency judgement is served.

On other matters, Faulk plans to work with other legislators on a crackdown against highway tragedy.

He might even submit a proposal to require a 30-day suspension of the driver's license in cases of the first offense.

A request for funds for the Greater Ouachita Port Commission will be made by Faulk, depending on a feasibility survey now being made on the Ouachita River by Ford, Bacon and Davis engineers.

As for wildlife, Faulk and Gibbs are down the line together. They're for the move to take the power of setting the hunting seasons and bag limits away from the legislature and give such authority to the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

But as for the $1 universal fishing license, both are against it. And in essence, both have the same reasons why.

To Faulk, it would be against his belief of the "old Jeffersonian Theory—that the best government is the least government." Gibbs said, "Although a dollar isn't much, the people, I believe would resent a tax on canepole fishing."

And so they take their stands for criticism or praise. The sad part about it is, both doubt the success of half their local projects.

Final Rites Set For Barney Parker

Final rites will be conducted today at 4 p.m. at the Liberty Baptist Church at Calhoun for Barney Parker, 68, who died yesterday in a Monroe hospital.

The Rev. S. W. Tulos will officiate, with interment at the Mt. Zion Cemetery at Calhoun by Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of West Monroe.

Mr. Parker is survived by his widow, Mrs. Effie Harper Parker; a son, J. L. Parker, Washington, Kan.; two daughters, Mrs. W. T. Littleton and Mrs. H. L. Lewis, both of West Monroe, and five grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be M. D. Powell, Cleo Murray, Richard Fuller, Willian Mims, Webster Hattaway and Bruce Golson.

ie premiers, Miss. Novak commented: "If it was a gift, I'll send it back."

She added: "I can afford my own car and I have a car, a Corvette. I don't have room in my garage; in fact, I don't even have a garage. I've got a carport and there's only room for my car and my maid's car."

But though she'll return the $8,700 Mercedes Benz, she admitted to a press conference that she is fond of Trujillo. Though he has rich tastes in automobiles. They have dined in drive-ins.

"He likes hamburgers and so do I," she commented.

Is it a serious romance? "One never knows," she replied mystically. She said they have not discussed marriage.

The growing romance was announced by news from Kansas City that Trujillo's wife and five children were ensconsed in most of a top hotel floor last winter while the youthful general went to Army school at nearby Ft. Leavenworth.

From Trujillo came nothing. He had retired to a Bel-Air mansion he is renting in Los Angeles, having just had his adenoids removed in a Santa Monica hospital.

Fish Might Die In High Water Areas Of State

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Wild Life and Fisheries Commission said Saturday fish kills similar to ones before and after Hurricane Audrey may occur in flooded areas of northern Louisiana.

Biologists informed director F. Lamar Clement that a deficient oxygen situation is being observed in streams.

Clement said technicians from the water pollution division have been receiving information from the field men that the organic load increased by decaying vegetation and rise in water temperatures are creating conditions which could result in natural fish kills statewide.

Some trash and catfish, the commission said, will be land locked in drying holes as the water recedes, but most sports fish will retreat with the waters.

Goes Out 14th Floor Window

NEW YORK (AP)—An explosion at New York Hospital Saturday sent a workman out a 14th floor window—either from the force of the blast or from jumping in panic. He escaped death by landing on a ledge two stories below.

The man, Clarence Bolton, 34, of East Orange, N.J., suffered extensive burns, however, and was reported in a critical condition.

Library

The new $182,000 library building in West Monroe will be formally opened on the afternoon of June 1, says Mrs. Bernard Biedenharn, chairman of the library board.

West Monroe women's clubs will all be represented and plans are being formulated for a highly elaborate open house.

The library at its old site will be closed this week end so that books and other library facilities may be removed to the new building.

Pool

Seems like West Monroe is opening up several places at about the same time. The swimming pool at Highland Park Country club had its initial opening yesterday with a highly successful affair.

The clubhouse is nearly ready for opening. Its opening day will be announced soon and the public wil be invited to attend.

Open House

Open house will be held in the Red Cross chapter headquarters, 200 South Grand St., Monroe, tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. for all registered nurses of the fifth district.

This is the first year the annual event will be held to honor all nurses of the Monroe area on the anniversary of the birthday of Florence Nightingale. Also it is Hospital Day.

Mrs. Henry Norris is chairman of the Red Cross nursing service committee.

Party

Invitations have been extended by Mr. and Mrs. L. Slade Brown to members and friends of the Twin City Symphony to attend a garden party on the grounds of the Brown home, 320 Lakeside Dr., today from 4 to 6 p.m.

There is to be a water ballet during the afternoon as a special feature.

Memberships for the coming year are now available.

Musical

An outstanding musical event, the Spring Serenade, will be presented tomorrow night in the Neville High School auditorium sponsored by Estelle Schulze Sanders.

All money netted will be placed in the fund to aid the Mentally Retarded, one of the important projects for the Twin Cities and this entire area.

High Honor

A high honor was accorded Arthur L. Tatum, assistant professor of Social Sciences at Northeast State college Friday when the student council in recognition of his long and praiseworthy services to the college and students, presented him a handsome desk. It was of unusually attractive appearance and a plaque gave expression of the Student Council members in their regard for this praiseworthy faculty member.

One of the older professors in point of service at the college here remarked after the presentation, which was followed by a rising vote of appreciation, that in 26 years this was never duplicated at the local institution.

Mother Fears Starkweather May Get Angry

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The mother of mass slayer Charles Starkweather said Saturday she feared her son's temper might flare up over his attorneys' attempts to show that he is insane.

Mrs. Guy Starkweather, a tiny, shy woman who has attended several sessions of her son's murder trial here, said the admitted slayer of 11 "doesn't have that red hair for nothing."

She said she had been concerned that her son might lose his temper at remarks made by his attorneys during questioning of prospective jurors at the first three days of the trial.

The attorneys, who entered a plea of insanity against Starkweather's wishes, repeatedly referred to "a diseased and defective mind," and "legal insanity" when questioning jurors on whether they would accept evidence of insanity as a mitigating factor.

Starkweather is on trial specifically for the fatal shooting of Robert W. Jensen, 17, Bennet, Neb., high school boy.

Neither Mrs. Starkweather nor her husband believes the former garbage man is insane or mentally disturbed.

The father, who appeared at the fifth day of the trial Friday before it was adjourned for the weekend, also indicated he would be a reluctant witness if his son's attorneys follow through on their plans to call him an other family members to the stand.

La. Legislative Session May Be Most Explosive

to sign a proposed two cents increase in the natural gas gathering tax.

"We need that money for the school teachers to maintain their present salary level," Long said. Gas industry spokesmen said the two cents increase would produce something like $40 million—pay the school teachers what they need and make up more than the rest of the alleged state deficit.

Belief meunted that the administration should have little trouble passing the proposed tax.

Several Tax Measures

Among other tax measures expected to be introduced were timber, severance, sulphur, liquor, and possibly higher levies of sales, gasoline, wine and automobile licenses.

Several segregation bills from the joint legislative committee on segregation — headed by Sen. W. M. Rainach—will be introduced. They will not present too much of a problem. There are few of the members of either house that can afford to oppose such a measure.

The opening day of the session will be spent mostly in formalities. Resolutions from the house and senate informing each other and the governor that they are in session and ready for business will be first.

Sen. Daniel McGovern of New Orleans will be the only legislator sworn into office. He replaces Sen. Ted Hickey who resigned when he was elected to the Crescent City council.

More Than 200 Bills

Dr. Emmett Asseff, director of the legislative council, said more than 200 bills have been prefiled. These and others will be introduced during the first day and for the next 20 days.

Lawmakers have 21 days at the start of each 60-day session to toss their measures in the hopper.

How the Legislature will act during the session is anybody's guess. The reeling around the state house was that it will be "one lulu" of a session. Many feel, however, that nothing could happen to make it any wilder than in 1956 when Long took the center stage and battled Secretary of State Wade Martin Jr. for the microphone in a committee meeting while television cameras and tape recorders documented the scene for nation-wide audiences.

That was the battle which resulted in Martin being stripped of the insurance department and voting machines. It meant a cut in salary of at least $1,500 for the fiery secretary of state. He presently is laying groundwork to get the voting machines back during this session. Long says "he'll never make it."

Watching Long's Temper

Long's leaders are trying to keep him off of the floor of the house this year. They are afraid of his explosive temper—a factor that packs the galleries every time he is scheduled to speak.

The governor still has not confirmed whether or not he will address a joint session. Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar said he is "trying will be spent mostly in formalities. to get the governor to schedule an address for Tuesday night." Last word was that the governor was considering an address, but "might just prepare a written statement and have it placed on each of the desks."

Long said he also might "read part of a statement to a joint session, and let someone else finish it. I'm a poor reader," he explained.

Man, 21, Drowns

to maintain a certain safety margin over any predicted crest. We want to be prepared for even a two foot increase over any expected flood level."

In the event of a crest higher than 51 feet, however, Snider pointed out that temporary sand bag barriers would have to be placed along South Grand Street from Miro to Grammont St.

Warning Issued

Speed boat enthusiasts were warned that it would be necessary to curtail boating along the river when the crest point is reached. Waves from the boats might easily undermine the foundations of the sandbags, causisg serious seepage and leading to a posible collapse of the temporary barrier.

S. C. Smith, district engineer for the Louisiana State Department of Public Works in the Monroe area, stated that Bayou Bartholomew had reached its expected crest between the Arkansas State line and Highway 165. He added that although a .1 foot rise was recorded Friday, a gradual decline was expected.

The Jonesboro road was closed, and under water, but the Jonesboro detour around Cheniere dam remains open at present.

Members of the Department of Public Works, and U. S. Corps of Engineers met yesterday with Wayne Huckaby, of the Department of Highways, and Stringer, of the Tremont and Gulf Rail Road, to discuss the railroad and highway which run parallel through the Bawcomville ring levee.

The group examined the sight and it was decided to raise the level of the road beds 3 feet and thereby offer permanent protection against high spring levels rather than erect a temporary barrier over the tracks and road as has been done in the past.

Although two feet of water are exepcted over the rail bed at the predicted stage, the railroad will still be able to maintain operations.

Work will begin today to raise the elevation on a permanent basis which will offer protection against predicted crests as high as 51 feet.

The levee board is expected to pay the actual cost of raising the beds, while the railroad and highway department will bear the cost of adjusting the track and road to the new elevation.

Snider, on behalf of the Levee Board, offered his thanks and appreciation to all those agencies and personnel who had cooperated wholeheartedly during the present emergency. Among them he mentioned particularly the officials of the city of Monroe and Ouachita Parish, the Department of Highways, officials of Morehouse Parish, U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Department of Public Works.

Endangering Area

The high crest of the Ouachita river, which now for the first time seems to be endangering a large urban section, continues to deal havoc with the rural areas.

About 10,000 acres of cropland, and 10,000 acres of pasture have been affected in Morehouse Parish alone by the swollen waters of Bayou Bartholomew, and the predicted crest of the Ouachita is likely to hold backwater over most of the area and prevent planting of crops until well after June 1st.

R. M. McDuff County Agent for Morehouse Parish reported that the only crops these farmers will be able to plant will be June corn and soybeans. He also stated that it would be 30 days or more after the water recedes, before the pastures return to normal.

In addition to the revenue lost by farmers unable to make a cotton crop this year, the unusually high water is responsible for losses caused by actual damages to farm property in many instances.

Man In Hospital After Accident

A mechanical difficulty on a truck sent a Springfield, Mo., truckdriver to St. Francis Hospital with a broken leg yesterday.

Fred Taylor of 2316 North Congo St., Springfield, was tightening the lugs on the duals of a trailer, when the machinery slipped, hit his right leg and broke it.

Taylor, one of two drivers for the Stanford Brothers Truck Co. of Springfield, woke his co-worker at 3:14 a.m. yesterday and told him of the mishap.

Political Rumblings Heard Around Area

money for the increase from the state's general fund.

He plans to send a resolution through the House directing the appropriations committee to award the increase from the general fund.

Faulk voted for the gas-gathering tax before. He explains his present views as, "Because I feel that Ouachita parish would be severely crippled, I see nothing to change my position."

On this point, Gibbs, who plans to vote for the gas-gathering tax for the teacher raise, differs. He shares the opinion that the property owner with gas wells is being hurt by the gas industry.

"The gas companies, by underdevelopment, have deprived landowners for two generations of untold sums of money," Gibbs said. "They hold leases on thousands of acres by dribbling gas wells that only net the land owners checks anywhere from three to five cents a month."

Gibbs' View

Gibbs said the land owners would receive $100 to $500 monthly if the "fields were properly developed, whereas, now, in reality, they receive only one-half cent per acre annually."

"The gas company has been unmerciful to my people of Monroe," he said. "They are paying as low as three to four cents per thousand cubic feet for gas in this area and I understand residents of this area are paying gas bills anywhere from $16 to $20 monthly."

Gibbs finished, "As I appreciate the gas gathering tax, it is one way we can share the wealth."

Ouachita'a representatives, however, will band together on local projects, their statements indicate.

Gibbs will introduce a $200,000 bill for the purchase of Cheniere Lake and its flowage rights. Faulk will co-sponsor it.

They also will co-sponsor a bill calling for $300,000 to be spent on the Ouachita Health Center. Gibbs is asking for $800,000 for the Ouachita Valley Vocational School. He proposes to change its name to Ouachita Valley Vocational - Technical School.

A bill which should interest attorneys and court clerks is a change on deficiency judgements, one which will be dropped in by Faulk.

Explanation

He explained that a great many hardships are caused deficiency judgement in cases where a person's name is a common one. His bill will require a description of the person when the deficiency judgement is served.

On other matters, Faulk plans to work with other legislators on a crackdown against highway tragedy.

He might even submit a proposal to require a 30-day suspension of the driver's license in cases of the first offense.

A request for funds for the Greater Ouachita Port Commission will be made by Faulk, depending on a feasibility survey now being made on the Ouachita River by Ford, Bacon and Davis engineers.

As for wildlife, Faulk and Gibbs are down the line together. They're for the move to take the power of setting the hunting seasons and bag limits away from the legislature and give such authority to the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

But as for the $1 universial fishing license, both are against it. And in essence, both have the same reasons why.

To Faulk, it would be against his belief of the "old Jeffersonian Theory—that the best government is the least government." Gibbs said, "Although a dollar isn't much, the people, I believe would resent a tax on canepole fishing."

And so they take their stands for criticism or praise. The sad part about it is, both doubt the success of half their local projects.

Final Rites Set For Barney Parker

Final rites will be conducted today at 4 p.m. at the Liberty Baptist Church at Calhoun for Barney Parker, 68, who died yesterday in a Monroe hospital.

The Rev. S. W. Tulos will officiate, with interment at the Mt. Zion Cemetery at Calhoun by Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of West Monroe.

Mr. Parker is survived by his widow, Mrs. Effie Harper Parker; a son, J. L. Parker, Washington, Kan.; two daughters, Mrs. W. T. Littleton and Mrs. H. L. Lewis, both of West Monroe, and five grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be M. D. Powell, Cleo Murray, Richard Fuller, Willian Mims, Webster Hattaway and Bruce Golson.

NO BLOOD

SYRACUSE, N.Y. —(UP)— Police and an ambulance rushed to an apartment house after the building superintendent telephoned that a "man had been stabbed." Officers entered the open door of an apartment and found George Herold calmly wiping off the catsup he had spilled on his shirt.

ie premiers, Miss. Novak commented: "If it was a gift, I'll send it back."

She added: "I can afford my own car and I have a car, a Corvette. I don't have room in my garage; in fact. I don't even have a garage. I've got a carport and there's only room for my car and my maid's car."

But though she'll return the $8,700 Mercedes Benz, she admitted to a press conference that she is fond of Trujillo. Though he has rich tastes in automobiles. They have dined in drive-ins.

"He likes hamburgers and so do I," she commented.

Is it a serious romance? "One never knows," she replied mystically. She said they have not discussed marriage.

The growing romance was announced by news from Kansas City that Trujillo's wife and five children were ensconsed in most of a top hotel floor last winter while the youthful general went to Army school at nearby Ft. Leavenworth.

From Trujillo came nothing. He had retired to a Bel-Air mansion he is renting in Los Angeles, having just had his adenoids removed in a Santa Monica hospital.

Fish Might Die In High Water Areas Of State

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Wild Life and Fisheries Commission said Saturday fish kills similar to ones before and after Hurricane Audrey may occur in flooded areas of northern Louisiana.

Biologists informed director F. Lamar Clement that a deficient oxygen situation is being observed in streams.

Clement said technicians from the water pollution division have been receiving information from the field men that the organic load increased by decaying vegetation and rise in water temperatures are creating conditions which could result in natural fish kills statewide.

Some trash and catfish, the commission said, will be land locked in drying holes as the water recedes, but most sports fish will retreat with the waters.

Goes Out 14th Floor Window

NEW YORK (AP)—An explosion at New York Hospital Saturday sent a workman out a 14th floor window—either from the force of the blast or from jumping in panic. He escaped death by landing on a ledge two stories below.

The man, Clarence Bolton, 34, of East Orange, N.J., suffered extensive burns, however, and was reported in a critical condition.

Library

The new $182,000 library building in West Monroe will be formally opened on the afternoon of June 1, says Mrs. Bernard Biedenharn, chairman of the library board.

West Monroe women's clubs will all be represented and plans are being formulated for a highly elaborate open house.

The library at its old site will be closed this week end so that books and other library facilities may be removed to the new building.

Pool

Seems like West Monroe is opening up several places at about the same time. The swimming pool at Highland Park Country club had its initial opening yesterday with a highly successful affair.

The clubhouse is nearly ready for opening. Its opening day will be announced soon and the public wil be invited to attend.

Open House

Open house will be held in the Red Cross chapter headquarters, 200 South Grand St., Monroe, tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. for all registered nurses of the fifth district.

This is the first year the annual event will be held to honor all nurses of the Monroe area on the anniversary of the birthday of Florence Nightingale. Also it is Hospital Day.

Mrs. Henry Norris is chairman of the Red Cross nursing service committee.

Party

Invitations have been extended by Mr. and Mrs. L. Slade Brown to members and friends of the Twin City Symphony to attend a garden party on the grounds of the Brown home, 320 Lakeside Dr., today from 4 to 6 p.m.

There is to be a water ballet during the afternoon as a special feature.

Memberships for the coming year are now available.

Musical

An outstanding musical event, the Spring Serenade, will be presented tomorrow night in the Neville High School auditorium sponsored by Estelle Schulze Sanders.

All money netted will be placed in the fund to aid the Mentally Retarded, one of the important projects for the Twin Cities and this entire area.

High Honor

A high honor was accorded Arthur L. Tatum, assistant professor of Social Sciences at Northeast State college Friday when the student council in recognition of his long and praiseworthy services to the college and students, presented him a handsome desk. It was of unusually attractive appearance and a plaque gave expression of the Student Council members in their regard for this praiseworthy faculty member.

One of the older professors in point of service at the college here remarked after the presentation, which was followed by a rising vote of appreciation, that in 26 years this was never duplicated at the local institution.

Mother Fears Starkweather May Get Angry

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The mother of mass slayer Charles Starkweather said Saturday she feared her son's temper might flare up over his attorneys' attempts to show that he is insane.

Mrs. Guy Starkweather, a tiny, shy woman who has attended several sessions of her son's murder trial here, said the admitted slayer of 11 "doesn't have that red hair for nothing."

She said she had been concerned that her son might lose his temper at remarks made by his attorneys during questioning of prospective jurors at the first three days of the trial.

The attorneys, who entered a plea of insanity against Starkweather's wishes, repeatedly referred to "a diseased and defective mind," and "legal insanity" when questioning jurors on whether they would accept evidence of insanity as a mitigating factor.

Starkweather is on trial specifically for the fatal shooting of Robert W. Jensen, 17, Bennet, Neb., high school boy.

Neither Mrs. Starkweather nor her husband believes the former garbage man is insane or mentally disturbed.

The father, who appeared at the fifth day of the trial Friday before it was adjourned for the weekend, also indicated he would be a reluctant witness if his son's attorneys follow through on their plans to call him an other family members to the stand.

La. Legislative Session May Be Most Explosive

to sign a proposed two cents increase in the natural gas gathering tax.

"We need that money for the school teachers to maintain their present salary level," Long said. Gas industry spokesmen said the two cents increase would produce something like $40 million—pay the school teachers what they need and make up more than the rest of the alleged state deficit.

Belief mounted that the administration should have little trouble passing the proposed tax.

Several Tax Measures

Among other tax measures expected to be introduced were timber, severance, sulphur, liquor, and possibly higher levies of sales, gasoline, wine and automobile licenses.

Several segregation bills from the joint legislative committee on segregation — headed by Sen. W. M. Rainach—will be introduced. They will not present too much of a problem. There are few of the members of either house that can afford to oppose such a measure.

The opening day of the session will be spent mostly in formalities. Resolutions from the house and senate informing each other and the governor that they are in session and ready for business will be first.

Sen. Daniel McGovern of New Orleans will be the only legislator sworn into office. He replaces Sen. Ted Hickey who resigned when he was elected to the Crescent City council.

More Than 200 Bills

Dr. Emmett Asseff, director of the legislative council, said more than 200 bills have been prefiled. These and others will be introduced during the first day and for the next 20 days.

Lawmakers have 21 days at the start of each 60-day session to toss their measures in the hopper.

How the Legislature will act during the session is anybody's guess. The reeling around the state house was that it will be "one lulu" of a session. Many feel, however, that nothing could happen to make it any wilder than in 1956 when Long took the center stage and battled Secretary of State Wade Martin Jr. for the microphone in a committee meeting while television cameras and tape recorders documented the scene for nation-wide audiences.

That was the battle which resulted in Martin being stripped of the insurance department and voting machines. It meant a cut in salary of at least $1,500 for the fiery secretary of state. He presently is laying groundwork to get the voting machines back during this session. Long says "he'll never make it."

Watching Long's Temper

Long's leaders are trying to keep him off of the floor of the house this year. They are afraid of his explosive temper—a factor that packs the galleries every time he is scheduled to speak.

The governor still has not confirmed whether or not he will address a joint session. Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar said he is "trying to get the governor to schedule an address for Tuesday night." Last word was that the governor was considering an address, but "might just prepare a written statement and have it placed on each of the desks."

Long said he also might "read part of a statement to a joint session, and let someone else finish it. I'm a poor reader," he explained.

Man, 21, Drowns

HOUMA, La. (AP)—Larry Bascle, 21, of nearby Bourg drowned Saturday in the Intracoastal Canal about one-half mile from the Bayou Blue ferry. His falther, Floyd Bascle, told officers the son fell from a boat while carrying a long plank.

Expect Crest At 49 Feet Here May 18

In the event of a crest higher than 51 feet, however, Snider pointed out that temporary sand bag barriers would have to be placed along South Grand Street from Miro to Grammont St.

Warning Issued

Speed boat enthusiasts were warned that it would be necessary to curtail boating along the river when the crest point is reached. Waves from the boats might easily undermine the foundations of the sandbags, causisg serious seepage and leading to a posible collapse of the temporary barrier.

S. C. Smith, district engineer for the Louisiana State Department of Public Works in the Monroe area, stated that Bayou Bartholomew had reached its expected crest between the Arkansas State line and Highway 165. He added that although a .1 foot rise was recorded Friday, a gradual decline was expected.

The Jonesboro road was closed, and under water, but the Jonesboro detour around Cheniere dam remains open at present.

Members of the Department of Public Works, and U. S. Corps of Engineers met yesterday with Wayne Huckaby, of the Department of Highways, and Stringer, of the Tremont and Gulf Rail Road, to discuss the railroad and highway which run parallel through the Bawcomville ring levee.

The group examined the sight and it was decided to raise the level of the road beds 3 feet and thereby offer permanent protection against high spring levels rather than erect a temporary barrier over the tracks and road as has been done in the past.

Although two feet of water are exepcted over the rail bed at the predicted stage, the railroad will still be able to maintain operations.

Work will begin today to raise the elevation on a permanent basis which will offer protection against predicted crests as high as 51 feet.

The levee board is expected to pay the actual cost of raising the beds, while the railroad and highway department will bear the cost of adjusting the track and road to the new elevation.

Snider, on behalf of the Levee Board, offered his thanks and appreciation to all those agencies and personnel who had cooperated wholeheartedly during the present emergency. Among them he mentioned particularly the officials of the city of Monroe and Ouachita Parish, the Department of Highways, officials of Morehouse Parish, U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Department of Public Works.

Endangering Area

The high crest of the Ouachita river, which now for the first time seems to be endangering a large urban section, continues to deal havoc with the rural areas.

About 10,000 acres of cropland, and 10,000 acres of pasture have been affected in Morehouse Parish alone by the swollen waters of Bayou Bartholomew, and the predicted crest of the Ouachita is likely to hold backwater over most of the area and prevent planting of crops until well after June 1st.

R. M. McDuff County Agent for Morehouse Parish reported that the only crops these farmers will be able to plant will be June corn and soybeans. He also stated that it would be 30 days or more after the water recedes, before the pastures return to normal.

In addition to the revenue lost by farmers unable to make a cotton crop this year, the unusually high water is responsible for lossee caused by actual damages to farm property in many instances.

WAGE DISPUTE

Reuther Proposes Impartial Panel

DETROIT (AP)—Walter P. Reuther proposed Saturday that economic demands of his United Auto Workers, including profit-sharing, be submitted to binding, impartial arbitration.

"It would be agreed," the UAW president said, "that the total amount to be awarded . . . would not require a price increase" by the auto companies.

Reuther, apparently stymied by the recession and a tremendous backlog of unsold cars in his 1958 contract bargaining, made his second peace offer within 11 days in a letter to Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn). A copy went to the Big Three; General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler.

General Motors, biggest of the auto makers, quickly rejected the proposal which it termed "another one of Mr. Reuther's publicity maneuvers."

The auto companies all have rejected profit sharing and have stood pat on an offer to extend for two more years the current three-year contracts. These carry automatic hourly raises of six cents annually and tie wages to ups and downs of the cost of living.

GM rejected a UAW offer to arbitrate in 1945.

Reuther proposed a five-man panel of arbitrators. The union would name two, the company two, and together they would select a fifth. A separate panel would be named for each company.

On April 29 Reuther offered to extend to September current contracts expiring about June 1. The automakers rejected this, pointing out this would carry bargaining into the beginnig of 1959 model runs and was tied to a requirement they cut prices.

Before making his arbitration bid, Reuther accepted in his letter to Kefauver a proposal by Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) that Congress cut the excise tax on automobiles from 10 to 2.5 per cent on condition that manufacturers reduce prices six per cent.

A recent Japanese food fair in Manhattan featured one delectable if frightening dish — whole baby octopus in soy sauce.

Suspect In Burglary Is Apprehended

Monroe city police yesterday afternoon apprehended a man who admitted burglarizing a Winnsboro department store of several hundred dollars worth of clothing and luggage Friday night.

Earl Richard Bankston, 30 of Star Route, Ft. Necessity, was arrested as he walked along the 200 block of South Grand Street at 5 p.m. yesterday.

Chief of Police James C. Kelly said last night that Bankston will be turned over to Franklin parish authorities today. He added that the man had confessed to taking two suitcases, a man's suit, several shirts, ties, socks, underwear and some community plate silverware, from Walter's Department Store.

Earlier in the day, a Winnsboro taxi driver, after hearing of the burglary, reported to Winnsboro police that a man had taken a taxi from there to the intersection of South First Street and the Winnsboro Road in Monroe.

The driver said the man was carrying luggage like that reported stolen, and revealed the suspect asked directions for heading for Dallas, Tex.

Sunshine Greets Swimmers At Highland Club

The board of directors announced that the entire club is open with the exception of the food department. The clubs will be open today and tomorrow, but closed Tuesday for additional concrete work around the swimming pool.

The entire club facilities are expected to be open by Thursday. A buffet dinner is planned for Sunday May 18, and will last from noon until 3 p.m.

A huge turnout of members and guests is expected at the pool today. The pool was the first to open in the Monroe area.

BITTER FEUD

Voroshilov Cancels Tour Of Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Soviet sources said Saturday Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov has cancelled a scheduled visit to Yugoslavia.

The question of the visit had been considered an index of the seriousness of the split between the Yugoslavs and the rest of the Communist world on Yugoslav party independence.

The Soviet sources said the official reason for the cancellation is that Voroshilov must remain in Russia because President Nasser of the United Arab Republic has extended a current visit to the Soviet Union.

A barrage of criticism from the Soviet Union and other Kremlinline parties preceded cancellation of the Voroshilov trip. The criticism was for the Yugoslav Communist party independence program adopted last month. That renewed declaration of independence from Kremlin domination raised a new world storm over Titoism.

Observers here agreed that Voroshilov's cancellation resulted actually from the increasingly bitter feud. Pravda, the official Soviet Communist paper, climaxed the attacks on Yugoslavia Friday with a hint the Soviet Union will withdraw economic aid from the Yugoslavs.

The Soviet sources said Ivan Zamchevsky, Soviet ambassador here, brought news of the cancellation on his return to Belgrade Saturday after lengthy consultations in Moscow.

There was no immediate reaction from the Yugoslav government. The Yugoslavs obviously wanted to wait for Moscow's announcement.

Dulles Balked In A-Test Ban, Sources State

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has run into new protests from NATO Allies against separate negotiations with Russia on banning nuclear weapons tests, informed sources said Saturday.

These sources disclosed that the opposition was expressed to Dulles during the 15-nation NATO foreign ministers conference in Copenhagan. Dulles returns here next week and will place the issue before President Eisenhower immediately.

There has been heavy pressure from other areas of the world for the United States to join Russia in stopping the tests and thus diminish the hazards of radioactive fallout.

The United States has been studying the feasibility of negotiating a ban with Russia separate from the overall Western disarmament "package" plan.

The package plan includes a halt on testing but links it with a cutoff of production of fissionable material for weapons purposes.

In the Eisenhower family itself, there has been vigorous backstage tugging. Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is opposed to stopping the tests while Dulles reported to favor it.

Informed sources said the trend of administration studies appears to favor the Dulles stand but not until the current Pacific testing has ended.

The final decision is up to the President. The information Dulles brings home could be a decisive factor.

The bulk of NATO representatives told Dulles the West should continue pressing Russia to negotiate an overall disarmament plan which would place both nuclear weapons and conventional arms under international controls. A test ban would be included.

Issue Boating Warning Here

Sheriff Bailey Grant asked yesterday that operators of pleasure boats on the Ouachita be certain they are clear of residential and business areas before going fast enough to knock up large waves.

Grant said some boats have caused water to wash out river banks that home and business owners had been attempting to build up.

Little Theater Curtain Call

By DELL MOORE

Opening date for "Light Up" is the 16th of May — reservations can be made starting May 15th from 2-7 p.m. The show will run the 16-21 excluding Sunday. This is the last play of the '58 season and one we think you will enjoy.

Last Monday night the theatre was the scene of the annual open meeting and it would be impossible to name all in attendance —but it was nice to see Roz Haas up and around after her bout with pneumonia. —It was announced that Ivan Uttal, our present director, will be back with us the '59 season — very much to the liking of us all. Ivan has done a wonderful job during the past three years and we are looking forward to his supervision and direction for an even better '59 season.

New Board members elected were as follows: Dick Troy, Slade Brown, Jackie Woods, Lallage Feazel, and Mary Gill.

Art Display

Have you seen the wonderful art display gallery just opened by The Art Shop — 403 Louisville Avenue? The grand opening was May 1 and, believe, me, the outstanding paintings — oil, water, crayon, ink as well as mosaics, ceramics and other objects of art are creating quite a flurry of interest. This gallery brings to the art patrons and cultured folk of Northeast Louisiana a museum. How wonderful it would be if flower shows could be held in this gallery and we could see the inter-mingling of breathing and still art.

Judy Evans and Jackie Woods have just been wonderful helping on this show with the costumes and furniture — also the write-ups in the programs can be accredited to Virginia McClendon.

The theatre is time - consuming, but to people who love it — it doesn't matter. You wonder how on earth people like Beth Breese and Coleen Dent do it - both work 2 boys - Coleen - 3 boys). Then there is Jack Rawls - commuting to and from Bastrop daily. Everyone else in the cast works also — and yet each is full of energy when "magic time" (this is a laugh line in "Light Up") begins at 7:30. It's up at 6 or 7 in the morning — work all day — and then to the playhouse until 10:30 or 11. But as I said, to people who love it —

Red Boss Sends New Letter To U. S. President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev sent President Eisenhower a new letter Saturday on Eisenhower's proposal to open technical studies on disarmament control.

Late last month Khrushchev turned down the proposal on the ground that political agreements between the Soviet Union and the Wesern powers should precede technical studies. On April 28 Eisenhower appealed to the Premier to reconsider.

The new message, a reply to the April 28 Eisenhower letter, was delivered to the State Department by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Mensbikov.

The State Department confirmed that the reply had been received.

"The reply is now being translated," the department press office said, "and until it is translated and studied there will be no comment."

Little Theater Curtain Call

By DELL MOORE

Opening date for "Light Up" is the 16th of May — reservations can be made starting May 15th from 2-7 p.m. The show will run the 16-21 excluding Sunday. This is the last play of the '58 season and one we think you will enjoy.

Last Monday night the theatre was the scene of the annual open meeting and it would be impossible to name all in attendance —but it was nice to see Roz Haas up and around after her bout with pneumonia. —It was announced that Ivan Uttal, our present director, will be back with us the '59 season — very much to the liking of us all. Ivan has done a wonderful job during the past three years and we are looking forward to his supervision and direction for an even better '59 season.

New Board members elected were as follows: Dick Troy, Slade Brown, Jackie Woods, Lallage Feazel, and Mary Gill.

It was One Whale Of A Party, Man

NEW YORK (AP) — An Irishman's natural nostalgia for the "ould sod" led to a little hysteria Friday following a bon voyage party aboard the liner America.

Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mahon. Mahon came here from West Heath in Ireland when he was a lad of 46. He's 81 now.

Tom was having more fun than anybody. He sang along with the ship's band when it played "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and other tunes of Eire. He even did a bit of jigging.

Then came the "all ashore" for non - passengers. The crush going off was terrific. Mrs. Mahon couldn't find her spouse. The ship was slipping down the harbor. Mrs. Mahon had visions of her husband, transatlantic bound. "He was having too good a time," she said.

The America was messaged, then searched. No Tom. About an hour later Tom strolled into his home. He was told about the excitement. Much ado, he said; he just got lost in the crowd, waited a while for his wife, then went home. But his voice was wistful. What a whale of a party!

Parliament Members To Be Chosen

ATHENS (AP) — Greece chooses a new Parliament Sunday in an election that may give this NATO nation a new political face. Its pro-West outlook is likely to continue.

The results could end the stable one-party government the country has enjoyed in the past two years under Premier Constantine Karamanlis. His rightist National Radical Union is not expected to retain its absolute majority in the 300-seat Parliament.

This would lead to government by a coalition of right and center parties. Beside Karamanlis' Radical Union, the other major parties are the Communist-oriented Union of the Democratic Left, the Liberal party, the Progressive Agrarian Union and a small far right Populist party.

In the 1956 elections Karamanlis' Radical Union won 167 parliament seats, a solid majority. The Liberals won 69 seats, and EDA 20. The remaining seats were scattered among minor splinter groups. These groups are expected to be eliminated this time under a new election law.

The election campaign, which drew large but generally apathetic crowds, ended Friday.

Mrs. J. Jenkins Will Speak Here

Mrs. J. L. Perkins, elementary supervisor of East Baton Rouge schools, will be featured at the spring conference of the Northeast Louisiana Reading Association, which is scheduled Saturday on the Northeast State campus.

Registration is set from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in the Fine Arts Little Theatre. The session will end with a business meeting from 11:15 to 12 noon, according to the association president, Dr. Clint Hanna, director of admissions and special services at Northeast.

The meeting is open to all interested persons, in addition to the regional organization.

Major items on Saturday's program will be Mrs. Perkins' discussion of reading problems and election of officers, Dr. Hanna said.

Black River Flood Looms At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) . . . A crest of 53 feet was officially predicted today for Black River at Jonesville by May 17, W. C. Brown, member of the Tensas Basin Levee Board said.

The river was gauged at 48.4 Friday, 1.6 feet from flood stage.

"We expect to protect about 60,000 acres around Harrisonburg, Utility-Archie, and White Head Bend sections of Catahoula, but when the river gets to the 50-foot flood stage the water will flow in fast into the unprotected areas," Brown said.

Backwater from Red River into the Larto Lake area in the southern part of Catahoula Parish has already forced several families from their homes.

Some have moved across Black River into Concordia Parish, seeking the protection of the levee paralelling the river. Livestock has been moved from the immediate danger area. Most of that area is expected to be under water by this weekend.

Fifty Tents

Fifty tents have been brought to Jonesville from Camp Polk and will be issued to families evacuating their homes Monday. Charles Wurster, disaster chairman of the Catahoula Parish Red Cross chapter, said that a close watch has been kept on the flood situation here and assistance would be asked from the national red cross if the conditions warrant.

The Catahoula Parish Police Jury Tuesday adopted a resolution asking Commissioner of Agriculture S. J. McCrory to assist in obtaining government surplus feed for livestock for the farmers whose land is now flooded.

E. E. Johnson, Catahoula Parish county agent, predicted that more than 25,000 acres of the 60,000 acres of cropland would be overflowed if the river reaches the 53 foot mark. More than 800 farms will be affected.

Johnson said also that 150,000 acres of low range and forest land would be under water. There are 450, acres of land area in Catahoula.

MAN BITES MAN

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Tucson police officer Donald Guenther said a 47-year-old man he arested on a drunk charge was armed to the teeth.

Guenther said Hilario Migues had a thin metal strip across a partial plate on his upper front teeth that was 'razor sharp" and the man snapped at the officer several times.

May Offer Ike Concessions On Military Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Armed Services Committee appeared ready Saturday to offer several concessions to President Eisenhower's views on how to streamline the nation's military high command.

However, key features of the President's defense reorganization plan still faced either heavy rewriting or rejection when the committee sits down next week to draft its version of the bill.

If the President and his congressional supporters stick to the "no compromise" line taken by the White House so far, one of the year's hottest fights is in store when the committee's bill reaches the House floor later this month.

Committee sources said Saturday that Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), the President's most powerful opponent in the fight, will push his 37-member committee to bring out a watered-down defense reform plan by next week end.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Jay Herbert, Walter Burkemo and Al Balding are part of a syndicate which will operate bowling alleys here this summer.

HAS SCORING FORMULA

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Russ Peterson of Brigham Young University, a physics student, has worked out a scientific formula for getting the basketball through the hoop. The player's height and distance from the basket figures in the equation.

Peterson, who didn't finish among the top scorers in the Skyline Conference last season, is waiting for next season to try out the formula.

EXPECTS BALANCE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Coach Jack Gardner of the University of Utah says he expects the Skyline Conference basketball conference will be more balanced next season.

Wyoming, the league champion, stumbled in its final two games yet finished a game ahead of the pack.

"I've never seen a year in which every school had so many young players, "Gardner says.

LAUNCHING — Mace pilotless missile, with preset guidance system capable of alteration in flight and range of 600 miles or more, takes off on successful test flight from Holloman, N. M. to Wendover AFB, Utah. Note Jato rocket booster giving craft initial flight impulse, after which bottle is dropped and missile's own jet engine takes over. The Air Force has given the Mace's speed as "in excess of 650 m.p.h." A less hefty version, the Matador, has been operational for several years. (AP Wirephoto)

HAS SCORING FORMULA

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Russ Peterson of Brigham Young University, a physics student, has worked out a scientific formula for getting the basketball through the hoop. The player's height and distance from the basket figures in the equation.

Peterson, who didn't finish among the top scorers in the Skyline Conference last season, is waiting for next season to try out the formula.

EXPECTS BALANCE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Coach Jack Gardner of the University of Utah says he expects the Skyline Conference basketball conference will be more balanced next season.

Wyoming, the league champion, stumbled in its final two games yet finished a game ahead of the pack.

"I've never seen a year in which every school had so many young players," Gardner says.

It was One Whale Of A Party, Man

NEW YORK (AP) — An Irishman's natural nostalgia for the "ould sod" led to a little hysteria Friday following a bon voyage party aboard the liner America.

Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mahon. Mahon came here from West Heath in Ireland when he was a lad of 46. He's 81 now.

Tom was having more fun than anybody. He sang along with the ship's band when it played "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and other tunes of Eire. He even did a bit of jigging.

Then came the "all ashore" for non-passengers. The crush going off was terrific. Mrs. Mahon couldn't find her spouse. The ship was slipping down the harbor. Mrs. Mahon had visions of her husband, transatlantic bound. "He was having too good a time," she said.

The America was messaged, then searched. No Tom. About an hour later Tom strolled into his home. He was told about the excitement. Much ado, he said: he just got lost in the crowd, waited a while for his wife, then went home. But his voice was wistful. What a whale of a party!

Parliament Members To Be Chosen

ATHENS (AP) — Greece chooses a new Parliament Sunday in an election that may give this NATO nation a new political face. Its pro-West outlook is likely to continue.

The results could end the stable one-party government the country has enjoyed in the past two years under Premier Constantine Karamanlis. His rightist National Radical Union is not expected to retain its absolute majority in the 300-seat Parliament.

This would lead to government by a coalition of right and center parties. Beside Karamanlis' Radical Union, the other major parties are the Communist-oriented Union of the Democratic Left, the Liberal party, the Progressive Agrarian Union and a small far right Populist party.

In the 1956 elections Karamanlis' Radical Union won 167 parliament seats, a solid majority. The Liberals won 69 seats, and EDA 20. The remaining seats were scattered among minor splinter groups. These groups are expected to be eliminated this time under a new election law.

The election campaign, which drew large but generally apathetic crowds, ended Friday.

Mrs. J. Jenkins Will Speak Here

Mrs. J. L. Perkins, elementary supervisor of East Baton Rouge schools, will be featured at the spring conference of the Northeast Louisiana Reading Association, which is scheduled Saturday on the Northeast State campus.

Registration is set from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in the Fine Arts Little Theatre. The session will end with a business meeting from 11:15 to 12 noon, according to the association president, Dr. Clint Hanna, director of admissions and special services at Northeast.

The meeting is open to all interested persons, in addition to the regional organization.

Major items on Saturday's program will be Mrs. Perkins' discussion of reading problems and election of officers, Dr. Hanna said.

Black River Flood Looms At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) . . . A crest of 53 feet was officially predicted today for Black River at Jonesville by May 17, W. C. Brown, member of the Tensas Basin Levee Board said.

The river was gauged at 48.4 Friday, 1.6 feet from flood stage.

"We expect to protect about 60,000 acres around Harrisonburg, Utility-Archie, and White Head Bend sections of Catahoula, but when the river gets to the 50-foot flood stage the water will flow in fast into the unprotected areas," Brown said.

Backwater from Red River into the Larto Lake area in the southern part of Catahoula Parish has already forced several families from their homes.

Some have moved across Black River into Concordia Parish, seeking the protection of the levee paralelling the river. Livestock has been moved from the immediate danger area. Most of that area is expected to be under water by this weekend.

Fifty Tents

Fifty tents have been brought to Jonesville from Camp Polk and will be issued to families evacuating their homes Monday. Charles Wurster, disaster chairman of the Catahoula Parish Red Cross chapter, said that a close watch has been kept on the flood situation here and assistance would be asked from the national red cross if the conditions warrant.

The Catahoula Parish Police Jury Tuesday adopted a resolution asking Commissioner of Agriculture S. J. McCrory to assist in obtaining government surplus feed for livestock for the farmers whose land is now flooded.

E. E. Johnson, Catahoula Parish county agent, predicted that more than 25,000 acres of the 60,000 acres of cropland would be overflowed if the river reaches the 53 foot mark. More than 800 farms will be affected.

Johnson said also that 150,000 acres of low range and forest land would be under water. There are 450, acres of land area in Catahoula.

MAN BITES MAN

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Tucson police officer Donald Guenther said a 47-year-old man he arested on a drunk charge was armed to the teeth.

Guenther said Hilario Migues had a thin metal strip across a partial plate on his upper front teeth that was 'razor sharp" and the man snapped at the officer several times.

May Offer Ike Concessions On Military Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Armed Services Committee appeared ready Saturday to offer several concessions to President Eisenhower's views on how to streamline the nation's military high command.

However, key features of the President's defense reorganization plan still faced either heavy rewriting or rejection when the committee sits down next week to draft its version of the bill.

If the President and his congressional supporters stick to the "no compromise" line taken by the White House so far, one of the year's hottest fights is in store when the committee's bill reaches the House floor later this month.

Committee sources said Saturday that Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), the President's most powerful opponent in the fight, will push his 37-member committee to bring out a watered-down defense reform plan by next week end.

Editor Speaks To Press Women

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The improper use of the press could result in the death of freedom, editor-publisher Oliver Emmerich of McComb warned the 22nd annual convention of the National Federation of Press Women Friday night.

"We can be writing the obituary of freedom," he said, "if we don't use our press as we ought. Don't be afraid of getting your feelings hurt. If you want to say something, say it.

"If we don't use our freedom, we are prostituting the press."

Emmerich, editor of the Jackson State Times and editor-publisher of the McComb Enterprise-Journal, listed these points concerning freedom and the press in the United States:

1. Freedom must be earned; 2. Freedom must be fortified with and informed public opinion; 3. There are too many government-paid press agents; 4. The government is infiltrating the field of journalism; and 5. There is too much brainwashing, such as advertising.

Emmerich said he believes freedom will win over socialism. But he warned against conformity, saying it is the first cousin of regimentation.

He told the press women they have "more influence with the advancement of this nation than you could possibly conceive of. If we can maintain our freedom for the generation that follows us, there is no way of measuring the advancement that is ahead."

Earlier Friday, the Texas Federation of Press Women won a plaque for having the largest number of winners—17—in the annual writers contest entered by 775 women from 26 states.

Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge (La.) Morning Advocate, won the federation's highest honor—"1958 Press Woman of Achievement"—for her work in bringing about reform and improvement in the operation of state institutions.

Mrs. Dixon is recognized throughout the South as a top-notch political reporter and newspaperwoman.

After the convention closed, the 250 delegates began a three-day tour of Vicksburg, Natchez and the Gulf Coast.

Rep. Coya Knutson Defends Assistant

By CLYDE DONALDSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP) — Rep. Coya Knutson (D - Minn.), who resisted her husband's pleas to step out of politics, Saturday rose to the defense of her handsome administrative assistant, Bill Kjeldahl.

Mrs. Knutson denied her relationship with Kjeldahl was anything but "purely a business one."

Knutson, 46, a hotel operator at Oklee, Minn., asked his wife last Wednesday to choose between politics and her home. Later, he amended his statement to say he wouldn't mind if she sought re-election provided she got rid of the boyish-looking Kjeldahl.

Mrs. Knutson, who had remained in seclusion in Minnesota's 9th Congressional District since her husband issued his original statement, last Wednesday, appeared for an interview without Kjeldahl early today.

When asked if she would dismiss Kjeldahl, Mrs. Knutson replied:

"Bill is very capable and highly trained and I don't fire good people."

Aide Defends Position

Referring to her relationship with Kjeldahl, Mrs. Knutson said. "This won't be any Bing Crosby deal." It was an apparent reference to the crooner's marriage to a much younger woman. Mrs. Knutson is 43, and Kjeldahl about 29.

In a separate interview, Kjeldahl denied his relationship with the congresswoman was anything more than professional. Although not engaged, Kjeldahl said he does have a girl friend whom he introduced to his parents recently.

Kjeldahl said he always found Knutson likeable. "I like him even if he doesn't like me," Kjeldahl said.

Friday night, Mrs. Knutson resisted her husband's plea to patch up their home and announced she would seek re-election to Congress.

"I absolutely will run for Congress," the honey - blonde Mrs. Knutson said, "and I am confident I will be re-elected because I have done a good job."

There was no immediate statement from Knutson, who was unavailable, about his wife's re-election plans.

Call Rift "Politics"

Asked at the interview why her husband had issued his original statement, Mrs. Knutson laughed. Turning to John Michaels of Breckenridge, Minn., Mrs. Knutson said, "You answer that, John."

Michaels, Democratic chairman of Mrs. Knutson's congressional district, said: "Family life doesn't have as much to do with this as politics."

The congresswoman said that as far as she knew there was no rift between Knutson and her.

"I am amazed that anybody can be interested in this," she said. "I'm just trying to do my job."

Mrs. Knutson declined to answer questioning pertaining to her private life and, at one point, walked out of the room obviously irritated. Her son, Terry, 18, who was with her, refused to take sides in the dispute.

Texas Pianist Ends Russian Concert Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Van Cliburn, the stringbean Texas pianist, returned from a concert road tour in Russia today and got an armload of flowers from a group of Moscow maidens who greeted him at the railroad station.

He said he was bushed but happy and headed straight for bed. Cliburn looked thinner than when he left here after his triumph at the international piano competition.

He enjoyed himself so on the trip, he said, he plans to return here in August or September for a combination vacation - concert trip.

Of his last few days in the Soviet Union, he said:

"They've been rough and tough but lots of fun. I am so exhausted that I thought I would die — but it's a good way to die."

He leaves Moscow for New York Thursday. He will play a public concert here Wednesday and has a long recording session scheduled for tomorrow.

Cliburn said he was warmly received everywhere he went in Russia.

"They couldn't do enough for me," he said, "the only trouble was that no one would let me rest. When I wasn't playing I was talking. They wanted to know everything about me and about the United States."

Asked how much rest he expected to get when he comes back at the end of summer, he hugged one of the girl musicians and said:

Texas Pianist Ends Russian Concert Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Van Cliburn, the stringbean Texas pianist, returned from a concert road tour in Russia today and got an armload of flowers from a group of Moscow maidens who greeted him at the railroad station.

He said he was bushed but happy and headed straight for bed. Cliburn looked thinner than when he left here after his triumph at the international piano competition.

He enjoyed himself so on the trip, he said, he plans to return here in August or September for a combination vacation - concert trip.

Of his last few days in the Soviet Union, he said:

"They've been rough and tough but lots of fun. I am so exhausted that I thought I would die — but it's a good way to die."

He leaves Moscow for New York Thursday. He will play a public concert here Wednesday and has a long recording session scheduled for tomorrow.

Cliburn said he was warmly received everywhere he went in Russia.

"They couldn't do enough for me," he said, "the only trouble was that no one would let me rest. When I wasn't playing I was talking. They wanted to know everything about me and about the United States."

Asked how much rest he expected to get when he comes back at the end of summer, he hugged one of the girl musicians and said:

Pat Blanchard Wins 'Miss BR'

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Shapely Pat Blanchard last night was crowned "Miss Baton Rouge of 1958."

The young beauty previously had won titles for "best talent" and "Miss Congeniality." She will represent Baton Rouge in the "Miss Louisiana" contest at Lake Providence.

Runner-up who will represent Baton Rouge in the festival of five flags at Pensacola, Fla., was Miss Darlene Dougherty. Miss Mary Margaret Loblanco was next and will represent the city in the Holiday in Dixie pageant at Shreveport.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The golfing Nash family of Monroe is certainly getting the well-fed lion's share of links trophies being passed out around here lately.

Son Roy, the 20-year-old Louisiana Tech captain, collected the big one when he won the Louisiana Amateur title two weeks ago. His mother, Mrs. Dot Nash, collected the Twin City Ladies championship Friday, and his dad, Clyde Nash, is making plans now to defend his Municipal Amateur throne next Sunday at Municipal Golf Club.

Roy is considered "slow and deliberate" on the links, Mrs. Nash is steady, plays a lot of golf with her son and consistently tries to speed him up—no success. Clyde is the pressure player of the family and giving every match all he's worth.

When photographers were posing Roy for his picture after the state amateur the youngster informed: "You know this tournament isn't over yet? There are about four more to be heard from."

"Aw, you got it in the bag, they can't catch you," Nash was told.

His answer: "You don't know my old man (one of the four still out). He may be five down and then start shooting nothing but two's down the backside,"

In this case, Clyde didn't shoot that string of two's and son Roy's championship photo was acceptable.

Two Monroe athletes, one time teammates at Neville High School, opened the current baseball season against each other as their respective Eastern League clubs met—Fred Frickie, first baseman with the Reading, Pa., Red Sox, and Billy Hardy, second sacker for Allentown, Pa., Indians.

Frickie was the star of the game as his home run fired a 4-run inning for Reading in a 4-0 victory. Both Frickie and Hardy showed 1-for-3 in the opener.

At the rate Joe Cage, the splendid sophomore of Neville High, is going with his javelin, he could be a future Olympics performer—if he keeps adding distance. He can certainly get the chance between now and the completion of a college career.

An all-around athlete at Neville, young Joe was winning athletic fame with his javelin as a freshman. A week ago he won the state Class AA meet with throw of 202 feet and eight inches, topping all previous Louisiana prep marks in any class.

Friday, in the Southern AAU's meet at Louisiana Tech, this Neville youngster was at his best to beat collegiate opposition and win with a throw of 206 feet and three inches. Just keep your eye on Joe Cage for the next few years. He can be doing wonders with the spear.

Old Cotton States League baseball fans are following with interest the achievements of Jim Davenport with the San Francisco Giants. Davenport has been grabbing headlines as a rookie with a big hand in the Giants' early season National League success.

Jim was a popular player here—as popular as an opponent can get—when he was showing against Ed Head's Monroe Sports as third baseman for the El Dorado Oilers in 1955, the last year of Cotton States operation.

Monroe and El Dorado fought it out in the playoff-finals for the league championship that year. Monroe was the series winner in seven games, but Davenport, whose homers have been counting on the coast, hit home runs in the fifth and sixth games of the final series, the first helping El Dorado to a 3-0 win, and the second was not enough as Monroe won 3-2 on Roy Mantle's homer in the eleventh to set up the seventh game clincher won by Monroe, 1-0, on the four-hit pitching of Jim Bronstad.

Tulane Tennis Team Captures Title As Usual

NEW ORLEANS, May 10—UP—The stalwart tennis champion of the Southeastern Conference, Tulane University, captured the SEC crown for 1958 by winning three singles matches today.

The Tulane netters needed only one singles match to clinch the title they have held consistently for the past 16 years.

The Tulane netmen tied Tennessee for first place in 1950 and they have held the title as undisputed SEC champs since 1942.

The victory today was cinched for the Green Wave when Elliott Bell of Tulane defeated Buddy Gomez of LSU 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 4 division, and Carl Goodman of Tulane downed Jim Roberts of LSU 8-6, 6-3 in the No. 6 division.

Tulane's Davis Cupper, Ron Holmberg, defeated Ben Neely of Georgia Tech 6-3, 6-3 in the No. 1 singles match.

John Robinson of LSU downed Austin Robertson of Tulane in the No. 5 division, 6-3, 9-7.

The Nos. 2 and 3 singles and the first, second and third division doubles were scheduled to be played this afternoon on the Tulane courts.

In the freshman No. 1 singles, Larry Caton of Tulane defeated Julian Carr of Vanderbilt in the finals 6-3, 6-2.

In the No. 2 freshman singles division, Roy Lang of Florida sank John McCuaig of Mississippi State 7-5, 6-2.

Ekaba Scores Golden Gate Upset Victory

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Ekaba, comparative outsider in a field of seven of the West's top handicap horses, raced to a neck victory over favored Social Climber Saturday in the $50,000 Golden Gate Handicap at Golden Gate Fields.

The winner's time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:47 2-5, only 3-5 of a second off the world record established by Noor at this same track on June 17, 1950.

Ekaba, ridden by Peter Moreno, laid close to the bristling pace set by Barbarian. At the stretch turn, Ekaba moved abreast of Barbarian a did the 8-5 favorite Social Climber.

In the run for home, Ekaba, a 4-year-old chestnut colt, proved to much for Social Climber, conqueror of Round Table last year.

The handicap victory was worth $25,000 to the Agoura Stock Farm.

Social Climber, ridden by Ralph Neves and owned by Llangollen Farms, collected $10,000. The show purse for Eddie Schmidt was worth $8,000 and Barbarian picked up $4,000.

Ekaba returned $21.80, $7.70 and $3.70. Social Climber paid $3.70 and $2.70 and Eddie Schmidt $2.80.

Tech First In SAAU; Styrons Spark Tribe

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech poled up a team total of 146 points to capture the 65th annual Southern Amateur Athletic Union senior track meet held at Louisiana Tech Stadium here Saturday afternoon.

Second place went to Northeast State of Monroe with 124 points and McNeese State of Lake Charles claimed third with 68. Markers other scoring included; Shreveport Athletic Club, 20; Northwestern Louisiana, 18; and Brooks Army Medical Center 14. A number of unattached athletes also participated in the meet.

Two new SAAU records were set and another tied during the afternoon.

Don Styron of Northeast State topped the 220 low hurdles in 2.8 seconds to break the old mark of 24.1.

Hurdler Joel Thomas of Louisiana Tech covered the 120 high hurdles in 14.4 seconds to tie the old record.

The Styron twins of Northeast State, Don and Dave, collected over half of Northeast's points as the brothers from Colorado amassed 64 points between them. Dave won both dashes and a third in the broad jump. Don won in the low hurdles and both Dave and Don shared in winning the mile relay.

Coach Lou Hartzog beamed with pride over the performance of his Northeast club, calling it "a tremendous job." Northeast entered a 12-man team, and the limited entries hurt the Tribe in missing valuable fourth and fifth place points.

Chisox Pin 5-4 Loss On Indians

CHICAGO (AP) — Nellie Fox singled across the winning run in the eighth after towering Ron Jackson drove in three runs with a double and a homer to give Chicago's Dick Donovan his first triumph, 5-4 over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Donovan although hit in the back of the head in the eighth by a ball pitched by Tribe reliever and loser, Don Mossi, registered his first complete game and scattered seven hits.

A 16-6 performer for the White Sox last season, Dovan had been beaten three times in four previous starts this year.

With one out in the Sox eighth, Chico Carrasquel bobbled Bubba Phillips' grounder. Donovan was conked by a Mossi pitch. Although he was flattened he got to his feet and was able to take first base. After Luis Aparicio flied out, Fox slammed his third hit, a single to left, scoring Phillips from second.

Don Ferrarese started for Cleveland, but yielded to Mossi at the start of the sixth after giving up six of Chicago's 10 hits.

The White Sox tied it 3-3 in the fifth with three runs on three rattling doubles after two were out.

Fox hammered a double to the left field wall and scored on Al Smith's ground-rule double which caromed off the roof of the bullpen in center. Sherm Lollar walked. Smith and Lollar raced across when Jackson's drive bounced off the right field wall for a double.

Donovan started shakily, yielding a single to Bill Harrell and a triple to Bobby Avila, first two men to face him, for a 1-0 Cleveland lead in the first.

Cleveland went ahead 3-0 in the fourth on singles by Roger Maris, Rocky Colavito and Dick Brown, and Donovan's interference with a base runner between third and home on a double steal attempt. Donovan bumped Gary Geiger, who reached base on a fielder's choice, and the Sox pitcher was charged with an error and Geiger credited with a run although tagged out.

After Jackson's second homer of the season with none on and two out in the seventh gave Chicago a 4-3 lead, Cleveland tied in the eighth with an unearned run. Pinch hitter Preston Ward led off with a double, took third on a sacrifice and scored when Fox dropped Minnie Minoso's pop in short right.

Andrews Has Easy Javelin Defense--187

DES MOINES—Denny Andrews of North Texas State defended his javelin championship successfully at the 48th annual Missouri Valley Conference track meet Saturday as his teammates dominated the qualifying rounds in the dashes.

Andrews won his event with a toss of 187 feet, 2½ inches, about 13½ feet short of the Valley record he set last year. His toss was about 7 feet beyond the distance of the second place winner, Ronnie Morris of Tulsa.

North Texas won both heats in three of the four qualifying events held, the 100-yard, 440-yard and the 220-yard dashes. The Texans placed 10 men in the dashes and hurdles finals.

Houston placed six men, Bradley three, Wichita two, and Drake, Cincinnati and Tulsa one each.

Jack Smyth of Houston won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet, 10 inches, more than two feet short of the Valley record.

With the broad jump and javelin completed, Drake led the field with eight points, North Texas and Houston had five points, Bradley, Tulsa and Wichita four, and Cincinnati was the only team that didn't score.

Andrews and Marlow Eckhoff of the host Drake team both were back to defend Valley records. Eckhoff, who set the meet discus mark last year with a toss of 156 feet, 11½ inches, will try for his third straight title.

Frosh Ruled Off League's Varsity Clubs

DES MOINES (UP)—The Missouri Valley Conference announced Saturday that freshmen will be banned from varsity sports at its eight member schools beginning next year.

The conference for several years has permitted its schools to use freshmen in baseball, tennis, golf, track and cross country, but most of the members didn't do so.

A spokesman said the change was made to bring the valley rules into conformity with the NCAA regulations.

The conference faculty representatives and athletic directors met here Thursday and Friday in connection with the 48th annual valley track meet at Drake University.

Dr. James Sours, faculty representative from Wichita, was named president of the conference replacing Dr. George Small of Tulsa. Dean Ralph Bursiek of Cincinnati was named vice president, succeeding Sours.

The representatives also renamed the all sports trophy, awarded each year to an outstanding Missouri Valley athlete, the "Arthur E. Eilers Memorial Trophy." Eilers died March 1 after retiring from the conference which he headed for 25 years as executive secretary and later as commissioner.

Valley football coaches completed schedules through 1961 and the basketball coaches completed schedules through the 1959-60 season.

ADMIRAL VEE 2ND

Oh Johnny Cops Grey Lag Purse

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Oh Johnny poured on the presure in a torrid stretch drive Saturday and just made it in the final strides to defeat Admiral Vee by a head in the $59,000 Grey Lag Handicap at Jamaica.

With Texan Bill Boland in the driver's seat, Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's 5-year-old stakes star proved best over a dozen other handicap aces on the final program of Jamaica's 38-day spring meeting. The horses move to Belmont Park Monday.

The bay son of Johns Joy-Saracen Flirt came from seventh place to score one of his greatest victories on one of his favorite tracks. Four of his seven stakes victories have been won at Jamaica.

Boland had to take him around several horses on the turn to get clear sailing for the stretch run. With Admiral Vee leading by three lengths and only an eighth of a mile to travel, it looked as if he'd never make it in time.

Admiral Vee, property of Edward Seinfeld, took second money by two lengths over Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Promised Land. The latter nosed out C. T. Chenery's Third Brother for the show spot.

A crowd of 39,025 established Promised Land and his stablemate Paper Tiger the 3-1 favorites. But Jockey Ismael Valenzuela, who won the Kentucky Derby last week aboard Tim Tam, could not get Promised Land into the winner's circle this time.

The Happy Hill Farm's Kingmaker, who won the race last year in track record time of 1:48 1-5 for the mile and one eighth, had the great Eddie Arcaro aboard but got into trouble and wound up 13th and last. Arcaro was crowded at the half mile pole and was forced to take up. After losing much ground, he didn't press his mount.

Oh Johnny earned a purse of $37,750 and boosted his total winnings to $294,602.

Rather neglected in the betting after finishing fourth in the Lincoln Special last month, Oh Johnny paid $13.80, $8.20 and $5.00. Admiral Vee returned $36.70 and $15.00 and Promised Land $3.20 to show.

Promise Land carried top weight of 125 pounds, two more than Kingmaker, while Oh Johnny had 119 and Admiral Vee 118. The time was 1:50 flat.

Miami's Shrine Game Scheduled On December 27

MIAMI , Fla., (AP)—The Shrine's annual North-South College All-Star football game—long a Christmas night feature in the Orange Bowl—will be played this year on Saturday night, Dec. 27.

Game Chairman I. D. Smith said Saturday the change was made in an effort to build up attendance, which has been disappointing at previous games, ranging between 33,000 and 45,000.

"We feel that by playing it on Saturday night after Christmas, the attendance will increase," Smith said.

"Everybody in the Shrine is moving 100 per cent behind the ticket sale in an effort to bring the attendance up to that of the East-West Shrine Game in California, which draws more than 60,000."

AIM AT QUALIFYING

36 Drivers After 33 Speedway Berths

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The dangerous business of cutting 36 entries down to 33 starters in the 42nd 500-mile race May 30 will start Saturday at the huge Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Coveted front row starting spots will be at stake in the first of four qualifying sessions and upwards of 75,000 auto racing enthusiasts will turn out to applaud the pole winner.

Pat O'Connor of North Vernon, Ind., a handsome young Irishman who excels on the high - banked smaller tracks, won the pole (inside spot on the three-car front row) last year. He led the first five laps of the race, but Sam Hanks won in a radical new George Salih creation at a record 135.601 miles an hour.

O'Connor again is a possible front row starter in the same car. It has had a $4,500 "tuneup" and probably is faster. Hanks now is the speedway director of racing and his car will be driven by Jimmy Bryan of Phoenix, the national big car champion three of the last four years.

Bryan won the first 500-mile race on the high-banked Monza, Italy, track last year with a sizzling 160.06 mile an hour average. Indianapolis turns are much flatter and nobody ever has hit 150 miles an hour—a lap in one minute flat. Somebody might this weekend.

Some of the drivers think it will take an average of 142 miles an hour to qualify. The quality of the entries is so high, including a dozen new or completely revamped cars, that qualifiers will have to run flat out—or as close to it as they can and keep their cars on the track.

With a hard concrete wall around the track, staying on the bricks and asphalt is a pretty sound practice. Keith Andrews didn't in a practice run last year and became the 47th fatality since the track was opened in 1909.

Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, five - times world champion, has adapted quickly in his first experience on a closed-circuit, all-left-turn track, but is not believed experienced enough at this speedway to be among the faster qualifiers.

The American heavy - footed drivers with fast new or rebuilt cars include Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., in a new Epperly that looks much like Hanks' winner; Jimmy Daywalt of Indianapolis in a new Watson; Johnny Thompson of Boyertown, Pa., in a radical new Kurtis-Kraft, and George Amick of Venice, Calif., in an extremely low-slung Kuzma.

Amick, like Fangio, hopes to get into the starting line-up for the first time. At 48, Joe Giba of Denver also is a rookie at the track and the veteran midget car racer has looked so good he probably will qualify.

A truckload of special prizes go to the pole car driver, but the No. 1 car in the line-up has won only six of the 42 Memorial Day classics. Pat Flaherty was the last in 1956 when he set qualifying records of 146.056 for one 2½-mile lap and 145.596 for the 10 miles. The marks stood last year when the maximum engine size was cut from 270 to 255 cubic inches.

Flaherty suffered a severe arm injury in a 1956 race at Springfield, Ill., and will miss the 500 for the second straight year. He was nominated to drive this year but was turned down by theSpeedway medical staff.

Johnny Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., 1950 winner, may be the only former Indianapolis champion in the field. Troy Ruttman of La Mirada, Calif., 1952 winner, was named to drive a new Agajanian Special Kuzma but he underwent an abdominal operation April 4th. He is working out at the track but his status is uncertain.

The time trials will continue Sunday and the following week end.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The golfing Nash family of Monroe is certainly getting the well-fed lion's share of links trophies being passed out around here lately.

Son Roy, the 20-year-old Louisiana Tech captain, collected the big one when he won the Louisiana Amateur title two weeks ago. His mother, Mrs. Dot Nash, collected the Twin City Ladies championship Friday, and his dad, Clyde Nash, is making plans now to defend his Municipal Amateur throne next Sunday at Municipal Golf Club.

Roy is considered "slow and deliberate" on the links, Mrs. Nash is steady, plays a lot of golf with her son and consistently tries to speed him up—no success. Clyde is the pressure player of the family and giving every match all he's worth.

When photographers were posing Roy for his picture after the state amateur the youngster informed: "You know this tournament isn't over yet? There are about four more to be heard from."

"Aw, you got it in the bag, they can't catch you," Nash was told.

His answer: "You don't know my old man (one of the four still out). He may be five down and then start shooting nothing but two's down the backside,"

In this case, Clyde didn't shoot that string of two's and son Roy's championship photo was acceptable.

Two Monroe athletes, one time teammates at Neville High School, opened the current baseball season against each other as their respective Eastern League clubs met—Fred Frickie, first baseman with the Reading, Pa., Red Sox, and Billy Hardy, second sacker for Allentown, Pa., Indians.

Frickie was the star of the game as his home run fired a 4-run inning for Reading in a 4-0 victory. Both Frickie and Hardy showed 1-for-3 in the opener.

At the rate Joe Cage, the splendid sophomore of Neville High, is going with his javelin, he could be a future Olympics performer—if he keeps adding distance. He can certainly get the chance between now and the completion of a college career.

An all-around athlete at Neville, young Joe was winning athletic fame with his javelin as a freshman. A week ago he won the state Class AA meet with throw of 202 feet and eight inches, topping all previous Louisiana prep marks in any class.

Friday, in the Southern AAU's meet at Louisiana Tech, this Neville youngster was at his best to beat collegiate opposition and win with a throw of 206 feet and three inches. Just keep your eye on Joe Cage for the next few years. He can be doing wonders with the spear.

Old Cotton States League baseball fans are following with interest the achievements of Jim Davenport with the San Francisco Giants. Davenport has been grabbing headlines as a rookie with a big hand in the Giants' early season National League success.

Jim was a popular player here—as popular as an opponent can get—when he was showing against Ed Head's Monroe Sports as third baseman for the El Dorado Oilers in 1955, the last year of Cotton States operation.

Monroe and El Dorado fought it out in the playoff finals for the league championship that year. Monroe was the series winner in seven games, but Davenport, whose homers have been counting on the coast, hit home runs in the fifth and sixth games of the final series, the first helping El Dorado to a 3-0 win, and the second was not enough as Monroe won 3-2 on Roy Mantle's homer in the eleventh to set up the seventh game clincher won by Monroe, 1-0, on the four-hit pitching of Jim Bronstad.

Tulane Tennis Team Captures Title As Usual

NEW ORLEANS, May 10—UP—The stalwart tennis champion of the Southeastern Conference, Tulane University, captured the SEC crown for 1958 by winning three singles matches today.

The Tulane netters needed only one singles match to clinch the title they have held consistently for the past 16 years.

The Tulane netmen tied Tennessee for first place in 1950 and they have held the title as undisputed SEC champs since 1942.

The victory today was cinched for the Green Wave when Elliott Bell of Tulane defeated Buddy Gomez of LSU 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 4 division, and Carl Goodman of Tulane downed Jim Roberts of LSU 8-6, 6-3 in the No. 6 division.

Tulane's Davis Cupper, Ron Holmberg, defeated Ben Neely of Georgia Tech 6-3, 6-3 in the No. 1 singles match.

John Robinson of LSU downed Austin Robertson of Tulane in the No. 5 division, 6-3, 9-7.

The Nos. 2 and 3 singles and the first, second and third division doubles were scheduled to be played this afternoon on the Tulane courts.

In the freshman No. 1 singles, Larry Caton of Tulane defeated Julian Carr of Vanderbilt in the finals 6-3, 6-2.

In the No. 2 freshman singles division, Roy Lang of Florida sank John McCuaig of Mississippi State 7-5, 6-2.

Ekaba Scores Golden Gate Upset Victory

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Ekaba, comparative outsider in a field of seven of the West's top handicap horses, raced to a neck victory over favored Social Climber Saturday in the $50,000 Golden Gate Handicap at Golden Gate Fields.

The winner's time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:47 2-5, only 3-5 of a second off the world record established by Noor at this same track on June 17, 1950.

Ekaba, ridden by Peter Moreno, laid close to the bristling pace set by Barbarian. At the stretch turn, Ekaba moved abreast of Barbarian a did the 8-5 favorite Social Climber.

In the run for home, Ekaba, a 4-year-old chestnut colt, proved to much for Social Climber, conqueror of Round Table last year.

The handicap victory was worth $25,000 to the Agoura Stock Farm.

Social Climber, ridden by Ralph Neves and owned by Llangollen Farms, collected $10,000. The show purse for Eddie Schmidt was worth $8,000 and Barbarian picked up $4,000.

Ekaba returned $21.80, $7.70 and $3.70. Social Climber paid $3.70 and $2.70 and Eddie Schmidt $2.80.

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech poled up a team total of 146 points to capture the 65th annual Southern Amateur Athletic Union senior track meet held at Louisiana Tech Stadium here Saturday afternoon.

Second place went to Northeast State of Monroe with 124 points and McNeese State of Lake Charles claimed third with 68. Markers other scoring included: Shreveport Athletic Club, 20; Northwestern Louisiana, 13; and Brooks Army Medical Center 14. A number of unattached athletes also participated in the meet.

Two new SAAU records were set and another tied during the afternoon.

Don Styron of Northeast State topped the 220 low hurdles in 2.8 seconds to break the old mark of 24.1.

Hurdler Joel Thomas of Louisiana Tech covered the 120 high hurdles in 14.4 seconds to tie the old record.

Coach Lou Hartzog beamed with pride over the performance of his Northeast club, calling it "a tremendous job." Northeast entered a 12-man team, and the limited entries hurt the Tribe in missing valuable fourth and fifth place points.

FOX SOCKS PAYOFF

Chisox Pin 5-4 Loss On Indians

CHICAGO (AP) — Nellie Fox singled across the winning run in the eighth after towering Ron Jackson drove in three runs with a double and a homer to give Chicago's Dick Donovan his first triumph, 5-4 over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Donovan although hit in the back of the head in the eighth by a ball pitched by Tribe reliever and loser, Don Mossi, registered his first complete game and scattered seven hits.

A 16-6 performer for the White Sox last season, Dovan had been beaten three times in four previous starts this year.

With one out in the Sox eighth, Chico Carrasquel bobbled Bubba Phillips' grounder. Donovan was conked by a Mossi pitch. Although he was flattened he got to his feet and was able to take first base. After Luis Aparicio flied out, Fox slammed his third hit, a single to left, scoring Phillips from second.

Don Ferrarese started for Cleveland, but yielded to Mossi at the start of the sixth after giving up six of Chicago's 10 hits.

The White Sox tied it 3-3 in the fifth with three runs on three rattling doubles after two were out.

Fox hammered a double to the left field wall and scored on Al Smith's ground-rule double which caromed off the roof of the bullpen in center. Sherm Lollar walked. Smith and Lollar raced across when Jackson's drive bounced off the right field wall for a double.

Donovan started shakily, yielding a single to Bill Harrell and a triple to Bobby Avila, first two men to face him, for a 1-0 Cleveland lead in the first.

Cleveland went ahead 3-0 in the fourth on singles by Roger Maris, Rocky Colavito and Dick Brown, and Donovan's interference with a base runner between third and home on a double steal attempt. Donovan bumped Gary Geiger, who reached base on a fielder's choice, and the Sox pitcher was charged with an error and Geiger credited with a run although tagged out.

After Jackson's second homer of the season with none on and two out in the seventh gave Chicago a 4-3 lead, Cleveland tied in the eighth with an unearned run. Pinch hitter Preston Ward led off with a double, took third on a sacrifice and scored when Fox dropped Minnie Minoso's pop in short right.

Andrews Has Easy Javelin Defense--187

DES MOINES—Denny Andrews of North Texas State defended his javelin championship successfully at the 48th annual Missouri Valley Conference track meet Saturday as his teammates dominated the qualifying rounds in the dashes.

Andrews won his event with a toss of 187 feet, 2½ inches, about 13½ feet short of the Valley record he set last year. His toss was about 7 feet beyond the distance of the second place winner, Ronnie Morris of Tulsa.

North Texas won both heats in three of the four qualifying events held, the 100-yard, 440-yard and the 220-yard dashes. The Texans placed 10 men in the dashes and hurdles finals.

Houston placed six men, Bradley three, Wichita two, and Drake, Cincinnati and Tulsa one each.

Jack Smyth of Houston won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet, 10 inches, more than two feet short of the Valley record.

With the broad jump and javelin completed, Drake led the field with eight points, North Texas and Houston had five points, Bradley, Tulsa and Wichita four, and Cincinnati was the only team that didn't score.

Andrews and Marlow Eckhoff of the host Drake team both were back to defend Valley records. Eckhoff, who set the meet discus mark last year with a toss of 156 feet, 11½ inches, will try for his third straight title.

Frosh Ruled Off League's Varsity Clubs

DES MOINES (UP)—The Missouri Valley Conference announced Saturday that freshmen will be banned from varsity sports at its eight member schools beginning next year.

The conference for several years has permitted its schools to use freshmen in baseball, tennis, golf, track and cross country, but most of the members didn't do so.

A spokesman said the change was made to bring the valley rules into conformity with the NCAA regulations.

The conference faculty representatives and athletic directors met here Thursday and Friday in connection with the 48th annual valley track meet at Drake University.

Dr. James Sours, faculty representative from Wichita, was named president of the conference replacing Dr. George Small of Tulsa. Dean Ralph Bursiek of Cincinnati was named vice president, succeeding Sours.

The representatives also renamed the all sports trophy, awarded each year to an outstanding Missouri Valley athlete, the "Arthur E. Eilers Memorial Trophy." Eilers died March 1 after retiring from the conference which he headed for 25 years as executive secretary and later as commissioner.

Valley football coaches completed schedules through 1961 and the basketball coaches completed schedules through the 1959-60 season.

ADMIRAL VEE 2ND

Oh Johnny Cops Grey Lag Purse

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Oh Johnny poured on the presure in a torrid stretch drive Saturday and just made it in the final strides to defeat Admiral Vee by a head in the $59,000 Grey Lag Handicap at Jamaica.

With Texan Bill Boland in the driver's seat, Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's 5-year-old stakes star proved best over a dozen other handicap aces on the final program of Jamaica's 38-day spring meeting. The horses move to Belmont Park Monday.

The bay son of Johns Joy-Saracen Flirt came from seventh place to score one of his greatest victories on one of his favorite tracks. Four of his seven stakes victories have been won at Jamaica.

Boland had to take him around several horses on the turn to get clear sailing for the stretch run.

With Admiral Vee leading by three lengths and only an eighth of a mile to travel, it looked as if he'd never make it in time.

Admiral Vee, property of Edward Seinfeld, took second money by two lengths over Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Promised Land. The latter nosed out C. T. Chenery's Third Brother for the show spot.

A crowd of 39,025 established Promised Land and his stablemate Paper Tiger the 3-1 favorites. But Jockey Ismael Valenzuela, who won the Kentucky Derby last week aboard Tim Tam, could not get Promised Land into the winner's circle this time.

The Happy Hill Farm's Kingmaker, who won the race last year in track record time of 1:48 1-5 for the mile and one eighth, had the great Eddie Arcaro aboard but got into trouble and wound up 13th and last. Arcaro was crowded at the half mile pole and was forced to take up. After losing much ground, he didn't press his mount.

Oh Johnny earned a purse of $37,750 and boosted his total winnings to $294,602.

Rather neglected in the betting after finishing fourth in the Lincoln Special last month, Oh Johnny paid $13.80, $8.20 and $5.00. Admiral Vee returned $36.70 and $15.00 and Promised Land $3.20 to show.

Promise Land carried top weight of 125 pounds, two more than Kingmaker, while Oh Johnny had 119 and Admiral Vee 118. The time was 1:50 flat.

Miami's Shrine Game Scheduled On December 27

MIAMI, Fla., (AP)—The Shrine's annual North-South College All-Star football game—long a Christmas night feature in the Orange Bowl—will be played this year on Saturday night, Dec. 27.

Game Chairman I. D. Smith said Saturday the change was made in an effort to build up attendance, which has been disappointing at previous games, ranging between 33,000 and 45,000.

"We feel that by playing it on Saturday night after Christmas, the attendance will increase," Smith said.

"Everybody in the Shrine is moving 100 per cent behind the ticket sale in an effort to bring the attendance up to that of the East-West Shrine Game in California, which draws more than 60,000."

AIM AT QUALIFYING

36 Drivers After 33 Speedway Berths

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The dangerous business of cutting 36 entries down to 33 starters in the 42nd 500-mile race May 30 will start Saturday at the huge Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Coveted front row starting spots will be at stake in the first of four qualifying sessions and upwards of 75,000 auto racing enthusiasts will turn out to applaud the pole winner.

Pat O'Connor of North Vernon, Ind., a handsome young Irishman who excels on the high - banked smaller tracks, won the pole (inside spot on the three-car front row) last year. He led the first five laps of the race, but Sam Hanks won in a radical new George Salih creation at a record 135.601 miles an hour.

O'Connor again is a possible front row starter in the same car. It has had a $4,500 "tuneup" and probably is faster. Hanks now is the speedway director of racing and his car will be driven by Jimmy Bryan of Phoenix, the national big car champion three of the last four years.

Bryan won the first 500-mile race on the high-banked Monza, Italy, track last year with a sizzling 160.06 mile an hour average. Indianapolis turns are much flatter and nobody ever has hit 150 miles an hour—a lap in one minute flat. Somebody might this weekend.

Some of the drivers think it will take an average of 142 miles an hour to qualify. The quality of the entries is so high, including a dozen new or completely revamped cars, that qualifiers will have to run flat out—or as close to it as they can and keep their cars on the track.

With a hard concrete wall around the track, staying on the bricks and asphalt is a pretty sound practice. Keith Andrews didn't in a practice run last year and became the 47th fatality since the track was opened in 1909.

Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, five - times world champion, has adapted quickly in his first experience on a closed-circuit, left-turn track, but is not believed experienced enough at this speedway to be among the faster qualifiers.

The American heavy - footed drivers with fast new or rebuilt cars include Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., in a new Epperly that looks much like Hanks' winner; Jimmy Daywalt of Indianapolis in a new Watson; Johnny Thompson of Boyertown, Pa., in a radical new Kurtis-Kraft, and George Amick of Venice, Calif., in an extremely low-slung Kuzma.

Amick, like Fangio, hopes to get into the starting line-up for the first time. At 48, Joe Giba of Denver also is a rookie at the track and the veteran midget car racer has looked so good he probably will qualify.

A truckload of special prizes go to the pole car driver, but the No. 1 car in the line-up has won only six of the 42 Memorial Day classics. Pat Flaherty was the last in 1956 when he set qualifying records of 146.056 for one 2½-mile lap and 145.596 for the 10 miles. The marks stood last year when the maximum engine size was cut from 270 to 255 cubic inches.

Flaherty suffered a severe arm injury in a 1956 race at Springfield, Ill., and will miss the 500 for the second straight year. He was nominated to drive this year but was turned down by theSpeedway medical staff.

Johnny Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., 1950 winner, may be the only former Indianapolis champion in the field. Troy Ruttman of La Mirada, Calif., 1952 winner, was named to drive a new Agajanian Special Kuzma but he underwent an abdominal operation April 4th. He is working out at the track but his status is uncertain.

The time trials will continue Sunday and the following week end.

Southwest's 'Gag Rule' Laxity Costs SMU Year

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Trouble stacked up for Southern Methodist today when the Southwest Conference invoked its "gag rule" and handed the university a year's probation for angry statements of athletic officials over officiating at the SMU-Texas A&M basketball game last March.

It was the second probation to be placed on the school this year. The NCAA April 21 passed a year's penalty on SMU for its recruiting tactics in football, holding that it gave athlete Glynn Gregory a summer job for which ne was not qualified.

But the new probation really hurt. While the NCAA probation allowed Southern Methodist to participate in championships and post-season playoffs in all sports, the conference's ruling prohibited SMU from competing in any post-season basketball. SMU has been in the NCAA playoffs three of the past four years. Other sports at SMU are not affected by the ruling.

The probation for violating the "gag rule," which was passed in December 1949 to prevent any school criticizing officiating at a sports contest in the press, came because of hot statements by Athletic Director Matty Bell and basketball Coach Doc Hayes in criticism of a "goal tending" ruling by Referee Dan Watson that gave Texas A&M victory.

The SMU-A&M game wound up in near riotous conditions and there had been speculation that the school might also be penalized for failing to properly handle the crowd. But Commissioner Howard Grubbs said only the critical comment on the officiating was involved.

It was stressed that Watson had nothing to do with the ruling.

The conference also handed another jolt to SMU athletics—it approved the NAACP probation. Grubbs explained that the NCAA action had come on additional information in the Gregory Case. The conference had reprimanded SMU for its recruiting tactics but that involved only the method of transportation used in bringing athletes to the campus. The NCAA had delved into the summer job given Gregory in the oil fields by a SMU alumnus.

Southern Methodist's troubles consumed most of the time of the spring meeting of the faculty committee, which lasted from Friday afternoon until noon Saturday.

No action was taken on a proposal to raise scholastic standards for athletes. The committee talked about a "qualitative" requirement to go with the quantitative a certain number of hours work) but decided it didn't have sufficient information on the grades now being made by the athletes to pass a rule. Consideration of the proposal was put off until the December meeting of the conference.

Texas A&M was awarded the conference track, golf and tennis meets for 1949.

ROOKIE LEADS

'Frisco Shades Dodgers, 3 To 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Still another rookie, outfielder Don Taussig, joined the San Francisco parade Saturday when he scored the tying run and drove in the winner as the high flying Giants squeaked past the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2, in the ninth inning.

Taussig's performance ruined Johnny Podres, who had a two-hitter going into the eighth inning and was leading 2-1 in a tight duel with the Giants' ace lefty, Johnny Antonelli. The only run against Podres was Willie Mays' fourth home run. Taussig, pinch hit for Willie Kirkland in the eighth and walked. He was sacrificed to second and scotted home on pinch hitter Ray Jablonski's single.

Then in the ninth after retiring the first two men, Podres developed a wild streak and walked Orlando Cepeda. Another rookie, catcher Bob Schmidt, walked. And then Taussig shot his line single to left, scoring Cepeda with the big run.

Antonelli went eight innings and gave up but five hits, but the victory went to 40-year-old Marv Grissom who got in and out of trouble in the ninth.

Things looked tough for the Giants in the top of the ninth when Junior Gilliam walked, was sacrificed to second, and pinch hitter Duke Snider was walked intentionally. But Gilliam took too long a lead off second and Grissom fired to second baseman Danny O'Connell who chased the runner nearly to third base before he flipped to third baseman Jim Davenport for the tag.

Snider moved to second on that play, and Carl Furillo was given an intentional pass, but Grissom made Dick Gray fly deep to Mays to end the inning.

A crowd of 20,774 watched Podres apparently heading for his fifth victory on the wings of homers by Gilliam in the fourth and Gino Cimoli in the sixth. Orlv Davenport's single and Mays' home run were included in the Giants' hit column going into the eighth.

Mays' blast into the favored left field was his third in two games. He now has four for the season. Podres, who struck out eleven Giants in winning the second game of the year here, 13-1, struck out only three.

Antonelli struck out 5, walked 1, compared with 5 walks for Podres.

Pick Auburn To Win SEC Grid Throne

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) Auburn's national football champions were picked to repeat for the Southeastern Conference title in the Birmingham News' annual poll of the 12 member colleges.

The Tigers also dominated the pre-season all-SEC team, placing three men on the first team.

On the basis of 11 for first, 10 for second, etc., the schools were ranked like this:

Auburn 114½; Mississippi 103½; Mississippi State 93; Tennessee 88; Georgia Tech 87; Florida 71; Kentucky 53; Georgia 50; Louisiana State 48; Vanderbilt 34; Alabama 32 and Tulane 11.

Jerry Wilson, Auburn end, led the balloting for 1958 all-SEC and also was chosen best offensive end and best defensive end.

The pre-season pick:

Wilson and Tommy Potts, Tennessee, ends; Dave Sington, Alabama, and Urban Henry, Ga. AT KALLIO'S ARENA

Senorita Cortez Wrestles Here

Mexican beauty Rita Cortez and Pat Sherry clash in a hour - limit bout at Kallio's Monday night, the main event on a three - match card also featuring Charley Laye against Jerry Christy and Jack Curtis vs. Phil Brummett.

The girls match and the Laye-Christy scrap will be two - falls-to - win affairs while the Curtis-Brummett scramble will be for one fall.

Senorita Cortez will be remembered for her bout with the bald Lady Angel here during June of last year. The Latin lass beat the Angel and made quite a hit with local fans.

Hailing from Mexico City, Rita's not the mousy type, standing 5 feet, 7 inches and weighing 147 pounds. Called the "Mexican Spitfire," Rita uses her favorite weapon, the Mexican Bounce, to great advantage.

Rita's press releases say when she is not wrestling the Mexican grappler can be found cooking a large Mexican dinner and listening to her large record collection. She evidently finds time to eat that large Mexican dinner also since she is also reputed to be as strong as those bulls they fight south of the border.

The night's semi - final will be another in a long series of state title eliminaiton matches. Both Laye and Christy have already been defeated in elimination contests but get another chance tomorrow night.

Laye, as everyone should know by now, is a bad actor — pardon us, bad character. Charley always puts on a good show but is never hesitant about using foul play. Laye beat Brummett in last week's main event.

Laye will spot young Christy several years but hopes to make up for it with his ring experience and illegal tactics.

Boros Fires 64 To Lead At SPA

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Julius Boros, the phlegmatic old pro from Mid Pines, N. C., butchered par by eight strokes Saturday for a 64 which gave him a two-stroke lead at 134 after 36 holes of the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament.

Boros finished his hot round late in the day after Tommy Bolt of Paradise, Fla., and Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., appeared to have the lead clinched with a 126.

The 38-year-old former National Open champion picked up four strokes on a par 72 on each side of the 7,011-yard Hot Springs Country Club course.

He finished about 15 minutes after Cary Middlecoff, of Hollywood, Fla., wound up with a string of four birdies for a 66 and the day's best round to that point.

Middlecoff moved into a five-way tie for fourth place at 138 with Mike Souchak of Grossingers N.Y., who duplicated his first round of 69; Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., who had a respectable 67, and Ed Oliver, of Hesteria, Calif., who had a 68.

Rosburg started the rain-delayed second round in a three-way tie for second at 67 with Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex. Player and Weaver shot themselves out of contention with 75s.

Boros hasn't won a tournament since 1955 when he took the $50,000 World at Tam O'Shanter. He won the Open and also took the World title in 1952.

"I'm sorry it happened and wanted very much to meet Johnny again to prove that one point decision in my favor last February was no flute, Boudreaux said.

McKoin has three stitches closing the gash.

Industry Bolted Racers But Will Display Wares

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Although the American auto industry has divorced itself from auto racing, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will display 16 new cars in a parade around the big track before next Saturday's time trials for the 500-mile race May 30.

Speedway owner Tony Hulman also announced that the race winner's prizes will include a new convertible, as usual, although this time it will not be provided free by a manufacturer.

Hulman will buy the car, use it on the pace lap, and then give it to the winner. The vehicle has not yet been selected.

Arrangements for the new car parade were made through dealers or dealers' associations.

The track, off old Natchitoches road, has been completely reworked during the week, and yesterday was pronounced in fine condition for today. Only additional heavy rains late last night or today could hamper the show.

In addition to the usual Hatten Motors award in the regular trophy dash, Lou Craig is setting up a revolving trophy to be presented for the first time to the winner of the featured race. A racer can gain permanent possession with three straight wins.

The lineup of known racers was announced last night as follows:

MOORE REPORTS

SEC Will Study Auburn's Case

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 10—UP— Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore announced today that the SEC executive committee would meet in Atlanta, Ga., May 22 to consider the new probation on Auburn for illegal recruiting activities.

Moore said that the committee, headed by Gen. Troy Middleton of Louisiana State, would "review the findings of the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) and hear any further evidence" that Auburn might wish to present.

The NCAA slapped a three-year penalty running until 1961 on Auburn April 21 for allegedly offering illegal inducements to star quarterback don Fuell to enroll at the Alabama school.

The new probation came only days before an NCAA five-year ban on participation in bowl games, tournaments or other NCAA-sponsored events imposed for earlier recruiting violations involving twin gridiron stars was about to be lifted.

Still On SEC Probation

The Alabama football powerhouse still, however, is on indefinite probation in the SEC for the first irregularities which were alleged to have included the offering of money to the Beaube twins by two Auburn coaches.

Auburn has vehemently denied any guilt in the Fuell case, presenting at a press conference a few days after the NCAA announcement documentary evidence the school claimed had cleard it of any wrongdoing.

Auburn, which went undefeated last fall for the first time in 44 years and was ranked No. 2 in the United Press ratings, also put the finger on cross-state rival Alabama by implication.

Investigated Recruitment

Athletic director Jeff Beard released documents which purported to show that then Alabama head football coach J. B. (Ears) Whitworth requested the investigation of Fuell's recruitment three days before he enrolled at Auburn.

The statements also included one by a private detective who allegedly said he investigated Fuell and reported to a former Alabama assistant athletic director, James (Bubber) Nisbet.

Fuell, a 14-letter man at Guntersville, Ala., high school, was reportedly offered a $1,700 motor boat, an air-conditioning unit and a car or $2,200 in cash his sophomore year to play football at Auburn.

BASKETBALL BOUNCER

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Trouble stacked up for Southern Methodist today when the Southwest Conference invoked its "gag rule" and handed the university a year's probation for angry statements of athletic officials over officiating at the SMU-Texas A&M basketball game last March.

It was the second probation to be placed on the school this year. The NCAA April 21 passed a year's penalty on SMU for its recruiting tactics in football, holding that it gave athlete Glynn Gregory a summer job for which he was not qualified.

But the new probation really hurt. While the NCAA probation allowed Southern Methodist to participate in championships and post-season playoffs in all sports, the conference's ruling prohibited SMU from competing in any post-season basketball. SMU has been in the NCAA playoffs three of the past four years. Other sports at SMU are not affected by the ruling.

The probation for violating the "gag rule," which was passed in December 1949 to prevent any school criticizing officiating at a sports contest in the press, came because of hot statements by Athletic Director Matty Bell and basketball Coach Doc Hayes in criticism of a "goal tending" ruling by Referee Dan Watson that gave Texas A&M victory.

The SMU-A&M game wound up in near riotous conditions and there had been speculation that the school might also be penalized for failing to properly handle the crowd. But Commissioner Howard Grubbs said only the critical comment on the officiating was involved.

It was stressed that Watson had nothing to do with the ruling.

The conference also handed another jolt to SMU athletics—it approved the NAACP probation. Grubbs explained that the NCAA action had come on additional information in the Gregory Case. The conference had reprimanded SMU for its recruiting tactics but that involved only the method of transportation used in bringing athletes to the campus. The NCAA had delved into the summer job given Gregory in the oil fields by a SMU alumnus.

Southern Methodist's troubles consumed most of the time of the spring meeting of the faculty committee, which lasted from Friday afternoon until noon Saturday.

No action was taken on a proposal to raise scholastic standards for athletes. The committee talked about a "qualitative" requirement to go with the quantitative a certain number of hours work) but decided it didn't have sufficient information on the grades now being made by the athletes to pass a rule. Consideration of the proposal was put off until the December meeting of the conference.

Texas A&M was awarded the conference track, golf and tennis meets for 1949.

ROOKIE LEADS

'Frisco Shades Dodgers, 3 To 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Still another rookie, outfielder Don Taussig, joined the San Francisco parade Saturday when he scored the tying run and drove in the winner as the high flying Giants squeaked past the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2, in the ninth inning.

Taussig's performance ruined Johnny Podres, who had a two-hitter going into the eighth inning and was leading 2-1 in a tight duel with the Giants' ace lefty, Johnny Antonelli. The only run against Podres was Willie Mays' fourth home run. Taussig, pinch hit for Willie Kirkland in the eighth and walked. He was sacrificed to second and scotted home on pinch hitter Ray Jablonski's single.

Then in the ninth after retiring the first two men, Podres developed a wild streak and walked Orlando Cepeda. Another rookie, catcher Bob Schmidt, walked. And then Taussig shot his line single to left, scoring Cepeda with the big run.

Antonelli went eight innings and gave up but five hits, but the victory went to 40-year-old Marv Grissom who got in and out of trouble in the ninth.

Things looked tough for the Giants in the top of the ninth when Junior Gilliam walked, was sacrificed to second, and pinch hitter Duke Snider was walked intentionally. But Gilliam took too long a lead off second and Grissom fired to second baseman Danny O'Connell who chased the runner nearly to third base before he flipped to third baseman Jim Davenport for the tag.

Snider moved to second on that play, and Carl Furillo was given an intentional pass, but Grissom made Dick Gray fly deep to Mays to end the inning.

A crowd of 20,774 watched Podres apparently heading for his fifth victory on the wings of homers by Gilliam in the fourth and Gino Cimoli in the sixth. Only Davenport's single and Mays' home run were included in the Giants' hit column going into the eighth.

Mays' blast into the favored left field was his third in two games. He now has four for the season. Podres, who struck out eleven Giants in winning the second game of the year here, 13-1, struck out only three.

Antonelli struck out 5, walked 1, compared with 5 walks for Podres.

The 20,774 brought the total attendance for 20 home dates to 304,257.

The girls match and the Laye-Christy scrap will be two - falls-to - win affairs while the Curtis-Brummett scramble will be for one fall.

Senorita Cortez will be remembered for her bout with the bald Lady Angel here during June of last year. The Latin lass beat the Angel and made quite a hit with local fans.

Hailing from Mexico City, Rita's not the mousy type, standing 5 feet, 7 inches and weighing 147 pounds. Called the "Mexican Spitfire," Rita uses her favorite weapon, the Mexican Bounce, to great advantage.

Rita's press releases say when she is not wrestling the Mexican grappler can be found cooking a large Mexican dinner and listening to her large record collection. She evidently finds time to eat that large Mexican dinner also since she is also reputed to be as strong as those bulls they fight south of the border.

The night's semi - final will be another in a long series of state title eliminaiton matches. Both Laye and Christy have already been defeated in elimination contests but get another chance tomorrow night.

Laye, as everyone should know by now, is a bad actor — pardon us, bad character. Charley always puts on a good show but is never hesitant about using foul play. Laye beat Brummett in last week's main event.

Laye will spot young Christy several years but hopes to make up for it with his ring experience and illegal tactics.

Boros Fires 64 To Lead At SPA

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Julius Boros, the phlegmatic old pro from Mid Pines, N. C., butchered par by eight strokes Saturday for a 64 which gave him a two-stroke lead at 134 after 36 holes of the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament.

Boros finished his hot round late in the day after Tommy Bolt of Paradise, Fla., and Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., appeared to have the lead clinched with a 126.

The 38-year-old former National Open champion picked up four strokes on a par 72 on each side of the 7,011-yard Hot Springs Country Club course.

He finished about 15 minutes after Cary Middlecoff, of Hollywood, Fla., wound up with a string of four birdies for a 66 and the day's best round to that point.

Middlecoff moved into a five-way tie for fourth place at 138 with Mike Souchak of Grossingers N.Y., who duplicated his first round of 69; Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., who had a respectable 67, and Ed Oliver, of Hesteria, Calif., who had a 68.

Rosburg started the rain-delayed second round in a three-way tie for second at 67 with Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex. Player and Weaver shot themselves out of contention with 75s.

Boros hasn't won a tournament since 1955 when he took the $50,000 World at Tam O'Shanter. He won the Open and also took the World title in 1952.

Boudreaux Told Fight Off With Johnny McKoin

Those things can happen to anybody," said Al Boudreaux, Westwego, yesterday when informed by Promotor Gus Kallio that his fight Tuesday night with Johnny McKoin, Bastrop, has been indefinitely postponed. McKoin suffered a gashed eye Friday when butted by a sparmate during a workout.

"I'm sorry it happened and wanted very much to meet Johnny again to prove that one point decision in my favor last February was no flute, Boudreaux said.

McKoin has three stitches closing the gash.

Industry Bolted Racers But Will Display Wares

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Although the American auto industry has divorced itself from auto racing, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will display 16 new cars in a parade around the big track before next Saturday's time trials for the 500-mile race May 30.

Speedway owner Tony Hulman also announced that the race winner's prizes will include a new convertible, as usual, although this time it will not be provided free by a manufacturer.

Hulman will buy the car, use it on the pace lap, and then give it to the winner. The vehicle has not yet been selected.

Arrangements for the new car parade were made through dealers or dealers' associations.

MOORE REPORTS

SEC Will Study Auburn's Case

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 10—UP— Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore announced today that the SEC executive committee would meet in Atlanta, Ga., May 22 to consider the new probation on Auburn for illegal recruiting activities.

Moore said that the committee, headed by Gen. Troy Middleton of Louisiana State, would "review the findings of the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) and hear any further evidence" that Auburn might wish to present.

The NCAA slapped a three-year penalty running until 1961 on Auburn April 21 for allegedly offering illegal inducements to star quarterback don Fuell to enroll at the Alabama school.

The new probation came only days before an NCAA five-year ban on participation in bowl games, tournaments or other NCAA-sponsored events imposed for earlier recruiting violations involving twin gridiron stars was about to be lifted.

Still On SEC Probation

The Alabama football powerhouse still, however, is on indefinite probation in the SEC for the first irregularities which were alleged to have included the offering of money to the Beaube twins by two Auburn coaches.

Auburn has vehemently denied any guilt in the Fuell case, presenting at a press conference a few days after the NCAA announcement documentary evidence the school claimed had cleard it of any wrongdoing.

Auburn, which went undefeated last fall for the first time in 44 years and was ranked No. 2 in the United Press ratings, also put the finger on cross-state rival Alabama by implication.

Investigated Recruitment

Athletic director Jeff Beard released documents which purported to show that then Alabama head football coach J. B. (Ears) Whitworth requested the investigation of Fuell's recruitment three days before he enrolled at Auburn.

The statements also included one by a private detective who allegedly said he investigated Fuell and reported to a former Alabama assistant athletic director, James (Bubber) Nisbet.

Fuell, a 14-letter man at Guntersville, Ala., high school, was reportedly offered a $1,700 motor boat, an air-conditioning unit and a car or $2,200 in cash his sophomore year to play football at Auburn.

Speedway Resumes Stock Car Racing After Rains

The Twin City Speedway, idled two weeks by heavy rains, expects to be back in business at its West Monroe location today with a fat stock car racing card, beginning with time trials at 1 p.m.

The track, off old Natchitoches road, has been completely reworked during the week, and yesterday was pronounced in fine condition for today. Only additional heavy rains late last night or today could hamper the show.

Four new modifieds will be on the track today Gerry Greenway in No. 16, Billy Bayles in No. 17, and a pair of yet unregistered cars due in from Shreveport — to challenge the supremacy of Royce Earl Whitlock as king of the Twin City Speedway.

Whitlock has had his old No. 13 running again.

In addition to the usual Hatten Motors award in the regular trophy dash, Lou Craig is setting up a revolving trophy to be presented for the first time to the winner of the featured race. A racer can gain permanent possession with three straight wins.

The lineup of known racers was announced last night as follows:

Modifieds — No. 8, Sonny Brumfield, driver, Larry's Carburetor, owner; No. 7, Red Futch, owned Owens Garage and Miller's Used Cars; 3, Wade Bell, Newcomer Tire Service; 28; Willie Kvaternick, Keith Kenley's Garage of Farmerville; 39, H. L. Hale, Durbin Wrecking Yard of Monroe; 7-11, Joe Mallard, Wainwright and Dunn owners; A-1, no driver, Smitty's Garage; 17, Billy Bayles, Burt Anding owner; 16, Gerry Greenway, Lou Craig Auto Sales; 45, Curtis Newsom owner and driver; 5, Parker of Shreveport to drive Studebaker and Packard of Monroe machine; 13, Royce Whitlock, Hurl's Garage; 11, no driver, Williams' Garage of Bastrop; 1, Harold Gentry, V. W. Tidwell owner.

Jaloppies — 39, H. L. Hale Durbin's Wrecking; 18-19-20-9, four cars owned by Bert Anding, no drivers assigned; Misfire, no driver; 11, Wade Bell, owner and driver; and possibly half a dozen more expected but as yet not registered at the track.

MUSIAL HITLESS

Cardinals, With Mizell, Stall Chicago Cubs, 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis' Vinegar Bend Mizell cracked the victory column Saturday with a 3-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs. Mizell needed ninth-inning relief help from Larry Jackson to break his three-game losing streak.

A single by Ernie Banks and a walk to Walt Moryn with none out in the ninth brought a call for Jackson.

Banks scored as Don Blasingame made an error trying for a double play. Jackson then retired pinch hitter Sammy Taylor and Paul Smith on infield taps.

Stan Musial went hitless in three trips and left himself still seven base knocks shy of the exclusive 3,000-hit club. Musial, hitting .500 before the game, dropped to .480.

Jim Brosnan hurled seven innings and only allowed three hits, but took his third loss against two victories.

Mizell and Brosnan matched scoreless innings until the bottom of the sixth where the Cards produced an unearned run on a walk to Dick Schofield, a force out, an intentional pass to Musial and Bobby Thomson's muff of Del Ennis' line drive.

Boyer, a slumping .150 hitter, opened the seventh by hitting his second home run of the season into the left field bleachers for a 2-0 lead.

Mizell was in trouble in the eighth as pinch hitters Frank Ernaga and Jim Bolger solved him for singles with one out. Another pinch hitter, Bobby Adams, hit into a force play and Schofield turned in a nice fielding play on Lee Walls' ground ball to end it.

The Cards tallied their final run in the eighth off reliever Ed Mayer. Blasingame walked and Ennis scored him with a double.

Rampant Pirates Spill Phils, 14-4

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Vernon Law went the distance Saturday for the first time this season and won his fourth game as the Pittsburgh Pirates raked seven Philadelphia Phil catchers for 15 hits and a 14-4 victory.

Law started weak and allowed the Phils to score two runs in the opening inning, but the big bats of the Pirates kept him ahead after a five-run surge in the bottom of the first.

Every Pirate that started the game with the exception of Dick Groat hit safely at least once. Bill Mazeroski hit his third and fourth home runs.

Bob Skinner hit a triple, a double and a single. Frank Thomas collected two doubles and Law rapped out a double that scored two runs.

Ray Semproch, the Phil starting pitcher who did not survive the first inning, was charged with the loss, his second against three victories. Law has lost one game. He gave up 12 hits.

A passed ball by Phil catcher Stan Lopata on the third strike with two out in the first inning permitted the Pirates to score three unearned runs including two that Law doubled in.

It was the biggest Pirate run production in a single game this year. The Pirates now have won 10 of their first games.

The Pirates made it 6-1 in the second inning when Skinner doubled home Groat who had walked.

The Phils bounced back for two more runs in the fifth on a pinch hit double by Rip Repulski after Law had loaded the bases on a double to Wally Post, a single to Ted Kazanski and a walk to Chico Fernndez.

Mazeroski hit his first homer in the fifth and scored Roberto Clemente ahead of him.

The Pirates struck for three more runs in the sixth when Skinner sparked the attack with his triple after two Pirates had been retired. Ted Kluszewski singled Skinner home and scored on Thomas's second double of the afternoon. Mazeroski scored Thomas with a single.

A hit and an error produced two more Pirate runs in the seventh and, Mazeroski wrapped up the scoring with his second homer in the eighth.

ADCOCK, CRANDALL DELIVER

Braves Rally With Home Runs To Drop Reds, 5-3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Braves exploded Saturday for three runs in the seventh inning on homers by Del Crandall and Joe Adcock to beat Cincinnati 5-3 and extend their winning streak to six games.

Adcock's round-tripper tied the score and Crandall's 2-run blast, his first and the Braves' first pinch homer of the year, provided Milwaukee's margin of victory. A crowd of 22,114 saw the Braves chalk up their third decision in four meetings with the Redlegs.

Smoky Burgess' 3-run homer in the third off Braves' starter Bob Buhl, gave the Redlegs a lead that stood up until Adcock teed off on loser Harvey Haddix in the seventh.

Buhl was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth and Bob Rush, who pitched only the seventh inning, got credit for the victory, his 2nd against one defeat. Dick Littlefield pitched the final two scoreless' innings for the Braves.

Adcock gave the Braves a 1-0 edge in the second when he doubled down the left field line to drive in Henry Aaron who had singled.

But Burgess' 3-run homer in the third quickly wiped out the Braves' advantage. He scored behind Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson, who had walked.

Milwaukee cut the 3-1 deficit by one run in the sixth as Red Schoendienst extended his hitting streak to 18 consecutive games. Red was out trying to stretch his hit into a double but it moved Felix Mantilla, who also had singled, over to third base. Mantilla scored on Johnny Logan's infield out.

SPOIL BOSOX, 5-2

Harshman Cops 5th For Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three walks, a wild throw into center field by Boston pitcher Tom Brewer and two looping singles, all in the sixth inning, gave Baltimore a 5-2 win over the Red Sox Saturday.

Jack Harshman, who came to Baltimore in a deal with Chicago, allowed only five hits and became the first hurler in the American League to win five games. He has an earned run average of 1.25 and no losses.

Harshman, his back taped against disc trouble, didn't allow more than one Boston hit in any inning except the first, when Ted Williams and Dick Gernert singled. After that, he kept the door tightly shut.

The victory evened off Baltimore's record at nine wins and nine defeats. Boston has won 10, lost 12.

In the wild sixth, Al Pilarcik, Gene Woodling and Marshall walked in succession to fill the bases for Baltimore. Joe Ginsberg flied to Williams, with Pilarcik scoring. Brewer picked up Lennie Green's grounder and threw toward second to try for a double play, but his heave was off the mark and went into center field. Woodling scored on the error and Marshall went to third.

Back-to-back singles by Brooks Robinson and Foster Castleman scored Marshall and Green, and that was the ball game, as it turned out.

The loss was Brewer's fourth in five starts.

Musial's 3,000th Hit Due Earliest

CINCINNATI (AP)—Barring a crippling injury that would take him out of the line-up for an extended period, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals figures to get his 3,000th base hit earlier in his career than any of the seven other players in the "3,000 hit club."

Through Saturday's game, the Cardinal star had 2,993 hits.

This is Musial's 16th full season with the Cardinals, excluding a year in service and not counting several games he played with the Cards at the tag end of the 1941 season.

Dave Grote, service director for the National League, came up with statistics which showed Ty Cobb also got his 3,000th hit in his 16th full season but it didn't come until August. Cobb, like Musial, played only a few games in his first appearance with the Detroit Tigers.

Paul Waner got his hit No. 3,000 in his 17th season. Tris Speaker was two games beyond his 17th season.

Honus Wagner needed 18 seasons to get 3,000 hits and Eddie Collins and Nap Lajoie were just past the 18th season when they joined the exclusive group. Cap Anson needed 22 seasons to get 3,000 hits although in eight of them he played less than 110 games.

Musial has had 200 or more hits in six different seasons with his top year being 1948 when he had 230.

The famed slugger got his first major league hit off Jim Tobin of the then Boston Braves on Sept. 17, 1941. Other pitchers who can say they set up major milestones in the hitting record are Cliff Chambers of the Chicago Cubs and Curt Simmons of the Philadelphia Phils.

Musial's 1,000th hit came off Chambers on April 24, 1948 and his 2,000th was off Simmons on Sept. 9, 1952.

FORD INJURED

Yankees Smash Senators Second Straight Day, 8-0

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees Saturday halted the drive of the surprising Washington Senators for the second straight day 8-0 but Whitey Ford, Yank lefthander, had to leave the mound after seven innings. He was hit on his throwing arm by a pitched ball.

Bob Wiesler had just taken the mound in the third, replacing loser Russ Kemmerer, when Ford was hit. Wiesler's first toss was a wild pitch. The second hit Ford in the fat of his arm.

Ford continued until the seventh, allowing only six hits and permitting only one base runner to reach third. But the arm stiffened in the seventh and Casey Stengel sent Harry Simpson to bat for Ford. Rine Duren replaced Ford and struck out five in two innings. He struck out the side in the ninth.

It was the second straight triumph for the Yankees over Washington, now 2½ games behind the leaders but still in second place.

The Yankees opened the scoring in the first inning with Norm Siebern's single, Tony Kubek's double, Mickey Mantle's fly and Ken Aspromonte's fumble of Yogi Berra's smash accounting for two runs.

Bobby Richardson doubled after the second, and in the third the winners registered another pair. Moose Skowron's fourth homer was followed by Gil McDougald's single and a walk to Richardson. That was enough for Kemmerer. Wiesler's wild pitch advanced the runner and then Ford was hit. Wiesler next passed Siebern, forcing in a run.

The blow ran McDougald's hitting streak to 15-straight games. He missed only in the opener. McDougald had three hits, raising his batting average to .403.

Singles by McDougald and Lumpe and then a double steal set the stage for another Yankee run in the fifth with the former scoring on another wild pitch.

A walk to Mantle, Berra's single and a sacrifice fly by Skowron ran the score to 7-0 in the sixth.

Lumpe's triple which bounced past Jim Lemon, and a force out at first finished the scoring in the seventh.

HOEFT TRIUMPHS

A's Goofs Help Tigers Win, 3-2

DETROIT (AP) — Making two Kansas City defensive lapses good for a pair of runs, the Detroit Tigers edged the Athletics Saturday 3-2 behind Billy Hoeft's steady pitching.

Lapses by center fielder Woody Held and second baseman Mike Baxes cost right - hander Ralph Terry two runs and he lost out in a pitching battle with the Tiger southpaw.

The loss was the fifth in succession for the Athletics.

Ray Boone cracked his second wrong-field home run in two days in the second inning and gave Hoeft a 1-0 lead. In the third inning, Held played Hoeft's one-hop single into a three-base hit and the Tiger pitcher scored on Frank Bolling's long fly.

With Harvey Kuenn on first by a single in the fourth inning, Charley Maxwell grounded to Baxes. The Kansas City second baseman started to tag Kuenn on the base paths, changed his mind and threw Maxwell out at first. Boone promptly singled Kuenn home.

Bob Cerv accounted for both Kansas City runs with his ninth home run. It came in the fourth inning and scored Vic Power ahead of him. Power had struck out, but reached first safely when the ball got past catcher Jim Hegan.

Hoeft, facing the A's for the first time since September 1956, had to squirm out of a ninth inning jam to get his third triumph against a single setback. With the bases loaded and only one out, Hoeft struck out pinch-hitter Dave Melton and got Baxes to hit into a force play.

MUSIAL HITLESS

Cardinals, With Mizell, Stall Chicago Cubs, 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis' Vine-gar Bend Mizell cracked the victory column Saturday with a 3-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs. Mizell needed ninth-inning relief help from Larry Jackson to break his three-game losing streak.

A single by Ernie Banks and a walk to Walt Moryn with none out in the ninth brought a call for Jackson.

Banks scored as Don Blasingame made an error trying for a double play. Jackson then retired pinch hitter Sammy Taylor and Paul Smith on infield taps.

Stan Musial went hitless in three trips and left himself still seven base knocks shy of the exclusive 3,000-hit club. Musial, hitting .500 before the game, dropped to .480.

Jim Brosnan hurled seven innings and only allowed three hits, but took his third loss against two victories.

Mizell and Brosnan matched scoreless innings until the bottom of the sixth where the Cards produced an unearned run on a walk to Dick Schofield, a force out, an intentional pass to Musial and Bobby Thomson's muff of Del Ennis' line drive.

Boyer, a slumping .150 hitter, opened the seventh by hitting his second home run of the season into the left field bleachers for a 2-0 lead.

Mizell was in trouble in the eighth as pinch hitters Frank Ernaga and Jim Bolger solved him for singles with one out. Another pinch hitter, Bobby Adams, hit into a force play and Schofield turned in a nice fielding play on Lee Walls' ground ball to end it.

The Cards tallied their final run in the eighth off reliever Ed Mayer. Blasingame walked and Ennis scored him with a double.

Rampant Pirates Spill Phils, 14-4

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Vernon Law went the distance Saturday for the first time this season and won his fourth game as the Pittsburgh Pirates raked seven Philadelphia Phil catchers for 15 hits and a 14-4 victory.

Law started weak and allowed the Phils to score two runs in the opening inning, but the big bats of the Pirates kept him ahead after a five-run surge in the bottom of the first.

Every Pirate that started the game with the exception of Dick Groat hit safely at least once. Bill Mazeroski hit his third and fourth home runs.

Bob Skinner hit a triple, a double and a single. Frank Thomas collected two doubles and Law rapped out a double that scored two runs.

Ray Semproch, the Phil starting pitcher who did not survive the first inning, was charged with the loss, his second against three victories. Law has lost one game. He gave up 12 hits.

A passed ball by Phil catcher Stan Lopata on the third strike with two out in the first inning permitted the Pirates to score three unearned runs including two that Law doubled in.

It was the biggest Pirate run production in a single game this year. The Pirates now have won 10 of their first games.

The Pirates made it 6-1 in the second inning when Skinner doubled home Groat who had walked.

The Phils bounced back for two more runs in the fifth on a pinch hit double by Rip Repulski after Law had loaded the bases on a double to Wally Post, a single to Ted Kazanski and a walk to Chico Fernndez.

Mazeroski hit his first homer in the fifth and scored Roberto Clemente ahead of him.

The Pirates struck for three more runs in the sixth when Skinner sparked the attack with his triple after two Pirates had been retired. Ted Kluszewski singled Skinner home and scored on Thomas's second double of the afternoon. Mazeroski scored Thomas with a single.

A hit and an error produced two more Pirate runs in the seventh and, Mazeroski wrapped up the scoring with his second homer in the eighth.

Ayala was seeded third and Pietrangeli fourth.

Two American doubles teams were eliminated in quarter - final matches but one U. S. player, Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., came through to the semifinals with her Brazilian partner, Maria Esther Bueno. They defeated Renee Schurman and Sandra Reynolds of South Africa 6-2, 6-2.

Britain's Shirley Bloomer and Christine Truman defeated Louise Snow of Ventura, Calif., and Isabel Troccole of New York 6-4, 6-4 in a women's doubles quarter-final. Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and Hungarian refugee Anton Janeso eliminated Budge Patty and Bob Perry of Los Angeles 14-12, 6-2, 6-1 in men's doubles.

FORD INJURED

Yankees Smash Senators Second Straight Day, 8-0

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees Saturday halted the drive of the surprising Washington Senators for the second straight day 8-0 but Whitey Ford, Yank lefthander, had to leave the mound after seven innings. He was hit on his throwing arm by a pitched ball.

Bob Wiesler had just taken the mound in the third, replacing loser Russ Kemmerer, when Ford was hit. Wiesler's first toss was a wild pitch. The second hit Ford in the fat of his arm.

Ford continued until the seventh, allowing only six hits and permitting only one base runner to reach third. But the arm stiffened in the seventh and Casey Stengel sent Harry Simpson to bat for Ford. Rine Duren replaced Ford and struck out five in two innings. He struck out the side in the ninth.

It was the second straight triumph for the Yankees over Washington, now 2½ games behind the leaders but still in second place.

The Yankees opened the scoring in the first inning with Norm Siebern's single. Tony Kubek's double, Mickey Mantle's fly and Ken Aspromonte's fumble of Yogi Berra's smash accounting for two runs.

Bobby Richardson doubled after the second, and in the third the winners registered another pair. Moose Skowron's fourth homer was followed by Gil McDougald's single and a walk to Richardson. That was enough for Kemmerer. Wiesler's wild pitch advanced the runner and then Ford was hit. Wiesler next passed Siebern, forcing in a run.

The blow ran McDougald's hitting streak to 15-straight games. He missed only in the opener. McDougald had three hits, raising his batting average to .403.

Singles by McDougald and Lumpe and then a double steal set the stage for another Yankee run in the fifth with the former scoring on another wild pitch.

A walk to Mantle, Berra's single and a sacrifice fly by Skowron ran the score to 7-0 in the sixth.

Lumpe's triple which bounced past Jim Lemon, and a force out at first finished the scoring in the seventh.

HOEFT TRIUMPHS

A's Goofs Help Tigers Win, 3-2

DETROIT (AP) — Making two Kansas City defensive lapses good for a pair of runs, the Detroit Tigers edged the Athletics Saturday 3-2 behind Billy Hoeft's steady pitching.

Lapses by center fielder Woody Held and second baseman Mike Baxes cost right-hander Ralph Terry two runs and he lost out in a pitching battle with the Tiger southpaw.

The loss was the fifth in succession for the Athletics.

Ray Boone cracked his second wrong-field home run in two days in the second inning and gave Hoeft a 1-0 lead. In the third inning, Held played Hoeft's one-hop single into a three-base hit and the Tiger pitcher scored on Frank Bolling's long fly.

With Harvey Kuenn on first by a single in the fourth inning, Charley Maxwell grounded to Baxes. The Kansas City second baseman started to tag Kuenn on the base paths, changed his mind and threw Maxwell out at first. Boone promptly singled Kuenn home.

Bob Cerv accounted for both Kansas City runs with his ninth home run. It came in the fourth inning and scored Vic Power ahead of him. Power had struck out, but reached first safely when the ball got past catcher Jim Hegan.

Hoeft, facing the A's for the first time since September 1956, had to squirm out of a ninth inning jam to get his third triumph against a single setback. With the bases loaded and only one out, Hoeft struck out pinch-hitter Dave Melton and got Baxes to hit into a force play.

ADCOCK, CRANDALL DELIVER

Braves Rally With Home Runs To Drop Reds, 5-3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Braves exploded Saturday for three runs in the seventh inning on homers by Del Crandall and Joe Adcock to beat Cincinnati 5-3 and extend their winning streak to six games.

Adcock's round-tripper tied the score and Crandall's 2-run blast, his first and the Braves' first pinch homer of the year, provided Milwaukee's margin of victory. A crowd of 22,114 saw the Braves chalk up their third decision in four meetings with the Redlegs.

Smoky Burgess' 3-run homer in the third off Braves' starter Bob Buhl, gave the Redlegs a lead that stood up until Adcock teed off on loser Harvey Haddix in the seventh.

Buhl was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth and Bob Rush, who pitched only the seventh inning, got credit for the victory, his 2nd against one defeat. Dick Littlefield pitched the final two scoreless innings for the Braves.

Adcock gave the Braves a 1-0 edge in the second when he doubled down the left field line to drive in Henry Aaron who had singled.

But Burgess' 3-run homer in the third quickly wiped out the Braves' advantage. He scored behind Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson, who had walked.

Milwaukee cut the 3-1 deficit by one run in the sixth as Red Schoendienst extended his hitting streak to 18 consecutive games. Red was out trying to stretch his hit into a double but it moved Felix Mantilla, who also had singled, over to third base. Mantilla scored on Johnny Logan's infield out.

The roof fell in on Haddix in the seventh. Adcock smashed his fourth homer over the left field fence to tie the count at 3-all. After Del Rice singled, Crandall, pinch hitting for Rush, crashed his 2-run blast over the left field fence just inside the foul line, scoring behind Lew Burdette, a pinch runner for Rice.

SPOIL BOSOX, 5-2

Harshman Cops 5th For Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three walks, a wild throw into center field by Boston pitcher Tom Brewer and two looping singles, all in the sixth inning, gave Baltimore a 5-2 win over the Red Sox Saturday.

Jack Harshman, who came to Baltimore in a deal with Chicago, allowed only five hits and became the first hurler in the American League to win five games. He has an earned run average of 1.25 and no losses.

Harshman, his back taped against disc trouble, didn't allow more than one Boston hit in any inning except the first, when Ted Williams and Dick Gernert singled. After that, he kept the door tightly shut.

The victory evened off Baltimore's record at nine wins and nine defeats. Boston has won 10, lost 12.

In the wild sixth, Al Pilarcik, Gene Woodling and Marshall walked in succession to fill the bases for Baltimore. Joe Ginsberg flied to Williams, with Pilarcik scoring. Brewer picked up Lennie Green's grounder and threw toward second to try for a double play, but his heave was off the mark and went into center field. Woodling scored on the error and Marshall went to third.

Back-to-back singles by Brooks Robinson and Foster Castleman scored Marshall and Green, and that was the ball game, as it turned out.

The loss was Brewer's fourth in five starts.

Musial's 3,000th Hit Due Earliest

CINCINNATI (AP)—Barring a crippling injury that would take him out of the line-up for an extended period, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals figures to get his 3,000th base hit earlier in his career than any of the seven other players in the "3,000 hit club."

Through Saturday's game, the Cardinal star had 2,993 hits.

This is Musial's 16th full season with the Cardinals, excluding a year in service and not counting several games he played with the Cards at the tag end of the 1941 season.

Dave Grote, service director for the National League, came up with statistics which showed Ty Cobb also got his 3,000th hit in his 16th full season but it didn't come until August. Cobb, like Musial, played only a few games in his first appearance with the Detroit Tigers.

Paul Waner got his hit No. 3,000 in his 17th season. Tris Speaker was two games beyond his 17th season.

Honus Wagner needed 18 seasons to get 3,000 hits and Eddie Collins and Nap Lajoie were just past the 18th season when they joined the exclusive group. Cap Anson needed 22 seasons to get 3,000 hits although in eight of them he played less than 110 games.

Musial has had 200 or more hits in six different seasons with his top year being 1948 when he had 230.

The famed slugger got his first major league hit off Jim Tobin of the then Boston Braves on Sept. 17, 1941. Other pitchers who can say they set up major milestones in the hitting record are Cliff Chambers of the Chicago Cubs and Curt Simmons of the Philadelphia Phils.

Musial's 1,000th hit came off Chambers on April 24, 1948 and his 2,000th was off Simmons on Sept. 9, 1952.

AFTER SHAKY START

Cotton Futures Move To High Ground Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures moved into higher ground this week.

After a somewhat shaky start, the market resumed its upward climb. Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange scored net advances of 80 cents to $2.15 a bale.

All but the current May delivery made new life - of - contract highs.

Weather considerations influenced the market both ways. Reports and forecasts of more rain in the belt encourged buying of futures. Predictions of improvement in the weather had a bearish effect.

Some buying was prompted by the possibility that the 1958 loan rate would be well above the guaranteed minimum. Other bullish factors included the possibility of a very small acreage next year and the prospect of increased purchases of U.S. cotton by France and Spain.

Some selling resulted from profit taking. Early in the week the nearby May contract was under selling pressure resulting from prolonged circulation of notices.

The government's final report on the 1957 crop, showing an outturn of 10,964,000 bales, was pretty much what traders had expected.

The total was only 46,000 bales less than the government's December forecast but 1,749,000 bales smaller than the September estimate. Harvested acreage was placed at 13,558,000 acres.

Due largely to soil bank pledges, there is a growing belief in some quarters that less than 12 million acres will be planted next season.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 115,000 bales, against 136,000 the previous week and 133,000 in the like 1957 week.

For the season through May 6, exports were estimated at 4,488,000 bales vs. 6,110,000 bales at the same time last season.

HELPS FIGURES, TOO

London Gayer Since Bus Strike Sunday

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP)—"The funny thing about this bus strike," mused Janet Caldwell, a pretty London stenographer, "is that I like it. "Walking is doing wonderful things for my figure. I'm getting to work earlier than usual. Everyone seems friendler. Do we really need to have the buses back?"

Something of the old devil-may-care spirit of the wartime blitz has infected Londoners after a week of doing without the big, red double-deckers that normally jam the streets oj Britain's sprawling capital.

It may sound crazy, but London is an outwardly gayer place since 50,000 busmen struck for higher wages last Sunday midnight and forced many city dwellers to do a bit of walking.

Numbers of the 2½ million Londoners who usually rely on the buses are finding the strike fun. Others are just enjoying a break in the old routine. The inevitable, straight-faced English eccentrics are busy devising preposterous ways of traveling to and from work—water scooters on the River Thames, ancient bicycles, and roller skates.

Britons got a wartime reputation for their "we can take it" spirit. That note of soical calm has been well to the fore since the bus strike began, and it has made one or two foreign visitors feel edgy. . .

"What I want to know is, why don't these guys get mad?" demanded Chicago salesman Eddie Kellinger, here on a business trip. "I walk around London, and I don't hear anybody complaining. Everybody seems so darned good humored it hurts. Back home we'd have pickets parading all over and maybe a few busted noses. Don't Londoners ever get sore about these situations?"

For most Londoners the answer is no. The strike has mainly hit short - distance travelers around the center of the capital. The bulk of London's commuting millions are coming in by train and subway.

There is little bitterness against the busmen, who are striking for an all-round increase of 10 shillings 6 pence—$1.47—a week on their average pay of between $28 and $30. Negotiations between union leaders and the state-run London Transport Executive are at a standstill.

Over the situation hangs the threat of a nationwide rail strike that would paralyze public transport in London. A decision whether that strike will take place is unlikely before the middle of this week.

Grain Futures Go Up

CHICAGO (AP) — All the May grain futures contracts worked higher this week while almost all others eased off.

The higher trend was the result generally of a short-covering. The weakness was ascribed to the absence of any bullish commercial influences and the favorable crop outlook.

Toward the end of the week, traders were becoming uneasy about what they called an explosive condition building up in the May deliveries where there are some whopping open interests to be squared off before trading in the contract expires on May 20.

One large grain firm, Harris, Upham & Co., in its daily trade letter urged clients to liquidate unless they have very firm ideas as to which way the May wheat contract will expire. It pointed out that there is an open interest of more than 20 million bushels in this contract with only nine days of trading left.

Francis I. DuPont & Co. also said: "We would liquidate both long and short positions in this contract while an orderly market condition prevails."

At the end of the week, wheat was 1¾ cents a bushel higher to 1⅞ lower than last week's close, corn 1¼ higher to 2⅛ lower, oats 2½ higher to ⅝ lower; rye 3¼ higher to 3½ lower, soybeans ⅛-1 cent lower, and lard 5 cents a hundred pounds lower to 15 cents higher.

The nearby corn deliveries derived some support from continued small receipts of the grainnon cash markets and the new export subsidy program which becomes effective on Monday. It shifts all exports from government surplus stocks to commercial dealers and commercial supplies.

New High Is Hit By Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week surged forward to another series of new highs for 1958.

It did it on the biggest volume for any full week since the week ended last Oct. 26 — 14,103,810 shares. The daily average of 2,820,762 shares, however, was lower than the 3,266,795-share average in the four-day trading week which included New Year's day this year.

Rising public participation in the market, as shown by heavy trading in the lower-priced issues, was one reason for the big rise in trading, brokers said. At the same time, they reported that there was plenty of free cash from institutions such as mutual funds, pension funds, etc., seeking an investment home.

The net result was that the market enjoyed its fifth straight weekly rise. It did so on news which, fundamentally, still underlined the recession, although there were some hopeful signs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.40 to $169.90. It was a fairly moderate advance, exactly equal to last week's. It brought the average to its highest level since last Sept. 19.

The market's performance as a whole this week was one of almost uninterrupted, though modest, advances. It forged ahead to new highs for the year every day except Wednesday when it eased a bit on profit-taking. Tuesday, with turnover of 3,110,000 shares, was the best market session.

Air Force Shows Off Jet Bomber

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force showed off its 1,300-mile-an-hour B58 jet bomber Saturday in an Armed Forces Day preview that saw all the services demonstrate their "power for peace."

An estimated 215,000 persons jammed Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland, for a nuclear-missile age display put on by the Air Force, Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard. The rest of the nation will hold Armed Forces Day observances next weekend.

Secretary of Defense McElroy and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, turned out for the show with many military and government leaders and foreign diplomats.

The Andrews Field demonstrations featured simulated A-bomb attacks, mock airborne assaults, helicopter landings and aerial acrobatics by special Air Force and Navy stunt teams.

Parked in rows were some of the nation's most potent missiles, including the Air Force Thor and Navy Polaris intermediate range rockets. Also open to inspection were the tall Navy Vanguard and Jupiter-C rockets that fired American earth satellites aloft earlier this year.

The B58 Hustler, which the Air Force calls the fastest known bomber in the world, flew past in what was described as the first public showing of the advanced jet. The B58, now in production, is planned to replace the B47 medium jet bomber as a key element in the Strategic Air Command.

Bond Market Closes Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—The corporate bond market milled inconclusively to close lower on balance this week. U.S. government bonds continued to drift lower in very light dealings.

Corporate trading dwindled in volume from recent weeks. Rails and industrials edged higher on the AP index of 60 representative bonds but this was more than counterbalanced by sharp declines suffered by utilities and investment quality issues. Foreign dollar liens were steady.

Trading declined to $24,163,500 par value on the New York Stock exchange from $26,448,000 the previous week.

AFTER SHAKY START

Cotton Futures Move To High Ground Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures moved into higher ground this week.

After a somewhat shaky start, the market resumed its upward climb. Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange scored net advances of 80 cents to $2.15 a bale.

All but the current May delivery made new life - of - contract highs.

Weather considerations influenced the market both ways. Reports and forecasts of more rain in the belt encourged buying of futures. Predictions of improvement in the weather had a bearish effect.

Some buying was prompted by the possibility that the 1958 loan rate would be well above the guaranteed minimum. Other bullish factors included the possibility of a very small acreage next year and the prospect of increased purchases of U.S. cotton by France and Spain.

Some selling resulted from profit taking. Early in the week the nearby May contract was under selling pressure resulting from prolonged circulation of notices.

The government's final report on the 1957 crop, showing an outturn of 10,964,000 bales, was pretty much what traders had expected.

The total was only 46,000 bales less than the government's December forecast but 1,749,000 bales smaller than the September estimate. Harvested acreage was placed at 13,558,000 acres.

Due largely to soil bank pledges, there is a growing belief in some quarters that less than 12 million acres will be planted next season.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 115,000 bales, against 136,000 the previous week and 133,000 in the like 1957 week.

For the season through May 6, exports were estimated at 4,488,000 bales vs. 6,110,000 bales at the same time last season.

HELPS FIGURES, TOO

London Gayer Since Bus Strike Sunday

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP)—"The funny thing about this bus strike," mused Janet Caldwell, a pretty London stenographer, "is that I like it.

"Walking is doing wonderful things for my figure. I'm getting to work earlier than usual. Everyone seems friendlier. Do we really need to have the buses back?"

Something of the old devil-may-care spirit of the wartime blitz has infected Londoners after a week of doing without the big, red double-deckers that normally jam the streets of Britain's sprawling capital.

It may sound crazy, but London is an outwardly gayer place since 50,000 busmen struck for higher wages last Sunday midnight and forced many city dwellers to do a bit of walking.

Numbers of the 2½ million Londoners who usually rely on the buses are finding the strike fun. Others are just enjoying a break in the old routine. The inevitable, straight-faced English eccentrics are busy devising preposterous ways of traveling to and from work—water scooters on the River Thames, ancient bicycles, and roller skates.

Britons got a wartime reputation for their "we can take it" spirit. That note of soical calm has been well to the fore since the bus strike began, and it has made one or two foreign visitors feel edgy. . .

"What I want to know is, why don't these guys get mad?" demanded Chicago salesman Eddie Kellinger, here on a business trip. "I walk around London, and I don't hear anybody complaining. Everybody seems so darned good humored it hurts. Back home we'd have pickets parading all over and maybe a few busted noses. Don't Londoners ever get sore about these situations?"

For most Londoners the answer is no. The strike has mainly hit short - distance travelers around the center of the capital. The bulk of London's commuting millions are coming in by train and subway.

There is little bitterness against the busmen, who are striking for an all-round increase of 10 shillings 6 pence—$1.47—a week on their average pay of between $28 and $30. Negotiations between union leaders and the state-run London Transport Executive are at a standstill.

Over the situation hangs the threat of a nationwide rail strike that would paralyze public transport in London. A decision whether that strike will take place is unlikely before the middle of this week.

Grain Futures Go Up

CHICAGO (AP) — All the May grain futures contracts worked higher this week while almost all others eased off.

The higher trend was the result generally of a short-covering. The weakness was ascribed to the absence of any bullish commercial influences and the favorable crop outlook.

Toward the end of the week, traders were becoming uneasy about what they called an explosive condition building up in the May deliveries where there are some whopping open interests to be squared off before trading in the contract expires on May 20.

One large grain firm, Harris, Upham & Co., in its daily trade letter urged clients to liquidate unless they have very firm ideas as to which way the May wheat contract will expire. It pointed out that there is an open interest of more than 20 million bushels in this contract with only nine days of trading left.

Francis I. DuPont & Co. also said: "We would liquidate both long and short positions in this contract while an orderly market condition prevails."

At the end of the week, wheat was 1¾ cents a bushel higher to 1⅞ lower than last week's close, corn 1¼ higher to 2⅛ lower, oats 2½ higher to ⅝ lower; rye 3¼ higher to 3½ lower, soybeans ⅛-1 cent lower, and lard 5 cents a hundred pounds lower to 15 cents higher.

The nearby corn deliveries derived some support from continued small receipts of the grainnon cash markets and the new export subsidy program which becomes effective on Monday. It shifts all exports from government surplus stocks to commercial dealers and commercial supplies.

New High Is Hit By Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week surged forward to another series of new highs for 1958.

It did it on the biggest volume for any full week since the week ended last Oct. 26 — 14,103,810 shares. The daily average of 2,820,762 shares, however, was lower than the 3,266,795-share average in the four-day trading week which included New Year's day this year.

At the same time, they reported that there was plenty of free cash from institutions such as mutual funds, pension funds, etc., seeking an investment home.

The net result was that the market enjoyed its fifth straight weekly rise. It did so on news which, fundamentally, still underlined the recession, although there were some hopeful signs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.40 to $169.90. It was a fairly moderate advance, exactly equal to last week's. It brought the average to its highest level since last Sept. 19.

The market's performance as a whole this week was one of almost uninterrupted, though modest, advances. It forged ahead to new highs for the year every day except Wednesday when it eased a bit on profit-taking. Tuesday, with turnover of 3,110,000 shares, was the best market session.

Air Force Shows Off Jet Bomber

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force showed off its 1,300-mile-an-hour B58 jet bomber Saturday in an Armed Forces Day preview that saw all the services demonstrate their "power for peace."

An estimated 215,000 persons jammed Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland, for a nuclear-missile age display put on by the Air Force, Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard. The rest of the nation will hold Armed Forces Day observances next weekend.

Secretary of Defense McElroy and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, turned out for the show with many military and government leaders and foreign diplomats.

The Andrews Field demonstrations featured simulated A-bomb attacks, mock airborne assaults, helicopter landings and aerial acrobatics by special Air Force and Navy stunt teams.

Parked in rows were some of the nation's most potent missiles, including the Air Force Thor and Navy Polaris intermediate range rockets. Also open to inspection were the tall Navy Vanguard and Jupiter-C rockets that fired American earth satellites aloft earlier this year.

The B58 Hustler, which the Air Force calls the fastest known bomber in the world, flew past in what was described as the first public showing of the advanced jet. The B58, now in production, is planned to replace the B47 medium jet bomber as a key element in the Strategic Air Command.

Bond Market Closes Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—The corporate bond market milled inconclusively to close lower on balance this week. U.S. government bonds continued to drift lower in very light dealings.

Corporate trading dwindled in volume from recent weeks. Rails and industrials edged higher on the AP index of 60 representative bonds but this was more than counterbalanced by sharp declines suffered by utilities and investment quality issues. Foreign dollar liens were steady.

Trading declined to $24,163,500 par value on the New York Stock exchange from $26,448,000 the previous week.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Books Appeal To Every Taste

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Interesting new books of fiction continue to come from the publishers each week and of fer reading to appeal to every taste. Lawrence Schoonover is a historical novelist of note and his works are always eagerly awaited by his public. His latest book is "The Revolutionary" and is based on the life of John Paul Jones, one of the most interesting characters in American history. Born John Paul, son of obscure Scottish parents, he rose to a position of prominence and did much to save the cause of American independence. It is an exciting book dealing with a colorful and vivid figure and one that you will not want to miss.

Another historical novel, which I do not want to miss is "The Longest Night" written by Ada Cook Lewis. It is set against a dramatic backdrop; the Huguenot wars of sixteenth - century France. Never in history was there a more horrible and senseless civil war than this. It was these wars and the expulsion of the Huguenots which started France on a decline from which she never recovered. Many of the Huguenots came to America and settled in South Carolina and made some of the outstanding citizens of the new colony. This is the love story of Thalia d'Aire, a Huguenot and Gervase d'Este a Catholic. It is an account of their struggles and eventual triumph of love over pride. Many people in this community have Huguenot ancestors and they will be especially interested in reading this book.

Two historical novels dealing with the opening up of the American West, will find a ready audience. They are "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters" written by Robert Lewis Taylor and "The Fancher Train" by Amelia Bean. "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters" is the sweeping, romantic story of the journey of a father and his son, lured by gold in California in 1849. It was a harsh trip, often halted by cutthroats, Indians, disease, and murder — yet a trip of pastoral beauty, full of wonder for an untrod land and awakening young love. The author presents a vivid picture of life in a wagon train and its characters — heroic or mean, good folk or bad — combine with the novel's humor, bloodletting, romance and action to make this book a richly rewarding reading experience.

"The Fancher Train" is an account of one of the worst massacres that ever occurred in the history of our country. Miss Bean has used actual characters and historical events to write a story which is exciting as well as authentic. Another story of the American west is "Beyond Wind River" by Les Savage, Jr. It is an account of a feud between the Russells and the Thaynes and has its setting in Medicie Lodge, Wyoming. I am not going to tell you how it comes but, for you will want to read the book to see.

Two new mysteries are available this week. One is "None of Maigret's Business" written by Georges Simenon. It has a French setting and is very exciting. "A Gentleman Called" is the title of a new mystery by Dorothy Salisbury Davis. Readers of her former book "Death of an Old Sinner" will be happy to meet again Mrs. Norris and Jasper Tully, a most unusual pair of sleuths.

Among this week's offerings are two books with a modern setting. Frank G. Slaughter has a wide audience, who eagerly await one of his stories with a medical background, whether it be a period story or a modern one. His newest novel is called "Daybreak." This novel revolves around the problem of the mentally ill and what can be done to help them by means of a new drug. In the "Passionate City," Ian Black has produced a novel that fuses a glowingly romatic love story with a taut-paced drama of war and espionage. The story is set in Rome and the time is 1940 at the time of the so-called phony war. It is a book which has every element to make it exciting and one which promises rewarding reading.

Last of all I would like to recommend a hilarious story called "Mama's Boarding House" written by John D. Fitzgerald and set in the rugged town of Adenville, Utah at the turn of the century. It is a warm family story and can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

Dimensions Of Robert Frost Is Excellent

THE DIMENSIONS OF ROBERT FROST. By Reginald L. Cook. Rinehart. $3.95.

Frost believes, as Cook reminds us, that he has managed to "lodge a few poems where they will be hard to get rid of." The sturdy, picturesque phrase must be regarded by itself as the sufficient guarantee of the genius needed to do just that, but Cook elaborates at book length on the idea.

"At the heart of a poem," says Cook, professor at Middlebury College and for 30 years a friend of Frost's, "is a poet's own heart," and "biographical details are of the utmost importance." But the biography here is limited almost wholly to Frost's birth in 1874 and the bare facts that he was married and is a grandfather. Here we have, instead, based to be sure on a remarkably astute and sympathetic assimilation of the poems, the lectures and the inexhaustible informal conversations, a thorough and often inspired study of Frost's work and the nature of the creative strength from which it sprang.

This is a catalog and a survey of his characteristics — his political and social conservatism, his aloofness toward religion, his lucidity, his constant wit and humor, his homely phrases, his intimacy with nature, his interest in the nighttime sky. Cook offers three reasons for Frost's popularity — which he rightly believes has worked perversely against his acceptance by some ponderous critics: His "general intelligibility," his "intellectual and moral" convictions and his independence and individuality.

Cook's rare personal comments are so illuminating, like his description of the poet's "rascally gay cackle," that I wish he had given us more — we badly need a straight biography. But he is equally perceptive and creative, too, in Frost's own grand way, in his observations on the poetry and its sources, as when he says Frost has "griefs but not grievances," and notes that "poetry sweats out of emotional tension like sap at the end of fresh-cut wood."

Turning Point And Decline In The Civil War

THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG. By Frank Aretas Haskell. Houghton Mifflin. $3.50.

AN END TO VALOR. By Philip Van Doren Stern. Houghton Mifflin. $5.75.

There are two reasons for dealing with "The Battle of Gettysburg" and "An End to Valor" in the same review: Both are Civil War books, and both are very good.

As a matter of fact, Haskell's work long has been known as a classic. Its printings and circulation have been limited, however, and this is the first time it has been made available to the general public.

Frank Haskell was an aide on a corps commander's staff at Gettysburg. He wrote while the heat of the battle was still upon him — within two weeks after Pickett's charge. He wrote as a Union soldier, a partisan. Some of his judgments are overly harsh. Yet, as Bruce Catton says in his introduction, Haskell had the writing talent "to convey the look and the sound and the feel of what he had been through."

"An End to Valor" covers the period from Lincoln's second inauguration to Appomattox. It was a time when Southern hopes for victory had long since gone and the Confederacy was existing on the valor of its soldiers. When bravery and dedication to a cause no longer could stand off the growing might of Union arms, Appomattox became inevitable.

It is a tragic book, for that last year of the Civil War was a tragic time. Yet it has an inspirational quality, too, for the men on both sides were Americans and their deeds be they performed in Blue or in Gray. It's an epic story and Philip Van Doren Stern tells it well.

The Marshal Is Fast-Paced Novel Of West

THE MARSHAL By Frank Gruber (Rinehart, $3).

Frank Gruber has a reputation for writing fast - paced novels and this one is no exception.

Tad Shay was supposed to be dead. The detail arrived to bury him in the morning, but his eyes were open. His will to live had kept him alive through the last night of the Civil War.

In the two years of convalescence that followed, Tad pondered how he, a man whose only trade was killing, could live a peaceful life. He decided on the law, passed his bar exams, and hung up his shingle in a frontier town, Alder City. This was a new town, just beginning, and it was, Tad thought, a good place for him to begin again and to forget the carnage he had witnessed during the war years.

Then he was made marshal of an Alder City transformed overnight by the coming of the railroad and the cattle drives into one of the most violent and unruly boom towns that the West had ever known.

Tad's fight to keep the peace provides him — and the reader — with plenty of action and gunplay in the latest Gruber Western.

The Bankrupts Is About Real Life

THE BANKRUPTS By Brian Glanville (Doubleday, $3.95).

A moving, biting novel of Jewish family life of today. It is a book you will read at one sitting.

What would prompt a young woman like Rosemary Frieman—pampered, beautiful, secure in her life of luxury and respectability—to rebel suddenly against everything she had ever known?

What gave this young woman, who had always acquiesced to her parents' wishes and their plans for a good marriage, the courage to set her own course, even though that course must exile her from family and conventional society?

And if the life she chose came suddenly and tragically to an end, with no going back, in what direction could Rosemary turn?

Who really were the bankrupts? Were they the father, mother, and friends. Rosemary had abandoned? Or was it Rosemary herself, struggling to realize the hopes and ambitions she had once so proudly assumed?

The Bankrupts is an unusual and revealing insight into the closed, traditionbound world of London's Jewish society. It is the moving story, challenging and rewarding, of a young woman whose heritage meant something wholly different to her than it had meant to her family.

The Italian Wife Is Exciting One

THE ITALIAN WIFE By EMYR Humphreys (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

In this probing novel, Emyr Humphreys explores a strange triangle . . . the relations of a famous London publisher, his young second wife, and his twenty-three-year-old son.

At the center of an ever-widening sphere of international influence is Richard Roth —movie magnate, owner of a vast newspaper empire, and behind - the - scenes politician. Compelled by a ruthless power drive, Roth recognizes no limits to his ambition. The urbane charm he has acquired through years of association with the world's most glittering society, and his ability to manipulate people, are the instruments of his success.

His private life is corrupted by complete self-indulgence. Unable to give more than capricious affection, he humiliates his wife, Paola, with his neglect and infidelity. On a vacation with Paola at a luxurious castle in the Austrian Alps, Richard meets a young adventuress with whom he has a disastrous affair. Paola is sent home to Italy, where she learns of the affair through the malice of Richard's court jester, now turned foe. Shamed and grieving, she turns toward Chris, to whom she has been both confidante and confessor. Alone with him at her Italian lake villa, her feelings change . . . her passion for her husband's son grows until Paola, no longer rational, makes an advance that nearly wrecks three lives.

For Chris, too, life has been a series of deceptions. Always in his father's shadow, misguided and frustrated by self-doubts, he is torn between a retreat to asceticism in a country vicarage and the pleasures of his Bohemian friends in London. The web of irony that runs through the lives of this fated family deeply affects Chris. Rejecting the daughter of his father's political ally, he can find love only with Marisa Tilson, daughter of Richard's oldest and most bitter enemy.

With Richard's return to Italy, the three principals meet in a tense dramatic scene that brings this exciting story to a surprising conclusion.

Columbus, New Mex., is the site of the last invasion of the United States by foreign troops. On March 9, 1916 a group of bandits led by Mexican rebel Francisco "Pancho" Villa crossed the border and raided Columbus, killing 16 Americans and burning much of the town.

Chaplain's Dream Will Come True

ABILENE, Tex. (UP)—A "Big Tent Revival" meeting — the dream of a former Army chaplain 14 years ago when he spent 52 days in the bloody "Battle of the Bulge" will come true next month.

The ex-chaplain is Jack Fogarty of Athens, Tex., who was attached to the 78th Infantry during World War II. He recalls how "amazed" he was "with the lack of knowledge of the Bible on the part of the average American soldier."

"When the chips were down," he said, "and these fighting men realized that they might never live to return to their homeland, it became apparent . . . through their questions . . . that they had only a very faint knowledge of the Bible.'

Fogarty made a decision during those fateful 52 days which changed his course of life. He told himself he would buy a big tent and take it to various cities over America and not wait for the local members and their friends to come hear the Bible taught. He would take it to them.

He has preached in almost every state in the union as a Church of Christ evangelist since he returned to the states in 1945.

The Fogartys all are ministers of the Church of Christ.

WORKSHOP FOR COMPOSERS

Youth Finds Hope For Native Opera

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — What is, I am sure, the biggest group of American opera composers ever to get together has just finished two weeks of profesional back - stage experience in this city, and the consensus of the young band of 15 who talked to me was:

"It looks as if we're on the verge of a bright future."

"Hope never sprang so eternal as it springs right now."

"There can be a season of American opera."

Indeed they came here because there was that kind of season. New York City Opera presented a five - week repertory program of 10 American works. The Ford Foundation paid part of the bill in the attempt to learn, at the suggestion of General Director Julius Rudel, whether the public was really interested in native works to the point of buying tickets for them.

First nights were all oversubscribed, and in - between attendance was good.

Youth Back - Stage

A further suggestion of Rudel's, after he was snowed under by some 200 opera scores submitted for the program, was to invite young composers to see how an opera house is run. Some 500 institutions were informed of the opportunity, there were 75 individual applications, and 30 were accepted. Their expenses, where necessary, were paid by Ford. Most of them had written operas, some of the works had been produced, one young composer even made money — a performance at Oberlin left him $9 to the good.

"Two directors here actually asked us for operas," they reported with understandable delight.

They were teachers and students. They were recommended by Kubelik, Mitropoulos, Krenek, Cowell; they had studied with Piston, Luening, Moore, Brownlee, Milhaud; they were on the faculty at New York University, Arizona State College, the State University of Iowa, Sacramento State College, the University of Illinois, and Wesleyan; one had been a television director in Cleveland, one was a Guggenheim fellow.

Rudel, sweating after a long afternoon dress rehearsal for the world premiere of "The Good Soldier Schweik," sat in on the discusion to point out:

Needed: An Outlet

"There is a wonderful preparatory level, workshop level, in the field of opera in this country, but once a talent is discovered, there's no place to absorb it. Some people count 500 opera companies across the land, but only four of them have seasons of any length, the Met, Chicago, San Francisco and this one."

The visiting composers said they were grateful to Rudel for having them here, letting them walk around and poke into things, see just what was done, ask all the questions they wanted, and find everybody willing to answer them.

What sort of questions?

"About projections: How are they set up?"

"About lighting: Just as important as the lighting itself, we learned, is the material on which light falls the the way the material reflects it."

"About how a director studies a score — one said he listened to it on the piano, one sang it."

"How much detailed instruction should a composer put into his score? How much should he try to help the stage director and the designer?" — they got conflicting answers to this.

Finding the Tools

They sat down for informative talks with publishers, more experienced composers, arrangers, designers and lighting experts. They attended Columbia conferences. They were impresed first hand by the extraordinary possibilities and the range of the modern stage —"15" seconds from America to Europe," as one of them said. None of them had ever heard so much opera in English, nor for that matter had New Yorkers themselves.

They were "picking up tools," as they expressed it. They saw, or heard, how important it is for the composer to know, not just voices in general, but the voices of those who will sing his work. They noted that sometimes the need for two minutes more in which to change a costume or a scene could oblige a composer to write two more minutes of music than his original inspiration had allowed for. They felt strongly that composers and stage directors must work closely together. It surprised them to see how everybody at the City Opera cooperated, how the job got done with no "emotional blow - ups."

What had they missed? They would have been glad to meet a dramatist, and a librettist. If they had any regret at all, it was voiced by one man looking back over a frantically busy two weeks:

"One thing is sure, we didn't have any time here to do any composing."

Food On Space Trip Will Be Different

CINCINNATI (AP) — Say you're making the first rocket trip to the moon.

It's your first night out and you're hungry. You'd like a good meal. Steak, say, and some apple pie for dessert.

You can have them.

But you'll squeeze the steak out of a toothpaste tube.

You'll sip the apple pie through a straw.

And you'll have to keep a gastronomic eye on colored pictures to remind you what food looks like on earth.

That's the report from a food chain foundation in Cincinnati as the result of an informal study of the predicted situation.

"Aboard a space ship, every pound of cargo is significant," says foundation director G. F. Garnatz. "Food will have to be as light and compact as possible."

It will have to be mashed, packed in tubes or cans and fed to space travelers under pressure.

After all, there won't be any gravity to keep it on the spoons.

But what about the tantalizing food pictures?

A study of long - range bomber crews during World War II showed that good nutrition can be provided in compact form.

"But," says Garnatz, "If you don't put in some eye appeal, the individual is not going to have the will to eat."

New Type Cantor In Synagogues

By TOM HENSHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—A new type of cantor is beginning to make his presence felt in the more than 4,000 synagogues of American Jewry.

He still meets the age-old requirements of the Talmud. He has a "sweet voice." He is scholarly, pious and humble and modest.

But, more and more, he's being trained in American cantorial schools.

And, more and more, he's becoming the musical personality of his congregation in addition to his role as a central official of worship.

Three American schools, all in New York City, are turning out cantors, whose services are in high demand in the present boom in synagogue building in the suburbs.

The College-Institute School of Sacred Music has been training cantors since 1948. Its eighth graduating class next month will bring the number of American-trained cantors to 75.

The Jewish Theological Seminary started its Cantorial Institute five years ago and Yeshiva University's Cantorial Training Institute joined the ranks in 1954.

Many cantors have a mild aversion to the name cantor. They prefer the Hebrew "hazzan."

"The word cantor has too much the connotation of just a singer or an entertainer," says Hazzan David J. Putterman, of the Park Avenue Synagogue in New York.

The cantor is much more than a singer. He may entertain but he is not an entertainer. His part in the Jewish service is as important as that of the rabbi.

"The rabbi is the teacher," says Putterman. "The cantor is the emissary of the people; he's the intermediary between the congregation and God."

The cantor actually conducts the worship service. He sings the prayer book. His song interpretes the mood of the occasion. Interpretation is as important as voice.

"A cantor," says Hazzan Putterman, "should know the meaning and context of the prayers so well that a stranger to the synagogue could feel what is happening by the cantor's interpretation.

Traffic Is Aided From Air

By PATRICK McNULTY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donn Reed and Max Schumacher are two guys who don't mind cruising the tangled Los Angeles freeways during rush hours.

They fly over the traffic jams in a helicopter.

Since January, they have been patrolling the spiderweb of highways for a local radio station, breaking into disc jockey programs with traffic reports for motoriests.

Promptly at 7 each workday morning — smog or shine — they chop off from Glendale Central Airport in their white and red helicopter.

The whirlybird hovers over the interchange of sprawling Los Angeles' five major freeways. At regular intervals, announcer Reed broadcasts a report that might go like this:

"Here is another Airwatch report from the KABC helicopter... Pasadena Freeway inbound...All traffic moving nicely..Some congestion at the Harbor Freeway interchange...But it won't slow you down too much.

"Hollywood Freeway inbound...An accident near the Alvarado Street up-ramp...A car is blocking two lanes...Traffic is backing up ... Motorists are advised to pull off and use other routes to the city."

Reed and Schumacher, who pilots the helicopter, say they get a real kick when they see freeway drivers following their suggestions.

"Early one morning," says Reed, "we asked everyone tuned in to blink their lights. About half the cars beneath us did."

Sometimes, Reed and Schumacher are able to spot something more dramatic or potentially dangerous than a traffic jam. When this happens, Reed breaks into a program with a bulletin.

Once they spotted a little girl playing with a ball in the midst of whizzing traffic on the Harbor Freeway. She was too young to realize her danger.

Reed pushed the button on his microphone and shouted a warning. Several cars slowed or pulled over. Minutes later, police, alerted by Reed's broadcast, arrived and bundled the tot off.

The radio station had to wade through plenty of red tape before the Civil Aeronautics Administration and local authorities would approve the helicopter's low flights over the city.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Books Appeal To Every Taste

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Interesting new books of fiction continue to come from the publishers each week and of fer reading to appeal to every taste. Lawrence Schoonover is a historical novelist of note and his works are always eagerly awaited by his public. His latest book is "The Revolutionary" and is based on the life of John Paul Jones, one of the most interesting characters in American history. Born John Paul, son of obscure Scottish parents, he rose to a position of prominence and did much to save the cause of American independence. It is an exciting book dealing with a colorful and vivid figure and one that you will not want to miss.

Another historical novel, which I do not want to miss is "The Longest Night" written by Ada Cook Lewis. It is set against a dramatic backdrop; the Huguenot wars of sixteenth - century France. Never in history was there a more horrible and senseless civil war than this. It was these wars and the expulsion of the Huguenots which started France on a decline from which she never recovered. Many of the Huguenots came to America and settled in South Carolina and made some of the outstanding citizens of the new colony. This is the love story of Thalia d'Aire, a Huguenot and Gervase d'Este a Catholic. It is an account of their struggles and eventual triumph of love over pride. Many people in this community have Huguenot ancestors and they will be especially interested in reading this book.

Two historical novels dealing with the opening up of the American West, will find a ready audience. They are "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters" written by Robert Lewis Taylor and "The Fancher Train" by Amelia Bean. "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters" is the sweeping, romantic story of the journey of a father and his son, lured by gold in California in 1849. It was a harsh trip, often halted by cutthroats, Indians, disease, and murder — yet a trip of pastoral beauty, full of wonder for an untrod land and awakening young love. The author presents a vivid picture of life in a wagon train and its characters — heroic or mean, good folk or bad — combine with the novel's humor, bloodletting, romance and action to make this book a richly rewarding reading experience. "The Fancher Train" is an account of one of the worst massacres that ever occurred in the history of our country. Miss Bean has used actual characters and historical events to write a story which is exciting as well as authentic. Another story of the American west is "Beyond Wind River" by Les Savage, Jr. It is an account of a feud between the Russells and the Thaynes and has its setting in Medicie Lodge, Wyoming. I am not going to tell you how it comes but, for you will want to read the book to see.

Two new mysteries are available this week. One is "None of Maigret's Business" written by Georges Simenon. It has a French setting and is very exciting. "A Gentleman Called" is the title of a new mystery by Dorothy Salisbury Davis. Readers of her former book "Death of an Old Sinner" will be happy to meet again Mrs. Norris and Jasper Tully, a most unusual pair of sleuths.

Among this week's offerings are two books with a modern setting. Frank G. Slaughter has a wide audience, who eagerly await one of his stories with a medical background, whether it be a period story or a modern one. His newest novel is called "Daybreak." This novel revolves around the problem of the mentally ill and what can be done to help them by means of a new drug. In the "Passionate City," Ian Black has produced a novel that fuses a glowingly romatic love story with a taut-paced drama of war and espionage. The story is set in Rome and the time is 1940 at the time of the so-called phony war. It is a book which has every element to make it exciting and one which promises rewarding reading.

Last of all I would like to recommend a hilarious story called "Mama's Boarding House" written by John D. Fitzgerald and set in the rugged town of Adenville, Utah at the turn of the century. It is a warm family story and can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

Dimensions Of Robert Frost Is Excellent

THE DIMENSIONS OF ROBERT FROST. By Reginald L. Cook. Rinehart. $3.95.

Frost believes, as Cook reminds us, that he has managed to "lodge a few poems where they will be hard to get rid of." The sturdy, picturesque phrase must be regarded by itself as the sufficient guarantee of the genius needed to do just that, but Cook elaborates at book length on the idea.

"At the heart of a poem," says Cook, professor at Middlebury College and for 30 years a friend of Frost's, "is a poet's own heart," and "biographical details are of the utmost importance." But the biography here is limited almost wholly to Frost's birth in 1874 and the bare facts that he was married and is a grandfather. Here we have, instead, based to be sure on a remarkably astute and sympathetic assimilation of the poems, the lectures and the inexhaustible informal conversations, a thorough and often inspired study of Frost's work and the nature of the creative strength from which it sprang.

This is a catalog and a survey of his characteristics — his political and social conservatism, his aloofness toward religion, his lucidity, his constant wit and humor, his homely phrases, his intimacy with nature, his interest in the nighttime sky. Cook offers three reasons for Frost's popularity — which he rightly believes has worked perversely against his acceptance by some ponderous critics: His "general intelligibility," his "intellectual and moral" convictions and his independence and individuality.

Cook's rare personal comments are so illuminating, like his description of the poet's "rascally gay cackle," that I wish he had given us more — we badly need a straight biography. But he is equally perceptive and creative, too, in Frost's own grand way, in his observations on the poetry and its sources, as when he says Frost has "griefs but not grievances," and notes that "poetry sweats out of emotional tension like sap at the end of fresh-cut wood."

Turning Point And Decline In The Civil War

AN END TO VALOR. By Philip Van Doren Stern. Houghton Mifflin. $5.75.

There are two reasons for dealing with "The Battle of Gettysburg" and "An End to Valor" in the same review: Both are Civil War books, and both are very good.

As a matter of fact, Haskell's work long has been known as a classic. Its printings and circulation have been limited, however, and this is the first time it has been made available to the general public.

Frank Haskell was an aide on a corps commander's staff at Gettysburg. He wrote while the heat of the battle was still upon him — within two weeks after Pickett's charge. He wrote as a Union soldier, a partisan. Some of his judgments are overly harsh. Yet, as Bruce Catton says in his introduction, Haskell had the writing talent "to convey the look and the sound and the feel of what he had been through."

"An End to Valor" covers the period from Lincoln's second inauguration to Appomattox. It was a time when Southern hopes for victory had long since gone and the Confederacy was existing on the valor of its soldiers. When bravery and dedication to a cause no longer could stand off the growing might of Union arms, Appomattox became inevitable.

It is a tragic book, for that last year of the Civil War was a tragic time. Yet it has an inspirational quality, too, for the men on both sides were Americans and their deeds be they performed in Blue or in Gray. It's an epic story and Philip Van Doren Stern tells it well.

The Marshal Is Fast-Paced Novel Of West

THE MARSHAL By Frank Gruber (Rinehart, $3).

Frank Gruber has a reputation for writing fast - paced novels and this one is no exception.

Tad Shay was supposed to be dead. The detail arrived to bury him in the morning, but his eyes were open. His will to live had kept him alive through the last night of the Civil War.

In the two years of convalescence that followed, Tad pondered how he, a man whose only trade was killing, could live a peaceful life. He decided on the law, passed his bar exams, and hung up his shingle in a frontier town, Alder City. This was a new town, just beginning, and it was, Tad thought, a good place for him to begin again and to forget the carnage he had witnessed during the war years.

Then he was made marshal of an Alder City transformed overnight by the coming of the railroad and the cattle drives into one of the most violent and unruly boom towns that the West had ever known.

Tad's fight to keep the peace provides him — and the reader — with plenty of action and gunplay in the latest Gruber Western.

Food On Space Trip Will Be Different

CINCINNATI (AP) — Say you're making the first rocket trip to the moon.

It's your first night out and you're hungry. You'd like a good meal. Steak, say, and some apple pie for dessert.

You can have them.

But you'll squeeze the steak out of a toothpaste tube.

You'll sip the apple pie through a straw.

And you'll have to keep a gastronomic eye on colored pictures to remind you what food looks like on earth.

That's the report from a food chain foundation in Cincinnati as the result of an informal study of the predicted situation.

"Aboard a space ship, every pound of cargo is significant," says foundation director G. F. Garnatz. "Food will have to be as light and compact as possible."

It will have to be mashed, packed in tubes or cans and fed to space travelers under pressure.

After all, there won't be any gravity to keep it on the spoons.

But what about the tantalizing food pictures?

A study of long - range bomber crews during World War II showed that good nutrition can be provided in compact form.

"But," says Garnatz, "If you don't put in some eye appeal, the individual is not going to have the will to eat."

New Type Cantor In Synagogues

By TOM HENSHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—A new type of cantor is beginning to make his presence felt in the more than 4,000 synagogues of American Jewry.

He still meets the age-old requirements of the Talmud. He has a "sweet voice." He is scholarly, pious and humble and modest.

But, more and more, he's being trained in American cantorial schools.

And, more and more, he's becoming the musical personality of his congregation in addition to his role as a central official of worship.

Three American schools, all in New York City, are turning out cantors, whose services are in high demand in the present boom in synagogue building in the suburbs.

The College-Institute School of Sacred Music has been training cantors since 1948. Its eighth graduating class next month will bring the number of American-trained cantors to 75.

The Jewish Theological Seminary started its Cantorial Institute five years ago and Yeshiva University's Cantorial Training Institute joined the ranks in 1954.

Many cantors have a mild aversion to the name cantor. They prefer the Hebrew "hazzan."

"The word cantor has too much the connotation of just a singer or an entertainer," says Hazzan David J. Putterman, of the Park Avenue Synagogue in New York.

The cantor is much more than a singer. He may entertain but he is not an entertainer. His part in the Jewish service is as important as that of the rabbi.

"The rabbi is the teacher," says Putterman. "The cantor is the emissary of the people; he's the intermediary between the congregation and God."

The cantor actually conducts the worship service. He sings the prayer book. His song interpretes the mood of the occasion. Interpretation is as important as voice.

"A cantor," says Hazzan Putterman, "should know the meaning and context of the prayers so well that a stranger to the synagogue could feel what is happening by the cantor's interpretation.

Traffic Is Aided Frcin Air

By PATRICK McNULTY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donn Reed and Max Schumacher are two guys who don't mind cruising the tangled Los Angeles freeways during rush hours.

They fly over the traffic jams in a helicopter.

Since January, they have been patrolling the spiderweb of highways for a local radio station, breaking into disc jockey programs with traffic reports for motoriests.

Promptly at 7 each workday morning — smog or shine — they chop off from Glendale Central Airport in their white and red helicopter.

The whirlybird hovers over the interchange of sprawling Los Angeles' five major freeways. At regular intervals, announcer Reed broadcasts a report that might go like this:

"Here is another Airwatch report from the KABC helicopter... Pasadena Freeway Inbound...All traffic moving nicely..Some congestion at the Harbor Freeway interchange...But it won't slow you down too much.

"Hollywood Freeway inbound...An accident near the Alvarado Street up-ramp...A car is blocking two lanes...Traffic is backing up ... Motorists are advised to pull off and use other routes to the city."

Reed and Schumacher, who pilots the helicopter, say they get a real kick when they see freeway drivers following their suggestions.

"Early one morning," says Reed, "we asked everyone tuned in to blink their lights. About half the cars beneath us did."

Sometimes, Reed and Schumacher are able to spot something more dramatic or potentially dangerous than a traffic jam. When this happens, Reed breaks into a program with a bulletin.

Once they spotted a little girl playing with a ball in the midst of whizzing traffic on the Harbor Freeway. She was too young to realize her danger.

Reed pushed the button on his microphone and shouted a warning. Several cars slowed or pulled over. Minutes later, police, alerted by Reed's broadcast, arrived and bundled the tot off.

The radio station had to wade through plenty of red tape before the Civil Aeronautics Administration and local authorities would approve the helicopter's low flights over the city.

The Bankrupts Is About Real Life

THE BANKRUPTS By Brian Glanville (Doubleday, $3.95).

A moving, biting novel of Jewish family life of today. It is a book you will read at one sitting.

What would prompt a young woman like Rosemary Frieman—pampered, beautiful, secure in her life of luxury and respectability—to rebel suddenly against everything she had ever known?

What gave this young woman, who had always acquiesced to her parents' wishes and their plans for a good marriage, the courage to set her own course, even though that course must exile her from family and conventional society?

And if the life she chose came suddenly and tragically to an end, with no going back, in what direction could Rosemary turn?

Who really were the bankrupts? Were they the father, mother, and friends. Rosemary had abandoned? Or was it Rosemary herself, struggling to realize the hopes and ambitions she had once so proudly assumed?

The Bankrupts is an unusual and revealing insight into the closed, traditionbound world of London's Jewish society. It is the moving story, challenging and rewarding, of a young woman whose heritage meant something wholly different to her than it had meant to her family.

Chaplain's Dream Will Come True

ABILENE, Tex. (UP)—A "Big Tent Revival" meeting — the dream of a former Army chaplain 14 years ago when he spent 52 days in the bloody "Battle of the Bulge" will come true next month.

The ex-chaplain is Jack Fogarty of Athens, Tex., who was attached to the 78th Infantry during World War II. He recalls how "amazed" he was "with the lack of knowledge of the Bible on the part of the average American soldier."

"When the chips were down," he said, "and these fighting men realized that they might never live to return to their homeland, it became apparent . . . through their questions . . . that they had only a very faint knowledge of the Bible.'

Fogarty made a decision during those fateful 52 days which changed his course of life. He told himself he would buy a big tent and take it to various cities over America and not wait for the local members and their friends to come hear the Bible taught. He would take it to them.

He has preached in almost every state in the union as a Church of Christ evangelist since he returned to the states in 1945.

The Fogartys all are ministers of the Church of Christ.

Columbus, New Mex., is the site of the last invasion of the United States by foreign troops. On March 9, 1916 a group of bandits led by Mexican rebel Francisco "Pancho" Villa crossed the border and raided Columbus, killing 16 Americans and burning much of the town.

The Italian Wife Is Exciting One

THE ITALIAN WIFE By EMYR Humphreys (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

In this probing novel, Emyr Humphreys explores a strange triangle . . . the relations of a famous London publisher, his young second wife, and his twenty-three-year-old son.

At the center of an ever-widening sphere of international influence is Richard Roth —movie magnate, owner of a vast newspaper empire, and behind - the - scenes politician. Compelled by a ruthless power drive, Roth recognizes no limits to his ambition. The urbane charm he has acquired through years of association with the world's most glittering society, and his ability to manipulate people, are the instruments of his success.

His private life is corrupted by complete self-indulgence. Unable to give more than capricious affection, he humiliates his wife, Paola, with his neglect and infidelity. On a vacation with Paola at a luxurious castle in the Austrian Alps, Richard meets a young adventuress with whom he has a disastrous affair. Paola is sent home to Italy, where she learns of the affair through the malice of Richard's court jester, now turned foe. Shamed and grieving, she turns toward Chris, to whom she has been both confidante and confessor. Alone with him at her Italian lake villa, her feelings change . . . her passion for her husband's son grows until Paola, no longer rational, makes an advance that nearly wrecks three lives.

For Chris, too, life has been a series of deceptions. Always in his father's shadow, misguided and frustrated by self-doubts, he is torn between a retreat to asceticism in a country vicarage and the pleasures of his Bohemian friends in London. The web of irony that runs through the lives of this fated family deeply affects Chris. Rejecting the daughter of his father's political ally, he can find love only with Marisa Tilson, daughter of Richard's oldest and most bitter enemy.

With Richard's return to Italy, the three principals meet in a tense dramatic scene that brings this exciting story to a surprising conclusion.

WORKSHOP FOR COMPOSERS

Youth Finds Hope For Native Opera

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — What is, I am sure, the biggest group of American opera composers ever to get together has just finished two weeks of profesional back - stage experience in this city, and the consensus of the young band of 15 who talked to me was:

"It looks as if we're on the verge of a bright future."

"Hope never sprang so eternal as it springs right now."

"There can be a season of American opera."

Indeed they came here because there was that kind of season. New York City Opera presented a five - week repertory program of 10 American works. The Ford Foundation paid part of the bill in the attempt to learn, at the suggestion of General Director Julius Rudel, whether the public was really interested in native works to the point of buying tickets for them.

First nights were all oversubscribed, and in - between attendance was good.

Youth Back - Stage

A further suggestion of Rudel's, after he was snowed under by some 200 opera scores submitted for the program, was to invite young composers to see how an opera house is run. Some 500 institutions were informed of the opportunity, there were 75 individual applications, and 30 were accepted. Their expenses, where necessary, were paid by Ford. Most of them had written operas, some of the works had been produced, one young composer even made money — a performance at Oberlin left him $9 to the good.

"Two directors here actually asked us for operas," they reported with understandable delight.

They were teachers and students. They were recommended by Kubelik, Mitropoulos, Krenek, Cowell; they had studied with Piston, Luening, Moore, Brownlee, Milhaud; they were on the faculty at New York University, Arizona State College, the State University of Iowa, Sacramento State College, the University of Illinois, and Wesleyan; one had been a television director in Cleveland, one was a Guggenheim fellow.

Rudel, sweating after a long afternoon dress rehearsal for the world premiere of "The Good Soldier Schweik," sat in on the discusion to point out:

Needed: An Outlet

"There is a wonderful preparatory level, workshop level, in the field of opera in this country, but once a talent is discovered, there's no place to absorb it. Some people count 500 opera companies across the land, but only four of them have seasons of any length, the Met, Chicago, San Francisco and this one."

The visiting composers said they were grateful to Rudel for having them here, letting them walk around and poke into things, see just what was done, ask all the questions they wanted, and find everybody willing to answer them.

What sort of questions?

"About projections: How are they set up?"

"About lighting: Just as important as the lighting itself, we learned, is the material on which light falls the the way the material reflects it."

"About how a director studies a score — one said he listened to it on the piano, one sang it."

"How much detailed instruction should a composer put into his score? How much should he try to help the stage director and the designer?" — they got conflicting answers to this.

Finding the Tools

They sat down for informative talks with publishers, more experienced composers, arrangers, designers and lighting experts. They attended Columbia conferences. They were impresed first hand by the extraordinary possibilities and the range of the modern stage —"15" seconds from America to Europe," as one of them said. None of them had ever heard so much opera in English, nor for that matter had New Yorkers themselves.

They were "picking up tools," as they expressed it. They saw, or heard, how important it is for the composer to know, not just voices in general, but the voices of those who will sing his work. They noted that sometimes the need for two minutes more in which to change a costume or a scene could oblige a composer to write two more minutes of music than his original inspiration had allowed for. They felt strongly that composers and stage directors must work closely together. It surprised them to see how everybody at the City Opera cooperated, how the job got done with no "emotional blow - ups."

What had they missed? They would have been glad to meet a dramatist, and a librettist. If they had any regret at all, it was voiced by one man looking back over a frantically busy two weeks:

"One thing is sure, we didn't have any time here to do any composing."

'GOD'S LITTLE ACRE'

Caldwell's Book Comes To Screen

A little more than twenty-five years ago (February 6, 1933) a book was published which became the most celebrated and controversial novel in print today. Since that publication date when Erskine Caldwell's "God's Little Acre" first appeared, better than nine million copies have rolled off the press in 21 languages.

This book has sold more copies than any other work of fiction in the history of literature. At various times during its turbulent publishing career, readers, publishers, editors, book experts, were sure about one thing — "God's Little Acre" could never be filmed.

The picture of the book was thoroughly human, and heir to all the bedevilments of the human flesh. The book was simply too realisitic. It remained for Caldwell to join forces with United Artists pictures to undertake filming "God's Little Acre" at long last.

The picture, which opens today at the Paramount Theatre, stars Robert Ryan, Aldo Ray, Tina Louise, Buddy Hackett and Fay Spain.

The book has run into trouble nearly everywhere it has appeared. In 1933 it was tried before the New York City Magistrate's Court and cleared. In 1948, "God's Little Acre" was seized by the Philadelphia police. The book was cleared again by The Court of Quarter Sessions and was also upheld on appeal to the Superior Court. Again in 1949 the book was brought to trial once more this time in the Massachusetts Court and was cleared with the decision reversed on appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

This nine - million - copy best-seller not only is denied to citizens of Massachusetts but cannot even be manufactured there.

The path of "God's Little Acre" apparently was never to be smooth. No sooner had the advance scouts gone to Georgia to select settings than Caldwell's native state turned on him, and refused to cooperate in leasing sites and the motion picture was filmed in Stockton, California.

Robert Ryan and Aldo Ray are not newcomers to the screen but the starring role of Griselda is played by a newcomer in the person of Tina Louise. Miss Louise is best known for her role on Broadway in the musical production of "Lil Abner."

Buddy Hackett, the nightclub and televeision comedian is also in the picture and plays the role of Pluto Swint.

"God's Little Acre" opens today at the Paramount Theatre in Monroe.

GOD'S LITTLE ACRE — Robert Ryan as Ty Ty comes across Aldo Ray as Will and Tina Louise as Griselda in a scene from Erskine Caldwell's controversial best-selling novel, "God's Little Acre." The film version of the internationally famous novel that sold over 20 million copies comes to the screen of the Paramount Theatre for a seven day run starting today. Also seen in the cast will be Buddy Hackett.

FAREWELL TO LEGS — George Gobel is torn between devotion and advertising as he leaves his wife, Diana Dors, in this scene from RKO's hilarious comedy, "I Married a Woman" in which the two share starring honors with co-star Adolphe Menjou, who portrays Gobel's boss. The picture starts Thursday at the Jim Theatre.

Canada Plans Revisions Of Many Stamps

Canada is planning a series of startling revisions in its stamps. In addition to being more colorful and more interesting there is even a hint of sex appeal.

This is the word of John A. MacDonald, head of the financial services for Canada's Postal Department. He is in charge of stamp designs.

Said MacDonald: "It's the choice of subject that appeals to people. You've got to have an emotional appeal."

On the agenda is a colorful stamp to appear this summer. It will show the portrait of a nurse and will honor Canada's public health and nursing services. A very attractive model was used as the subject for the portrait.

Two stamps have been issued by Argentina to commemorate its friendship with Bolivia. It also marks the inauguration of a railway between Salta, Argentina, and Yacuiba, Bolvia. The 40 centavos brown depicts the front view of a locomotive. The 1 peso sepia shows an airplane flying over the boundary lines of the two countries.

Entries by three United States collectors won "Best of Category" medals at the Centennial Inter-American Philatelic Exhibition at Parana, Argentina. Louis Stich of New York City won an award for his "Corrinetes" stamps study. Dr. James Matejka of Chicago won for his "Alaska Postal History." Mrs. Margaret Hackett of Yonkers, N. Y., received her prize for "Coaches on Stamps."

Ethiopia has issued three new airmail stamps of the same design commemorating the Conference of Independent African States held in Ghana, Conference building, monuments, a wreathed map of Africa and a portrait of Emperor Haille Selassie appear on each.

Japan has issued a new 10 yen stamp honoring this year's Stamp Hobby Week. The design is from a Torii Kiyonaga woodblock print. Another stamp ready for release is a 10 yen commemorating the opening of the ports of Yokahama, Hakodate and Nagasaki to foreign countries.

A new series of colorful postage stamps bearing the coats - of-arms of past viceroys and governors - general of Portuguese India has just been issued. There are eight in the series ranging from 2 pies (a fraction of a U. S. penny) and 1 rupeee (21 cents).

The Southern Fellowships Fund, agency of the Council of Southern Universities Inc., makes awards in basic sciences, social sciences and humanities designed to advance teaching and scholarship in 14 Southern states.

Epperson joined the LSU music faculty in 1952 after receiving his master's degree at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester. He is first cellist in the Baton Rouge civic symphony orchestra and has played with a number of other symphony orchestras.

'Lonesome George' Stars In Comedy

With many of his fellow comedians looking for new horizons to conquer in dramatic fields, George Gobel is one funnyman who definitely will stay put as a jokester.

"And I've got the best reason in the world," says "Lonesome George." "It's beautiful girls."

George points out that throughout the history of movies, from Mack Sennett to the present, filmland's comics have always had the most beautiful, exciting and glamorous gals as leading ladies.

"Take a look at the record," says Gobel, who stars with radiant Diana Dors in RKO's "I married a Woman," coming Thursday to the Jim Theatre.

"Bob Hope has traded quips with Hedy Lamarr, Jane Russell, Martha Hyer, Anita Ekberg, Dorothy Lamour and Virginia Mayo, to name but a few.

"Red Skelton has worked with such lovelies as Lucille Ball, Esther Williams, Sally Forrest, Vivian Blaine and Janet Blair. They're just examples," the crew - cut clown explains, "but they're representatives of the complete situation."

George is hard put to absolutely define the reason for the affinity of comics to lovely ladies on the screen.

"Some say it's a hangover from burlesque days," he says, "when every comedian had a scantily clad miss in his act. But whatever the reason, I'm all for it."

George can't understand why his contemporaries would throw away the opportunity to keep company with gorgeous females for a dramatic career.

"Look at my case," he laughs. "In my first film I was co-starred with Mitzi Gaynor, and in my latest, 'I Married a Woman,' I'm co-starred with fabulous Diana Dors, Britain's top feminine box-office attraction."

George appears as a gray flannel advertising expert in "I Married a Woman," which was written by the celebrated Goodman Ace of radio and TV game. Adolphe Menjou is co-starred and other notables in the cast are Jessie Royce Landis, Nita Talbot, William Redfield and Steve Dunne.

Hal Kanter directed the hilarious new comedy for Producer William Bloom.

NATIONALISM AN OBSTACLE

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The nationalism sweeping Asia has taken on a "religious coloring" which insists that native faiths be revived and kept, says Bishop Rajah B. Manikam, of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of South India. He said this new "religious nationalism" poses a tremendous obstacle to Christianity.

'GOD'S LITTLE ACRE'

Caldwell's Book Comes To Screen

A little more than twenty-five years ago (February 6, 1933) a book was published which became the most celebrated and controversial novel in print today. Since that publication date when Erskine Caldwell's "God's Little Acre' first appeared, better than nine million copies have rolled off the press in 21 languages.

This book has sold more copies than any other work of fiction in the history of literature. At various times during its turbulent publishing career, readers, publishers, editors, book experts, were sure about one thing — "God's Little Acre" could never be filmed.

The picture of the book was thoroughly human, and heir to all the bedevilments of the human flesh. The book was simply too realisitic. It remained for Caldwell to join forces with United Artists pictures to undertake filming "God's Little Acre" at long last.

The picture, which opens today at the Paramount Theatre, stars Robert Ryan, Aldo Ray, Tina Louise, Buddy Hackett and Fay Spain.

The book has run into trouble nearly everywhere it has appeared. In 1933 it was tried before the New York City Magistrate's Court and cleared. In 1948, "God's Little Acre" was seized by the Philadelphia police. The book was cleared again by The Court of Quarter Sessions and was also upheld on appeal to the Superior Court. Again in 1949 the book was brought to trial once more this time in the Massachusetts Court and was cleared with the decision reversed on appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

Louisiana Masons To Meet In Alex

Members of the order from throughout Louisiana will gather at the Masonic Home for Children in Alexandria on Sunday, May 18 for a full day's visit with the youngsters there.

J. Ben Higginbotham of Baton Rouge, Grand Master of the State of Louisiana, has set aside this time in order that the membership of lodges from over the state can bring their families and become better acquainted with this major Masonic activity.

The official explained that the event will be in the form of an old fashioned "picnic basket" gathering, with Rev. A. W. Townsend, Jr., of Alexandria, delivering the sermon at 10:30 a.m. service. His topic will be "Our Gratitude to God." The Acacia Fraternity Chorus of Louisiana State University will provide music for the services.

Dedication

At the conclusion of the lunch period, Grand Master Higginbotham will dedicate the newly erected cottage for older boys which is nearing completion on the southern portion of the campus. Higginbotham and Dr. Dee A. Strickland, of Monroe, will officiate at the dedication.

The Masonic Home at Alexandria is owned and operated by the Grand Lodge of the State of Louisiana, Free and Accepted Masons. It is the result of an idea that took shape in 1906 and became an actuality in 1922, a construction job in 1924, and a dedicated home in 1925.

The Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, has a fund dedicated to the home's use for playground equipment. During the years, the Shriners, Royal Arch Masons, Royal and Select Masters, Scottish Rite Masons, Veiled Prophets (Grotto), Amarath Order, DeMolay Orders and Rainbow Chapters have also given time and money to develop the institution.

88 On Rolls

At one time, there were as many at 105 children in the home, and the enrollment now stands at 88. Their ages range from three to 20 years. All the school age children attend the public schools in the city of Alexandria, being transported to and from school on a bus owned and operated by the Masonic Order. They attend the church of their choice, and are encouraged to be active in school and church programs.

As each child finishes high school, funds are available for a college education through the Masonic Home Educational Foundation, Inc. Interest from the principle of the fund is dedicated to the education of children from the home and to help children of Masons in the state who could not otherwise attend college.

Monroe Man

Dr. Dee A. Strickland of Monroe is chairman of the board of trustees of the home, and Frank J. Stevens is superintendent, living in quarters with his family on the campus. There is one registered nurse on the staff.

The home maintains its own beef cattle herd under the supervision of Past Grand Master William S. Kingrey of Kinder. He is a member of the board of trustees, along with Alex L. Stephens of Oakdale, Robert W. Cretney of Monroe, Steve Alford of Lake Charles, Henry Palfrey of Alexandria and George Treadwell of New Orleans. The Grand Master, Senior and Junior Wardens, secretary and treasurer are ex-officio members of the board.

WAITING FOR DOGS

NENANA, Alaska — (UP) — When railroad auditor Don Rozell was examining station accounts at the Alaska Railroad depot here, he observed there ws a big consignment of freight for St. Barnabas Mission in Minto, about 30 miles down the Tanana River. Upon searching the records for the reason, he found the notation: "Waiting for dog teams to pick up."

Mathematical problems inscribed on clay tablets found near Baghdad, the capital of Iraq, indicate that schoolboys were learning about the hypotenuse of a right triangle 1,700 years before the time of the master geometrician Euclid.

CREASY DISCLOSES

Seek Germs To Destroy Enemy

drugs that would knock out an enemy just temporarily are being sought by America's chemical warfare people.

This was disclosed Friday in testimony given by Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy to a House Appropriations Committee which released it, after sharp censoring.

Creasy reasoned that germs and drugs that neither kill or maim could prevent small wars or help to win nearly bloodless victories in a big one.

He also said that in event of a nuclear stalemate, Communist aggression "might turn to the chemical and biological weapons as an alternate."

He said this would be particularly likely "if we were unprepared to defend ourselves or to return like for like."

The best way to stop small wars from breaking out, he said, would be to develop some way to immobilize enemies.

"If we could come up with something that produces temporary blindness, this would be the ideal type of thing, where no one would be maimed," he added.

The general said that in the meantime the best that we can offer is to spread a temporary disease to debilitate or make enemy troops listless temporarily. There was no elaboration in the censored account of his testimony.

Creasy did rule out the use of smallpox as a germ agent, saying that this disease not only killed in many cases but left physical marks on survivors that could be an "eternal reminder" of the people who spread it.

Another goal Creasy laid down could be used to induce irrational behavior among forces of a nation making or threatening trouble.

The French National Assembly recently passed a law which says that no chicken on any menu or market in France may be called "Poulet de Bresse" except those raised within the 1,200 - square-mile area once ruled by the Duke of Burgundy.

Louisiana Masons To Meet In Alex

Members of the order from throughout Louisiana will gather at the Masonic Home for Children in Alexandria on Sunday, May 18 for a full day's visit with the youngsters there.

J. Ben Higginbotham of Baton Rouge, Grand Master of the State of Louisiana, has set aside this time in order that the membership of lodges from over the state can bring their families and become better acquainted with this major Masonic activity.

The official explained that the event will be in the form of an old fashioned "picnic basket" gathering, with Rev. A. W. Townsend, Jr., of Alexandria, delivering the sermon at 10:30 a.m. service. His topic will be "Our Gratitude to God." The Acacia Fraternity Chorus of Louisiana State University will provide music for the services.

Dedication

At the conclusion of the lunch period, Grand Master Higginbotham will dedicate the newly erected cottage for older boys which is nearing completion on the southern portion of the campus. Higginbotham and Dr. Dee A. Strickland, of Monroe, will officiate at the dedication.

The Masonic Home at Alexandria is owned and operated by the Grand Lodge of the State of Louisiana, Free and Accepted Masons. It is the result of an idea that took shape in 1906 and became an actuality in 1922, a construction job in 1924, and a dedicated home in 1925.

The Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, has a fund dedicated to the home's use for playground equipment. During the years, the Shriners, Royal Arch Masons, Royal and Select Masters, Scottish Rite Masons, Veiled Prophets (Grotto), Amarath Order, DeMolay Orders and Rainbow Chapters have also given time and money to develop the institution.

88 On Rolls

At one time, there were as many at 105 children in the home, and the enrollment now stands at 88. Their ages range from three to 20 years. All the school age children attend the public schools in the city of Alexandria, being transported to and from school on a bus owned and operated by the Masonic Order. They attend the church of their choice, and are encouraged to be active in school and church programs.

As each child finishes high school, funds are available for a college education through the Masonic Home Educational Foundation, Inc. Interest from the principle of the fund is dedicated to the education of children from the home and to help children of Masons in the state who could not otherwise attend college.

Monroe Man

Dr. Dee A. Strickland of Monroe is chairman of the board of trustees of the home, and Frank J. Stevens is superintendent, living in quarters with his family on the campus. There is one registered nurse on the staff.

The home maintains its own beef cattle herd under the supervision of Past Grand Master William S. Kingrey of Kinder. He is a member of the board of trustees, along with Alex L. Stephens of Oakdale, Robert W. Cretney of Monroe, Steve Alford of Lake Charles, Henry Palfrey of Alexandria and George Treadwell of New Orleans. The Grand Master, Senior and Junior Wardens, secretary and treasurer are ex-officio members of the board.

MONROE MORNING WORLD
May 11, 1958

Richard John, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond John, does his day dreaming only on occasion, but today he has heard his daddy and older brothers, Howard and Billy, planning a surprise for Mother's Day and likes the vision of his mother in his dreams.

Christine Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Moore, has the teen-age telephone habit. She isn't really listening to her friend, since her thoughts are on what her mother will wear on this all important day. Christine has a younger brother and sister, James Jr. and Margaret.

Vee Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Marshall, is a very busy little girl, but here she takes time out to think a minute about her mommy and how pretty she will look in her checked spring suit. And, she likes the picture.

MOTHER

Robert Norwood

O Mystery of mother-love—O days
Lost in the joy of giving! There is not
In any wide, star-margined garden-plot
Celestial, with beauty all ablaze
To infinite processionals of form,
One figure that so manifests the god
Resurgent from the everlasting norm,
Like woman with her babe. Again the rod
Blossoms by Jordan where the olive tree
Grows from the roots of Jesse; for each child,
Begotten of the Virgin-Mother mild,
Shares Christ's immaculate nativity.
All mothers meet the shepherds and the kings
Beside the cradle, taking gifts of gold,
Myrrh and sweet frankincense—glad offerings
From those who sit on thrones or guard the fold.
Unloose the sandals from your eager feet,
Kneel to adore, who pass along this way.
When you that moment of love's rapture meet,
Watch and be ready, bow the head and say,
As with a veil on your averted face,
"The Lord of Hosts hath visited this place!"

MOTHER

Robert Norwood

O Mystery of mother-love—O days
Lost in the joy of giving! There is not
In any wide, star-margined garden-plot
Celestial, with beauty all ablaze
To infinite processionals of form,
One figure that so manifests the god
Resurgent from the everlasting norm,
Like woman with her babe. Again the rod
Blossoms by Jordan where the olive tree
Grows from the roots of Jesse; for each child,
Begotten of the Virgin-Mother mild,
Shares Christ's immaculate nativity.
All mothers meet the shepherds and the kings
Beside the cradle, taking gifts of gold,
Myrrh and sweet frankincense—glad offerings
From those who sit on thrones or guard the fold.
Unloose the sandals from your eager feet,
Kneel to adore, who pass along this way.
When you that moment of love's rapture meet,
Watch and be ready, bow the head and say,
As with a veil on your averted face,
"The Lord of Hosts hath visited this place!"

Color Schemes Suggested By Betty Lenahan

A. — I am redecorating my living room and would like some suggestions. The two - piece sectional sofa is upholstered in charcoal, the tables are blond with brass trim and the lamps are aqua, gold and black. What colors would be suitable for the walls, throw rugs, draperies and two chairs?

A. — An effective color scheme for your living room would be off-white walls, turquoise throw rugs, draperies with a pattern in black, red and gold on a turquoise background, one chair upholstered in red and the other in black.

Q. — The wall tile in my bathroom is pale green and the floor tile is light beige. What colors would you suggest for the upper walls and ceiling, shower curtain, rug and towels?

A. — for the upper walls and ceiling of your bathroom, lilac; for the shower curtain, a pattern in plum on a gold background; rug, green; towels, yellow and mauve.

Q. — I am decorating a bedroom for my eight - year - old daughter and would like some help. The bed is burled walnut with a very tall headboard and a fairly high footboard and has deep side rails. Could a dust ruffle be used on this type of bed? There is also a dresser with a marble top and an unpainted kidney - shaped dressing table and stool. Should I try to finish them to match the walnut bed or would it be better to paint them. If so, what color? Also, what colors would you advise for the walls, rugs, curtains and bedspread?

A. — With the furniture you have you could develop a delightful Victorian scheme for your daughter's bedroom. Remove the headboard from the bed and replace it with the lower footboard. You can use a dust ruffle in spite of the deep side rails. Finish the marble - topped dresser and kidney - shaped dressing table in antique white and make a cushion and full skirt of turquoise corduroy for the stool. Paint the walls periwinkle, get the rug with an all - over floral pattern in black, aqua and red on a white background, white lace curtains and a red denim bedspread with a dust ruffle of red and white striped mattress ticking.

Q. — I am planning to redecorate my living room and adjoining dining room and would like some help in selecting colors for the walls, sofa, one chair and the seats of the dining room chairs. The carpeting in both rooms is a green tweed and the draperies and slipcover for a chair have a leaf pattern in orange, chartreuse, black, shades of brown and green on a white background. The furniture in the living room is blond with the exception of the desk, which is black and the dining-room furniture is in a dark finish.

A. — You could build the color scheme of your living room and adjoining dining room around the colors in the draperies by painting the walls cocoa, getting a sofa upholstered in green,

Women Not Louder Just Seems To Be

CHICAGO — Women really do not talk louder than men. It just sounds that way, says an acoustical engineer.

A high-pitched sound seems louder than a low-pitched sound at the same volume, said Guy Sanders, supervisor of the noise control section at the Armour Research Foundation. The foundation has done research on nearly every type of appliance that goes into a home. Findings are relayed to manufacturers.

"Actually, a sound-level meter has proved that most men put out a greater amount of sound power," said Sanders.

The volume of voices depends on surroundings, he added. Most people want to talk softly in a cozy room.

The children's room usually is the noisiest in the house. Then come the kitchen and recreation room. Adults usually talk louder in the kitchen than in other rooms because they subconsciously try to talk above the sound of appliances, even though modern appliances are quieter.

To achieve maximum quiet in a home, use acoustical tile for ceilings, porous fabrics for draperies, high pile carpeting, and upholstering to absorb sound, said Sanders.

Sack Dresses May Be A Pain, But Profitable

By DOROTHY ROE

The sack dress may be a headache to husbands, but it has been a lifesaver to retailers across the country, a survey of buyers and dress manufacturers reveals.

Furthermore, New York manufacturers in all price brackets will have few conventional waistline dresses in their fall collections. Even the most conservative say the new fall silhouettes will be about 90 per cent some variation of the chemise, the trapeze or the shift.

Meanwhile, consumer surveys across the country bring back almost identical replies: most men dislike the chemise to the point of violence. Most women say they don't really like it, but will wear it.

Resistance to the new unfitted styles is stronger in the higher priced lines. As one buyer explained it: "A man doesn't object too much if his wife spends $15 or $20 on a dress he doesn't like. But if the dress is going to cost $200, he hits the roof."

Abe Schrader, manufacturer of medium-priced dresses and costumes, reports: "If it hadn't been for the chemise and trapeze, our spring reorders would have been away off. As it is, we're selling them like hotcakes."

Adele Simpson, designer-manufacturer whose dresses and suits retail at from $70 to $200, says: "There will be no normal waistline dresses in my collection for fall. I've just returned from a trip to stores around the country, where I talked with customers in the dress departments, and I found that a surprising number of large women love the unfitted silhouette.

by Denise

This week saw the beginning of the parties and socials which mark the end of school and the start of summer vacations. A few of our people are taking advantage of the improvement in the weather to make short spring trips.

One of the nicest afairs of the May calendar is the annual open meeting of the Review Club. This year it was held in the Fine Arts building on the Northeast State campus, with GEORGE BRIAN as speaker. Among the 70 ladies attending were LILLIAN CUDD in navy blue with a pale blue mauline hat . . . VELMA WILLEY in a black and white plaid dress with its own three - quarter length coat . . . In a watered silk print was ELSIE M'CAY, whose large hat featured a green rose on the brim . . . NELWYN MONCRIEF's apricot chemise was perfectly complimented with a turban hat of the same shade . . . JUDE TURPIN also achieved the perfect color match with a bright Kelly green overblouse dress and hat . . . NANCY CONTELL's choice was cocoa for hat and dress.

SUE and CHARLES M'KENZIE, and MARN and LUKE MOUK took a long week - end. They went to New Orleans by way of Lafayette on Wednesday, and then proceeded to Gulfport Thursday for four days of sun and swimming . . . MRS. DAVID POBST, JR., and her children SUSAN, JANET, and DAVID have returned from a trip to Houston. They were guests of the FORREST LINQUISTS there . . . DOT HYLAND left her men at home this week and flew to Knoxville to visit her mother, LILLIAN LARUE. TOM and RICKY left Friday to drive to Chattanooga to meet her. They are all due back today.

The Homecoming luncheon of the Junior Charity League is another annual affair of interest in May. This year it was held on the Frances roof, where the tables were arranged in a U--shape around the style show runway. League members and their children modeled the latest in spring and summer attire. Active members present included MARILYN CLAY in an aqua silk shirtwaist with a hat of aqua print on white . . . NAOMI DURRETT in a light blue linen sheath printed in white . . . NANCY OLIPHINT in an orange plaid linen chemise with matching hat . . . CELEST HART in black with a brown jacket, worn with a brown cloche . . . PAT SANDERS in a navy sack dress and cloche, with long ropes of beads . . . NAN SALISBURY wore a white hat trimmed with tiny orange flowers with her orange shirtwaist dress . . . MARGE MULLENS was in beige with a jacket striped in shades of brown.

Many life and inactive members were included among the 150 ladies who attended the luncheon. Denise spied ARDEN M'DOWELL in a spring blue suit with close-filtting cloche . . . ENOLA ROGERS in a white organdy turban . . . ADELE RANSOM in a white overblouse with printed silk hat and scarf . . . NELL FAULK in a royal blue dress with a paisley print hat . . . Making a pretty picture in their wide - brimmed hats were DINAH ANDERS, DOT SEARCY, and MARY ALICE LOFLIN.

Several out of town visitors attended the league meeting. PAT MADDEN's guest was her mother, MRS. H. C. CUMMINGS of Shreveport, who came over to see her granddaughter, CAROL, model in the style show . . . MRS. THEO KRAMER of Franklin and MAMIE DIXON of Sterlington were the guests of TEETIE DIXON. The Kramers were week-end guests and were honored at several small impromptu parties.

MABEL RATLIFF entertained four couples at dinner on Tuesday evening. An arrangement of pink and red roses was used on the mantel, and a mixed spring bouquet on the table. Mabel was wearing emerald green silk. The menu was broiled chicken in mushrooms; baked beans; a mixed vegetable salad with asparagus, artichoke hearts, and such; and hot apple pie with cheese.

Five pre - schoolers gathered at the Lotus Club for a luncheon party honoring little LOUISE NORMAN of New Orleans, who has been visiting here. Favors were tiny plastic purses, each containing several pennies. Guests were CHRISTINE MOORE, BIB COBB, VEE MARSHALL, and JANIE COBB. They ate — of course — hamburgers with ice cream. Hostess for this charming party was Louise's grandmother, LOUISE LEIGH who ws assisted by MRS. O. R. GRISHAM.

The junior high students of LOLLY NEEL's classes ended their year with a dance Wednesday night. Among the sixty boys and girls who attended were BEVERLY BLACKMON in a bouffant yellow organdy . . . PHYLLIS FREEMAN in aqua chiffon . . . K K KITE in black and white checked taffeta with an embroidered organdy yoke . . . KATHY M'SHERRY in yellow polished cotton with an organdy panel down the front . . . GAY HARGROVE's white cotton had a woven satin stripe. With it she wore a pink satin sash . . . ANN EDMONDSON chose yellow polished cotton with an overskirt of embroidered organdy . . . Very, very stylish was JUDY SWAYZE in a blue cotton trapeze dress . . . In blue and white stripe polished cotton was MILANN GANNAWAY . . . CONNIE YANCEY's yellow dotted Swiss was made with a tiered skirt . . . GAYLE DUNN wore white organdy over blue polished cotton . . . The group played one game between dances, with RICHARD BRITTON winning the boys' prize. Girls' winner was GAYLE KELLY, who was wearing an exquisite pink embroidered organdy.

On this day of hearts and flowers sentiment for mothers, let us pause to remember the mother who said "The years are short, but the days are so long." This feeling of being overcome by ordinary chores rather than the big sacrifices is beautifully expressed in this anonymous mother's "Kitchen Prayer":

Lord of all pots and pans, and things,
Since I've not time to be
A saint by doing lovely things
Or watching late with Thee,
Or dreamining in the dawn light,
Or storming heaven's gates,
Make me a saint by getting meals
And washing up the plates.
Warm all the kitchen with Thy love
And light it with Thy peace.
Forgive me all my worry,
And make my grumbling cease.
Thou who didst love to give men food,
In room or by the sea,
Accept this service that I do.
I do it unto Thee.

MISS DOROTHY ELAINE McDONALD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Crocker McDonald of Bangor, Maine, formerly of Monroe, is engaged to marry William Sawyer Pozzy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Pozzy also of Bangor. A summer wedding is being planned.

The Paris smock, the rising waistline, and the chemise will keep silhouettes relaxed for little girls next fall. Dresses will have their own coordinated jackets, plenty of pleats and new nautical touches. Look for three-piece suit ensembles.

Hats To Hose Are A Blaze Of Gay Color

From Hats to Hose this summer milady will be ablaze with color! Whether you choose to wear the controversial chemise or an effeminate full-skirted, scooped-neck frock, you'll have difficulty deciding which of the many beautiful colors you'll most enjoy.

Fabrics are themselves delightful! Dacron and nylon compete with shantungs, a rajah silk and raw silk. And fabric designers have truly outdone themselves in their deftness with colors.

They dipped their brushes into the lovely hues of the sunrise for tinted ivories, lemon yellow, and orange ice. For the glorious range of red, from flame to ruby, they touched the sunset, and, as twilight deepened they captured fading primrose pinks, lavenders, and purples.

For blues they chose the deep, velvety waters of Lake Louise and dark, mysterious African skies. The white and bright touches they snatched from flitting moonbeams and sprinkled them with dust from falling stars.

Glorious colors all — each gay —enchanting. Is it any wonder with styles so excitingly different, and colors so gloriously gala that 1958 is predicted to make fashion headlines that will go down in history?

In this year's bevy of color no item of womens' clothing has escaped the artist's brush. Undies are filmy and dreamy yet lush with tints subtle, and again, not so subtle. Hats are impishly lavish creations — risque as Godiva —courageous as Joan of Arc.

Shoes with heels so high it's like walking in the clouds — are fashioned in every color and even color combinations. Some are artistically sculptured from printed, flowered or striped fabrics. All are designed to call attendion to this year's leggy look.

Speaking of legs — hose for summer are simply out of this world — like magic gauze from angel's wings — delicately tinted as they flitted through the clouds.

On Dit'

by Denise

This week saw the beginning of the parties and socials which mark the end of school and the start of summer vacations. A few of our people are taking advantage of the improvement in the weather to make short spring trips.

One of the nicest afairs of the May calendar is the annual open meeting of the Review Club. This year it was held in the Fine Arts building on the Northeast State campus, with GEORGE BRIAN as speaker. Among the 70 ladies attending were LILLIAN CUDD in navy blue with a pale blue mauline hat . . . VELMA WILLEY in a black and white plaid dress with its own three - quarter length coat . . . In a watered silk print was ELSIE M'CAY, whose large hat featured a green rose on the brim . . . NELWYN MONCRIEF's apricot chemise was perfectly complimented with a turban hat of the same shade . . . JUDE TURPIN also achieved the perfect color match with a bright Kelly green overblouse dress and hat . . . NANCY CONTELL's choice was cocoa for hat and dress.

SUE and CHARLES M'KENZIE, and MARN and LUKE MOUK took a long week - end. They went to New Orleans by way of Lafayette on Wednesday, and then proceeded to Gulfport Thursday for four days of sun and swimming . . . MRS. DAVID POBST, JR., and her children SUSAN, JANET, and DAVID have returned from a trip to Houston. They were guests of the FORREST LINQUISTS there . . . DOT HYLAND left her men at home this week and flew to Knoxville to visit her mother, LILLIAN LARUE. TOM and RICKY left Friday to drive to Chattanooga to meet her. They are all due back today.

The Homecoming luncheon of the Junior Charity League is another annual affair of interest in May. This year it was held on the Frances roof, where the tables were arranged in a U--shape around the style show runway. League members and their children modeled the latest in spring and summer attire. Active members present included MARILYN CLAY in an aqua silk shirtwaist with a hat of aqua print on white . . . NAOMI DURRETT in a light blue linen sheath printed in white . . . NANCY OLIPHINT in an orange plaid linen chemise with matching hat . . . CELEST HART in black with a brown jacket, worn with a brown cloche . . . PAT SANDERS in a navy sack dress and cloche, with long ropes of beads . . . NAN SALISBURY wore a white hat trimmed with tiny orange flowers with her orange shirtwaist dress . . . MARGE MULLENS was in beige with a jacket striped in shades of brown.

Many life and inactive members were included among the 150 ladies who attended the luncheon. Denise spied ARDEN M'DOWELL in a spring blue suit with close-filtting cloche . . . ENOLA ROGERS in a white organdy turban . . . ADELE RANSOM in a white overblouse with printed silk hat and scarf . . . NELL FAULK in a royal blue dress with a paisley print hat . . . Making a pretty picture in their wide - brimmed hats were DINAH ANDERS, DOT SEARCY, and MARY ALICE LOFLIN.

Several out of town visitors attended the league meeting. PAT MADDEN's guest was her mother, MRS. H. C. CUMMINGS of Shreveport, who came over to see her granddaughter, CAROL, model in the style show . . . MRS. THEO KRAMER of Franklin and MAMIE DIXON of Sterlington were the guests of TEETIE DIXON. The Kramers were week-end guests and were honored at several small impromptu parties.

MABEL RATLIFF entertained four couples at dinner on Tuesday evening. An arrangement of pink and red roses was used on the mantel, and a mixed spring bouquet on the table. Mabel was wearing emerald green silk. The menu was broiled chicken in mushrooms; baked beans; a mixed vegetable salad with asparagus, artichoke hearts, and such; and hot apple pie with cheese.

Five pre - schoolers gathered at the Lotus Club for a luncheon party honoring little LOUISE NORMAN of New Orleans, who has been visiting here. Favors were tiny plastic purses, each containing several pennies. Guests were CHRISTINE MOORE, BIB COBB, VEE MARSHALL, and JANIE COBB. They ate — of course — hamburgers with ice cream. Hostess for this charming party was Louise's grandmother, LOUISE LEIGH who ws assisted by MRS. O. R. GRISHAM.

The junior high students of LOLLY NEEL's classes ended their year with a dance Wednesday night. Among the sixty boys and girls who attended were BEVERLY BLACKMON in a bouffant yellow organdy . . . PHYLLIS FREEMAN in aqua chiffon . . . K K KITE in black and white checked taffeta with an embroidered organdy yoke . . . KATHY M'SHERRY in yellow polished cotton with an organdy panel down the front . . . GAY HARGROVE's white cotton had a woven satin stripe. With it she wore a pink satin sash . . . ANN EDMONDSON chose yellow polished cotton with an overskirt of embroidered organdy . . . Very, very stylish was JUDY SWAYZE in a blue cotton trapeze dress . . . In blue and white stripe polished cotton was MILANN GANNAWAY . . . CONNIE YANCEY's yellow dotted Swiss was made with a tiered skirt . . . GAYLE DUNN wore white organdy over blue polished cotton . . . The group played one game between dances, with RICHARD BRITTON winning the boys' prize. Girls' winner was GAYLE KELLY, who was wearing an exquisite pink embroidered organdy.

On this day of hearts and flowers sentiment for mothers, let us pause to remember the mother who said "The years are short, but the days are so long." This feeling of being overcome by ordinary chores rather than the big sacrifices is beautifully expressed in this anonymous mother's "Kitchen Prayer":

Lord of all pots and pans, and things,
Since I've not time to be
A saint by doing lovely things
Or watching late with Thee,
Or dreamining in the dawn light,
Or storming heaven's gates,
Make me a saint by getting meals
And washing up the plates.
Warm all the kitchen with Thy love
And light it with Thy peace.
Forgive me all my worry,
And make my grumbling cease.
Thou who didst love to give men food,
In room or by the sea,
Accept this service that I do.
I do it unto Thee.

'Balance' Has Many Meanings In Room Decor

A single over-stuffed chair in a furniture grouping of smaller pieces and low tables is obviously a bad bit of balancing. Domination of a room or setting by a single piece should be avoided.

In a recreation room where the decor is often less formalized than in other living areas, the same sense of balance should obtain.

Of growing popularity are recreation room walls surfaced with colorful and durable ceramic tile, because the wide range of colors and design gives the home planner a free range for her imagination.

New 'Press-On' Coverings Can Restore Books

If the cover of your favorite cook book is beginning to look moth-eaten and bedraggled around the edges, re-cover it.

It's easy to do with one of the colorful, easy - to - apply decorative materials now featured in the stores.

There's one that comes with an adhesive backing that will help you do the job in jig time. All you do is cut the material to size, press it into place on the old cover, smooth it down and you have what, to all appearances, is a bright and shining new cook book.

This material comes in a variety of colors and patterns. It has many other uses in the kitchen, too, such as covering old canisters, bread boxes or other accessories. You can make your "new" cook book match the decorative scheme of these other kitchen accessories if you wish.

Incidentally, try it as a new cover for the children's old play books, too. It works fine.

Now It's The Chemise Chair

CHICAGO — No need to worry about sitting down in a chemise. Furniture designers have solved that awkward problem.

They have come up with a "chemise" chair, made for the woman who finds chemise skirts too tight to sit down gracefully. The chair, displayed at the International Furniture Design Show here, has a higher seat, foam-rubber cushions and swivel and rocking action.

When defrosting the refrigerator, line the botton with paper towels to absorb excess water.

Follow These Hints For Complexion

Here are two fundamental pointers to employ faithfully each day so that a healthy, glowing complexion will radiate beneath your new spring hat.

First, soap scrub your face at night (or oftener if you have oily skin) using the tips of your fingers to loosen grime and make-up. This scrubbing action also massages the skin and helps bring color to your cheeks by stimulating circulation.

Rinse soapsuds off thoroughly. Again use clean hands or a spanking clean washcloth.

Second, counteract the drying effect of the scrubbing action by liberally applying your favorite cream. Let this soak in a few minutes. Then wipe all cream off with tissues, using as many clean tissues as you need.

Cook rice in pineapple juice for extra flavor when serving it with curried pork or veal.

Floor Tests Prove Facts On Floors

Vinyl and rubber tile floor coverings proved most resistant to wear in tests made recently. Dark solid colors in most floor coverings show wear the most, the tests proved, with the exception of rubber tile. Dark colored rubber tile changed in appearance less than lighter colors. Wet or damp abrasives caused faster wear than dry abrasives on all floor coverings except cork. Cork wore down faster when the abrasive was dry. This test showed that wet shoes or overshoes and bringing in sand, mud or other grit is especially hard on most floor coverings. Doormats are money savers, especially in wet weather.

REV. AND MRS. GENE SIMPKINS

Floor Tests Prove Facts On Floors

Vinyl and rubber tile floor coverings proved most resistant to wear in tests made recently. Dark solid colors in most floor coverings show wear the most, the tests proved, with the exception of rubber tile. Dark colored rubber tile changed in appearance less than lighter colors. Wet or damp abrasives caused faster wear than dry abrasives on all floor coverings except cork. Cork wore down faster when the abrasive was dry. This test showed that wet shoes or overshoes and bringing in sand, mud or other grit is especially hard on most floor coverings. Doormats are money savers, especially in wet weather.

REV. AND MRS. GENE SIMPKINS

Impressive Ceremony Unites Miss Donaldson And Rev. Simpkins

The Hodge United Pentecostal Church was the scene of an impressive ceremony on April 15, at seven o'clock in the evening, which united in marriage Miss Pattyce Donaldson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Terryl Donaldson of Eros, and Rev. Gene Simpkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Simpkins of West Monroe.

The Rev. Johnny Burgess, Tallulah, brother-in-law of the bride, heard the vows before an altar flanked by tall baskets of white gladioli and carnations. Branched candelabra burning white tapers were lighted by David Nordon of West Monroe and Linda Knox of Hodge. Mrs. Wayne Fordham played a concert of nuptial music as the guests were seated. She accompanied the soloist, Tommy Davis, who sang "O Promise Me" just after the candles were lighted and "Whither Thou Goest" as the bride entered on the arm of her father, and "The Lord's Prayer" as they knelt at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown, princess style, of white slipper satin. The high neckline was decorated with seed pearls. The long sleeves, pointed over the hands, were decorated with seed pearls. Her finger tip veil was caught with a lace crown encrusted with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations encircling a lavender orchid.

Mrs. Johnnie Burgess, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Her floor length gown was orchid. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Gladys Ainsworth, sister of the groom, Miss Patsy Hayden and Miss Glenda Miller. Mrs. Ainsworth wore a pale green gown, Miss Miller wore pink and Miss Hayden wore blue. All wore muffs of matching materials and were adorned with bouquets of tiny pink rosebuds. The little flower girl, Gwennett Phillips, dressed in a floor length gown of orchid pink, scattered rose petals from a lovely basket. Miss Linda Knox, who was one of the candle lighters, wore a floor length gown of yellow.

J. C. Ainsworth served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Aubrey Simpkins, brother of the groom, Jimmy Donaldson, cousin of the bride, and Quenton Causey.

Mrs. Donaldson chose for her daughter's wedding a blue brocaded dacron with accessories to match. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige two piece silk with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held in the church annex. The bride's table, with crocheted cover over white linen, was centered with a three - tiered cake embossed with pink rose buds and lillies of the valley and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Mrs. Jim Kelley of Hodge served the cake. Mrs. Theodis Fuller served at the punch bowl and Miss Linda Davis at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to south Louisiana the bride wore a two-piece blue suit with black accessories. The orchid from her bridal bouquet was her corsage. Mrs. Simpkins is a senior in the Eros High School. The groom attended Ouachita Parish High School. The couple will live in Eros.

Out - of - town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. T. L. Fuller and Billie Rose, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ainsworth, Mr. and Mrs. David Hall, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Nordon and David, Rev. and Mrs. H. Helpful Hints For Children On Long Trips

Long journeys by car can be made more pleasant by following a few easy rules.

First, schedule frequent stops to permit the youngsters to run around a bit, and to give the driver a needed "break."

It helps, too, to pack some snacks for roadside picnics. Do this simply, too. Use paper plates, cups and napkins. For greatest protection, use larger - size napkins.

They can be used as place mats or as bibs for the youngsters; and they do a wonderful "stay-on-the-lap" job for adults. Best of all, your paper accessories can be tossed in a refuse can when the picnic's over.

One more suggestion — to keep the children busy, bring along favorite toys for the small ones, and cards, road maps and books for the older children.

Use cellophane tape to pick up pieces of broken glass safely.

Ornamental cut or etched glassware is brighter and cleaner when scrubbed with a soft brush dipped in a baking soda solution. Rinse, then wipe with a soft towel.

Girl Scout News

With sunshine once more we think eagerly about out of door activities. Troop 10 was rained out of its overnight but we believe Troop 4 was able to go to Pine Wood Friday night for their long-awaited spend the night.

July may seem like a long way off, but Scouts and their parents have learned that they have to do long - term planning in Scouting. Registrations for day camp and other summer activities are coming in steadily, a check with the office reveals. The quota of 60 of next year's fourth graders and 40 sixth graders has been filled for the first day camp session, July 7-18. There are still a few vacancies in the other age groups and plenty of room in the second session, July 21-August 1.

The sewing class is about full, there are a few vacancies in the pottery group, both activities open to sixth graders and older. The first cooking class, beginning June 16, has only a few vacancies. Swimming registrations have been coming in at a regular rate. The program committee says parents should register their children as soon as possible. The doctor's statement can be mailed or left at the office at any time before June 2, when classes start.

Swimming instruction, Mrs. Leon Noland, program chairman, announces, will be for girls from next year's third grade up, including a class in junior lifesaving. There will be four classes at each hour, 3:00, 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock, with Red Cross Water Safety Instructors in charge.

It's pretty at Pine Wood at any time, but with the new growth on the trees, the native iris in bloom, and everything very green from the rains, it is especially pretty now. It is a good place for a troop's cookout or family picnic, as well as for day and troop camping.

Some badly needed rewiring has been done in the building by Mr. L. E. Frith and Mr. Merle Edwards, our camp chairman, who deserve our thanks for giving their spare time. When the buildings dry out enough, they are to be stained. A recent gift from the Kiwanis Club has helped make this possible. It is interest like this on the part of troop leaders, camp staff, board members, and those of you who donate to United Givers, who make Scouting possible for the girls of our community and thus help make it a better place to live.

Helpful Hints For Children On Long Trips

Long journeys by car can be made more pleasant by following a few easy rules.

First, schedule frequent stops to permit the youngsters to run around a bit, and to give the driver a needed "break."

It helps, too, to pack some snacks for roadside picnics. Do this simply, too. Use paper plates, cups and napkins. For greatest protection, use larger - size napkins.

They can be used as place mats or as bibs for the youngsters; and they do a wonderful "stay-on-the-lap" job for adults. Best of all, your paper accessories can be tossed in a refuse can when the picnic's over.

One more suggestion — to keep the children busy, bring along favorite toys for the small ones, and cards, road maps and books for the older children.

Use cellophane tape to pick up pieces of broken glass safely.

Ornamental cut or etched glassware is brighter and cleaner when scrubbed with a soft brush dipped in a baking soda solution. Rinse, then wipe with a soft towel.

Girl Scout News

With sunshine once more we think eagerly about out of door activities. Troop 10 was rained out of its overnight but we believe Troop 4 was able to go to Pine Wood Friday night for their long-awaited spend the night.

July may seem like a long way off, but Scouts and their parents have learned that they have to do long - term planning in Scouting. Registrations for day camp and other summer activities are coming in steadily, a check with the office reveals. The quota of 60 of next year's fourth graders and 40 sixth graders has been filled for the first day camp session, July 7-18. There are still a few vacancies in the other age groups and plenty of room in the second session, July 21-August 1.

The sewing class is about full, there are a few vacancies in the pottery group, both activities open to sixth graders and older. The first cooking class, beginning June 16, has only a few vacancies. Swimming registrations have been coming in at a regular rate. The program committee says parents should register their children as soon as possible. The doctor's statement can be mailed or left at the office at any time before June 2, when classes start.

Swimming instruction, Mrs. Leon Noland, program chairman, announces, will be for girls from next year's third grade up, including a class in junior lifesaving. There will be four classes at each hour, 3:00, 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock, with Red Cross Water Safety Instructors in charge.

It's pretty at Pine Wood at any time, but with the new growth on the trees, the native iris in bloom, and everything very green from the rains, it is especially pretty now. It is a good place for a troop's cookout or family picnic, as well as for day and troop camping.

Some badly needed rewiring has been done in the building by Mr. L. E. Frith and Mr. Merle Edwards, our camp chairman, who deserve our thanks for giving their spare time. When the buildings dry out enough, they are to be stained. A recent gift from the Kiwanis Club has helped make this possible. It is interest like this on the part of troop leaders, camp staff, board members, and those of you who donate to United Givers, who make Scouting possible for the girls of our community and thus help make it a better place to live.

MISSIONAIES

Bolivia To Be Home Of Ruston Family

The final decision to give up thir home, friends, and relatives to become missionaries in Bolivia, South America, was made by Carl and Julia Williams of Ruston last September. Their prayers and dreams came true when they applied to the board of missions for the Methodist Church. Together with their three children, Carl Edward, five, Jim Bob, four, and Christi Lou, who is eight months old, the Williamses plan to go to Bolivia as Methodist missionaries.

The Williamses did not just pack and leave for South America, but first they will attend Scarritt College in Nashville, Tennessee — they will study there for nine months. The New Testament, social anthology, and Spanish are some of the subjects they will study in Nashville.

Although the language of the country is Spanish, the Indians where Carl and Julia will live speak a language of their own. The young missionaries plan to attend a language school in Costa Rica when finishing at Scarritt College.

The Williamses will be living on a plateau near Lake Titicaca that is 13,000 feet above sea level. The plateau is located between two ranges of the Andes Mountains. "The funny thing about this," states Julia Williams, "is hearing an airplane but having to look down to see it!"

Descendents of the ancient Incas live on the plateau where Mr. and Mrs. Williams will work. Carl explained that through the centuries the people of the country have not changed and have followed in the footsteps of their forefathers. They raise the same basic crops, which are mainly potatoes and a kind of grain that is made into cereal.

These people live in mud houses and have no conveniences. The Llama provides their meat, wool, leather, and transportation. The Indians' two main problems are sanitation and undernourishment.

Julia, an education major, will teach her own children along with the Indian children. Other than teaching normal children, Mrs. Williams was the first teacher at Ruston's school for retarded children.

Carl holds a masters degree in agriculture from LSU and will teach agriculture in Bolivia. He will experiment to see what new foods he can get to grow. Also, other than getting to know the people, he will try to interest them in protein and vitamin foods, and he will try to change their way of farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams deduce that the people of Bolivia have potential, but they are hard to change. "The best way to reach a people is to work through their children," will serve as their basic motto in missionary work.

Evangelistic Week Slated By Baptists

An eight day period of evangelistic effort beginning today will highlight the dedication of the newly redecorated sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Monroe, Dr. James T. Horton, pastor of the church, announced today.

"I know of no better way to dedicate this remodeled portion of the building than through evangelistic activity to magnify the church and to glorify God," Dr. Horton said.

Dr. Horton expressed his appreciation for the interest and cooperation shown by members of the church as well as unaffiliated Baptists and non - church members in the cottage prayer meetings held in preparation for the revival.

L. Shore Church Launches Plans For Kindergarten

The Lakeshore Baptist Church located at Lakeshore and Camellia Drive in regular monthly business meeting this week voted to launch a kindergarten program this fall.

Registration will begin at the church May 21 at 10:00 a.m. Children who will be five years of age on or before December 31, 1958 and expect to enter the first grade of public school the following year are eligible to register.

There will be three hours of instruction on days corresponding generally with the public school. For additional information one may call FA 3-4509 or FA 2-7493.

The Kindergarten committee of the church is composed of the following: Mr. John Craft, Dr. Jack Harrington, Mr. D. T. Head, Mrs. Mary Lou Humphries, Mrs. D. L. Allen, Mrs. Helen Crow, and the pastor. Plans are now being made for very competent teachers to conduct the new kindergarten. The Lakeshore Church offers this program out of a sense of real need in the area and is happy to do so.

The Lakeshore Baptist Church was constituted in 1954 with 38 charter members and now has a membership of 355 with over 500 enrolled in Sunday School. Plans are being made for the third unit of construction of a long range building program. Fourteen lots are now owned by the church. This continues to be "A Growing Church in a Growing Community," according to the pastor, Rev. Vester Headrick.

The original site of Charleston, capital of West Virginia, was purchased in 1887 by George Clendenin, a member of the Virginia Assembly, for five shillings.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a very old man and have been very wicked all my life. I would like to turn to God now but am afraid He won't accept me at this late hour. Besides, I am no longer able to do anything to merit His favor. Can you help me? R. K.

ANSWER: Don't you know that the desire to know the Lord shows that the Spirit of God is now speaking to you, otherwise you would have no desire? Your age is not the most important consideration in this matter so long as there is the desire. Jesus once gave a parable to show that it makes no difference providing you respond to the invistation when it is given. That parable is with the familiar verse, "So the found in Matthew 20:1-16 and ends last shall be first and the first last."

There is a good reason why this is so. Salvation does not depend on your personal merit but on the merit of Jesus Christ. In a lifetime you could not store up sufficient merit to enter Heaven. Concerning this Paul once wrote, "Where is the glorying? It is excluded. By what manner of law? Of works? Nay, but by a law of faith." I urge you, then, to respond to the urge to trust Christ, for He is able to save all that come unto God by Him.

Sing Program Well Received By Japanese

Expanding a program of evangelism through the mass media, the United Church of Christ of Japan, of which the former Methodist and Presbyterian missions from the U. S. A. are now a part, has made its first venture into the field of sponsored radio broadcasting. A program of Christian hymns, "Songs of the Heart," is broadcast weekly to an estimated audience of 1,000,000 persons in Tokyo.

The hymn program is a new facet of a growing effort by the United Church to take the Christian message to Japan's 90,000,000 non-Christians through mass communications media such as the press, television, radio, movies and magazines. It is an effort similar to that being made by Americn churches.

Broadcast each Saturday morning over Radio Tokyo, Japan's largest commercial broadcasting station, "Songs of the Heart" includes fifteen minutes of hymns with a brief interpretative message in the middle. It is produced by AVACO, the Audio Visual Aids Committee of the United Church. The hymns are sung by the 45-voice AVACO choir. The program is also heard in Kobe.

"Songs of the Heart" draws a listener response of almost 200 letters a week. Each listener who writes in is sent a small hymnbook and a letter of introduction to a Protestant church near his home. If he writes concerning a personal problem or with a question, the letter gets a personal answer from a specially trained United Church minister.

United Church experts in mass communications say the potential listening audience in and around Tokyo and Kobe is more than one-fourth of Japan's population.

MISSIONAIES

Bolivia To Be Home Of Ruston Family

The final decision to give up their home, friends, and relatives to become missionaries in Bolivia, South America, was made by Carl and Julia Williams of Ruston last September. Their prayers and dreams came true when they applied to the board of missions for the Methodist Church. Together with their three children, Carl Edward, five, Jim Bob, four, and Christi Lou, who is eight months old, the Williamses plan to go to Bolivia as Methodist missionaries.

The Williamses did not just pack and leave for South America, but first they will attend Scarritt College in Nashville, Tennessee -- they will study there for nine months. The New Testament, social anthology, and Spanish are some of the subjects they will study in Nashville.

Although the language of the country is Spanish, the Indians where Carl and Julia will live speak a language of their own. The young missionaries plan to attend a language school in Costa Rica when training is completed.

The Williamses will live in a place that is 12,000 feet above sea level. The climate is cold and the ranges of the Andes Mountains are visible from the city. Carl and Julia Williams are anxious to see the country and the people.

They plan to live on the mission field for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. Williams expect to learn the native language, Aymara, and Quechua. They will also learn the Indians' customs and superstitions, and sanitation and preventive measures.

Julia, an education major, will teach her own children along with the Indian children. Other than teaching normal children, Mrs. Williams was the first teacher at Ruston's school for retarded children.

Carl holds a masters degree in agriculture from LSU and will teach agriculture in Bolivia. He will experiment to see what new foods he can get to grow. Also, other than getting to know the people, he will try to interest them in protein and vitamin foods, and he will try to change their way of farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams deduce that the people of Bolivia have potential, but they are hard to change. "The best way to reach a people is to work through their children," will serve as their basic motto in missionary work.

Evangelistic Week Slated By Baptists

An eight day period of evangelistic effort beginning today will highlight the dedication of the newly redecorated sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Monroe, Dr. James T. Horton, pastor of the church, announced today.

"I know of no better way to dedicate this remodeled portion of the building than through evangelistic activity to magnify the church and to glorify God," Dr. Horton said.

Dr. T. C. Pennell, pastor of Engleside Baptist Church, Shreveport, and president of the Louisiana Baptist Convention will conduct the revival services. He will be assisted by Wayne Miley, minister of music at the local church.

Dr. Pennell will begin his series of services at the church tonight, and will continue with two services daily — 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. — through next Sunday evening.

The revival planning committee has designated Monday night as "Men's Night," Tuesday as "Ladies' Night," Wednesday as "Juniors' Night," Thursday as "Family Night."

Dr. Horton expressed his appreciation for the interest and cooperation shown by members of the church as well as unaffiliated Baptists and non - church members in the cottage prayer meetings held in preparation for the revival.

The revival committee and Dr. Horton extended an invitation to all persons of all denominations of the Twin Cities to participate in the revival and view the newly appointed sanctuary.

Two members of the Sodality will each place a bouquet of daisies on the altar which will be decorated with flowers for the occasion. The choir, under the direction of Sister Theophane will sing a high mass following the sermon by the Rev. Joseph Monfalbano, director of the Sodality.

At the 8 a. m. mass, thirty first graders at St. Matthew's will receive their first Holy Communion from the hands of the pastor.

L. Shore Church Launches Plans For Kindergarten

The Lakeshore Baptist Church located at Lakeshore and Camellia Drive in regular monthly business meeting this week voted to launch a kindergarten program this fall.

Registration will begin at the church May 21 at 10:00 a.m. Children who will be five years of age on or before December 31, 1958 and expect to enter the first grade of public school the following year are elizible to register.

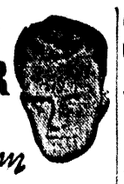
There will be three hours of instruction on days corresponding generally with the public school. For additional information one may call FA 3-4509 or FA 2-7493.

The Kindergarten committee of the church is composed of the following: Mr. John Craft, Dr. Jack Harrington, Mr. D. T. Head, Mrs. Mary Lou Humphries, Mrs. D. L. Allen, Mrs. Helen Crow, and the pastor. Plans are now being made for very competent teachers to conduct the new kindergarten. The Lakeshore Church offers this program out of a sense of real need in the area and is happy to do so.

The Lakeshore Baptist Church was constituted in 1954 with 38 charter members and now has a membership of 355 with over 500 enrolled in Sunday School. Plans are being made for the third unit of construction of a long range building program. Fourteen lots are now owned by the church. This continues to be "A Growing Church in a Growing Community," according to the pastor, Rev. Vester Headrick.

The original site of Charleston, capital of West Virginia, was purchased in 1837 by George Clendenin, a member of the Virginia Assembly, for five shillings.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham



QUESTION: I am a very old man and have been very wicked all my life. I would like to turn to God now but am afraid He won't accept me at this late hour. Besides, I am no longer able to do anything to merit His favor. Can you help me? R. K.

ANSWER: Don't you know that the desire to know the Lord shows that the Spirit of God is now speaking to you, otherwise you would have no desire? Your age is not the most important consideration in this matter so long as there is the desire. Jesus once gave a parable to show that it makes no difference providing you respond to the invistation when it is given. That parable is with the familiar verse, "So the found in Matthew 20:1-16 and ends last shall be first and the first last."

There is a good reason why this is so. Salvation does not depend on your personal merit but on the merit of Jesus Christ. In a lifetime you could not store up sufficient merit to enter Heaven. Concerning this Paul once wrote, "Where is the glorying? It is excluded. By what manner of law? Of works? Nay, but by a law of faith." I urge you, then, to respond to the urge to trust Christ, for He is able to save all that come unto God by Him.

Sing Program Well Received By Japanese

Expanding a program of evangelism through the mass media, the United Church of Christ of Japan, of which the former Methodist and Presbyterian missions from the U. S. A. are now a part, has made its first venture into the field of sponsored radio broadcasting. A program of Christian hymns, "Songs of the Heart," is broadcast weekly to an estimated audience of 1,000,000 persons in Tokyo.

The hymn program is a new facet of a growing effort by the United Church to take the Christian message to Japan's 90,000,000 non-Christians through mass communications media such as the press, television, radio, movies and magazines. It is an effort similar to that being made by American churches.

Broadcast each Saturday morning over Radio Tokyo, Japan's largest commercial broadcasting station, "Songs of the Heart" includes fifteen minutes of hymns with a brief interpretative message in the middle. It is produced by AVACO, the Audio Visual Aids Committee of the United Church. The hymns are sung by the 45-voice AVACO choir. The program is also heard in Kobe.

"Songs of the Heart" draws a listener response of almost 200 letters a week. Each listener who writes in is sent a small hymnbook and a letter of introduction to a Protestant church near his home. If he writes concerning a personal problem or with a question, the letter gets a personal answer from a specially trained United Church minister.

United Church experts in mass communications say the potential listening audience in and around Tokyo and Kobe is more than one-fourth of Japan's population.

Annuals Answer Yen For Color In Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

Annuals! An answer to that "yen" for color in the garden. Just a few packets of annaul seeds will give you a hundred square feet of rainbow colors, from early July until the first hard frost.

Annuals are dependable, too. You novice gardeners can grow them well with your first try, particularly if you buy started plants. Nurserymen and seedsmen across the country supply sturdy young plants in bands and flats, ready to set out where they are needed.

Annual Care

Prepare beds well, if you're planting seed or using plants. Spade deep, work in some humus and pulverize well. Set the plants in small holes (no deeper than they were planted) and firm the soil gently about the roots. Water.

If you sow seed, when they come up, be sure to thin the plants to the distances recommended on the package. Water all annuals regularly while the plants are small, moistening the top six inches of soil each time.

When you make your annual selections, remember the two 1958 all - American selections: Maytime petunias and petite marigolds.

Jes Gardening

We're all familiar with the common old dusty miller. It's easy to grow, likes sun, and will thrive on little moisture. It brightens the summer garden with its gray-green foliage. In an English garden film shown at the Monroe Garden Club last month, many of the gardens had masses of dwarf dusty miller. None of us older gardeners are familiar with such a plant — but we're all looking for more dwarf "anything." Wonder if our nurseries could get seed for us?

The Imperial Candle tree plants are in the nurseries. They're spectacular for the summer garden. You'll have to put out the plants every year. They will not go through our mildest winter. They're tropical but take well to our hot summers.

Another cheap shade for the new garden is castor bean. This plant re - seeds and comes up year after year. You can get the seed of the green or red foliage plants.

More of the Same

If you're pestered with crayfish in the lawn, use one pound of 50 per cent DDT meltable powder to 10 gallons of water. Put about a cup of this in each crayfish hole.

About this time of year the weeds and grass come up through the brick in your patio and walks. You can kill these by using any weed poison, double strength.

Virginia creeper and poison ivy look very much alike. Poison ivy has three leaves and Virginia creeper five. Both poison ivy and old - fashioned honeysuckle are hard to kill. Any chemical that will get rid of them will kill other plants, too. The surest, safest method of annihilation is to put on your gloves and long sleeves and dig and pull out the roots.

Don't forget to put out a few plants of princess feather. They come in dwarf and tall, and in colors, red and yellow. You'll need these in your summer flower arrangements.

The real tulip tree should be in bloom now. Peggy Garnett, 1606 North Second, Monroe, has a tree in her front garden. The bloom is not easily seen since it is a chartreuse green, but be sure to see these. They're lovely in corsages and arrangements.

Accent Colors

Backgrounds are important but decorators will tell you accent colors are what gives the "umph". There are ever so many ways in which you may achieve the desired accent color effects without spending much for them.

Most of you homemakers have a dusty collection of nicely shaped bottles that you haven't the heart to throw away. Here's a way to swirl them in color to create highly decorative vases or lamp bases: All you need are odds and ends of left - over enamel. First give the bottle a base coat of flat paint — creamy beige is good. When the paint has dried overnight, take a good sized pail and fill it with water to about four inches from the top.

Then dribble a few drops of each of several colors of quick-drying enamel on top of the water. The enamel will float and the drops can be flattened out on the surface by blowing on them gently.

Now comes the fun. Hold the bottle by the neck and dip it down into the water. The bottle will pick up the colors on top of the water as it goes down, so make sure a smooth continuous motion is used. Give it a twist as you dip it to create a swirl of color.

As each bottle is dipped, extra paint should be added to the pail. Don't use too much paint at once. Very small drops do the trick. When dry, give the surface a lustre by polishing with wax.

How Should Baby Sleep?

Bone specialists have discovered there's often a link between deformities in youngsters' legs and feet and their sleeping habits. However, most babies sleep in varied positions, and it's unlikely there will be a problem.

So — after one feeding, place Baby on one side; after the next feeding, on the other side, so he doesn't form the habit of always sleeping on the same side. Let the baby exercise on his stomach when he's awake. All of this is advice from bone specialists — not from Grandma Mildred. It's been too long since I've had experience to try to inform you on any type of baby care.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show Entries Seen At Center

By MARY M. JARDINE

By GLADYS KULCKE
Guest Writer

The arrangements on display at the Garden Center this week were winners from the Fifth District Flower Show held at Bernstein Park. There was a different show every day during the week. Sunday's show is the same as Saturday's. Garden club women from all parts of the district took part and visited the Flower Show.

Winners

The tri-color winner for Tuesday was a design in the French manner, suitable for an entrance hall, won by Mrs. W. E. Smith, Town and Country Garden Club, Monroe. Mrs. Smith used a white classic urn of pottery in which she created a mass design with ivy trailing over either side of the container. Other materials used in the arrangement were blooming privet in the back and at the top of the design. Yellow and pink snapdragon spikes, lush pink roses (in full bloom and in bud) white roses, white Dutch iris with its yellow markings and yellow Dutch iris. To complete the arrangement a cluster of Floribunda roses, Gloradoria inbright orange-red coloring were placed near the base of the arrangement.

Award of distinction was given to Mrs. M. J. Hortman, Home Garden Club, Monroe. Class—Sports — All for Dad. Mrs. Hortman made her triangle design on an oblong brown board. A graceful piece of driftwood was fastened to the board to create the verticle line of the design. Sprays of palm buds added interest to the vertical line. Dried magnolia and red galax leaves were used at the base of the design. Red Amaryllis with white markings in the throat were placed to follow the line of the design. Branches of new growth of Photina were used in the foreground as well as in the back to give depth to the arrangement. This arrangement suitable for a wood panelled den.

Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr. of the Town and Country Garden Club, Monroe, was awarded blue ribbon in contemporary arrangements featuring an accessory. Mrs. Pearce chose a rose red, oblong pottery bowl in which she made a beautiful mass line arrangement using three amaryllis lilies, Equisetum and aspidistra leaves.

Potted Plants

Monday, in the horticulture division Mrs. R. R. Piggott won the Award of Merit with a Jan de Graf Lily, variety — Valencia. This lily stalk had ten gold lilies with maroon marking in the throat. In the potted plants the award of merit was won by Mr. Norman Jardine with a potted amaryllis, brides maid. This plant had two bloom stalks with three blossoms to each stalk.

Tuesday awards — Pot Plant. Mrs. C. G. Clay, Monroe Garden Club won award of merit with African violet plant. Cut specimen — Mrs. Ernest Bryant, Sprig and Twig Garden Club, Ruston, won award of merit with amaryllis-American hybrid.

Philadelphia Held First Mother's Day

By AUDREY DAWSON

Mother's Day

Today is the day we pay tribute and honor to mothers all over the nation. Mother's Day in the United States came about through the efforts of Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia who visualized a national day of recognition for mothers while arranging a special memorial service for her own mother. On the second Sunday in May 1903 Mother's Day was observed throughout Philadelphia.

In 1914 President Woodrow Wilson signed a joint resolution of congress calling for observance of Mother's Day on the second Sunday in May giving the event full and official recognition. The carnation — red for living mothers, white for those deceased — was chosen as the floral symbol.

Serena Lewis of the West Monroe library helped me find this poem which I am dedicating to all mothers who read my column.

What Rules The World
By William Ross Wallace

They say that man is mighty,
He governs land and sea,
He wields a mighty sceptre o'er lesser powers than he;
but a mighty power and stronger man from his throne has hurled, for the hand that rocks the cradle,
is the hand that rules the world.

Something New In Patterns

You who like to sew might like to know about a revolutionary new pattern to be released soon by one of our pattern manufacturers. It's a basic try - on pattern made of a non - woven fabric which can actually be tried on to make sure of a perfect fit. It will come in Junior sizes 11 to 15 and Misses sizes 10 to 18.

Fashions For Men

The fashion world usually revolves in a feminine atmosphere. But men, too, make their apparel preferences felt by the clothing industry. Men are coming to appreciate the mix match idea that is basic in the wardrobe of many women. One third more separate sport jackets and trousers were produced per man, 18 years and over, in 1956 than 1957.

Cotton, which has long been the most important fiber for work pants, has risen in popularity for separate dress and sport trousers. It's considered cool, comfortable and easy to clean fabric. All cotton and cotton blends were used in about ¼ of these trousers produced in 1956. Home economists note that the typical man's suit requires less fabric than it used to a few years ago. The manufacturers used about 3½ yards of material in an average suit. Now due to the shift away from matching vests and doublebreasted suits the average is closer to 3 yards.

Buying Towels

Its almost time for swimming and that brings to our minds towels and plenty of them will be needed. Our Consumer Information Specialist, Miss Esther Coolye, reminds us that towels to stand up under all kinds of use should be very thirsty and should wear well. A simple test which you can make in the store can help you buy more wisely. Place your finger on the underside of the towel and press up. The underweave should b feirm and strong and should not spread apart. A soft and firm towel will probably serve you much better than a rough and loosely woven one. Choose towels for strong selvages and well finished hems.

Hints For Homemakers

When rolling dough on waxed paper, moisten the top of the table first, then put the paper down. This prevents the paper from slipping.

If sewing machine needles become a little blunted, stitch through fine sandpaper a few times and they will become sharp once more.

A little vinegar added to the dishwater in which you are washing plates from which fish has been served or to the pans in which it was cooked will help remove all traces of the fish odor.

Keep a small glass jar of cornmeal with lemon juice and a few drops of peroxide near the kitchen sink. After paring fruits or onions rub your hands with this mixture it will remove stains and odors.

A Thought

Perfection in being a mother may never be reached but it's worth reaching for.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Have Garden Near Stream

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Low places and streamsides can be made to blossom with the plants that like these situations. In fact, some of our showiest garden perennials like the side of a stream or the edges of a low place that is likely to be wet. Gardeners have been deluged with circulars selling the plants of the newer varieties of lythrum for the past few years. Those gaudy envelopes covered with purplish pink flowers are really not lying. Lythrum is just the "bloomingest" thing going!

Japanese and Siberian irises are also streamside plants. We grow them in our flower beds where they get only the amount of water we give other perennials, but they respond wonderfully to moist places. None of the plants we are discussing here, mind you, wants to be actually out in the water like a water - lily. They want to sit on the streamside and send their roots down to real moisture. Some streamsiders can take periodic flooding. As a matter of fact, the Japanese actually flood their irises just before the blooming season to get the largest possible flowers.

Waterside

The yellow water flag (Iris Pseud - acorus), the giant water parsnip, our native yellow touch-me-not, the marshmarigold, the waterside Ranunculus (R. aquatilis), the royalfern and the ladyfern are all good waterside plants, too. Once planted, it takes very little care to keep them going. Most of the attention they will need will be the elimination of undesirable weeds and other plants until they can take over the whole area to themselves.

Of course, some streamside areas are so very poor that you will have to fertilize your flowers. In such wet soil, fertilizers take effect quickly. Use a balanced fertilizer. All nitrogen will cause plants in wettish places to grow too much and fall over.

Colorful

The many fine varieties of Japanese iris and Siberian iris can be counted on to provide a brilliant display of gorgeous flowers in their season. Lythrum will bloom for long periods in summer. Be sure to get every variety of lythrum you can find. The new kinds are very handsome. Not all of them are purple pink, and some kinds like Robert are not tall. One of the Canadian nurseries has produced these fine lythrums. They will root in water. When flower arrangements are made of them, you may have difficulty in getting the stems out of the frogs because of the roots which clog them!

In order to get to and through your streamside garden, you will need some raised stepping stones that are never wet or under water. Japanese prints and pictures show these devices. How the Japanese ever walked over them on their little bound feet is a real mystery.

Plant Labels Great Asset To Gardens

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — With planting time in full swing through most of the country, we gardeners are so busy with trowels and watering cans that we have little time or energy to concern ourselves with other, less interesting phases of our hobby.

It's all right to talk about studying a book, drawing a plan or sticking on labels when there isn't much else one can do, but right now it does seem that keeping a garden diary is just another chore for tired hands and that it is silly to write a label to mark that bed of Shirley poppies — of course you'll remember what's there.

I've been a week-end gardener for years and have developed simple bookkeeping to help a faulty memory. Did I prune the mock orange last spring or was it the year before? What was the name of that little shrub I stuck in the west border? Did I lime the lawn in 1956 or 1955? These and a thousand other questions can be answered by referring to my diary and my rude maps of the garden beds, the former kept indoors and the latter held on a clipboard on a nail in the garage.

One of the best ways to learn good gardening fast is the simple process of reading cultural instructions for each plant immediately before planting, putting in seedlings or tackling special maintenance work. It is easy to forget that peonies loathe direct contact with fertilizer, that lilacs appreciate lime or that roses resent competition from other plants.

Plant labels are inexpensive and a great help for beginner gardeners — and for veterans trying something new, as veterans always are. And the labels make a tour of the garden much more interesting to visitors. Recently some new people moved into our neighborhood after the owners had departed. With few exceptions — daffodil shoots and the emergence of the red tips of the peonies — the family had no idea what was going to emerge from the established flower beds.

I did a garden tour with the new neighbors and succeeded in finding bleeding heart, day lilies, iris and identifying a few of the shrubs and trees — mostly from memory.

West, 5 clubs; North, 5 diamonds; East, 5 spades; South, 6 diams.

West, Double; North, Pass; East Pass; South, Pass.

Opening lead: King of spades.

The technique of the cross-ruff is not very difficult. The problem as to whether or not to play for a cross-ruff is sometimes harder to solve. Declarer may have the further choice of setting up a side suit in dummy, and the selection of the better line of play involves the use of sound judgment, rather than the application of fixed rules.

In today's hand South became the declarer at a contract of six diamonds doubled which he failed to fulfill because he overlooked a fundamental principle of cross-ruff technique, which is the prompt cashing of high cards.

The bidding was somewhat weird. No one seemed to have a clear idea of what was going on, and all appeared to be swept away in the bidding rhythm. South's refusal to pass the five spade bid around to his partner, who might wish to apply the ax, was a gem of impropriety but is not the point at issue.

The king of spades was opened and ruffed; then a club was ruffed in dummy and another spade in the closed hand. This thing went merrily on until the fourth round of spades, at which point East discarded the nine of hearts. Declarer now awoke to the necessity of cashing heart tricks, but it was too late. He was able to cash only one of them, and East was able to ruff the other and return a trump.

Declarer had been blessed with great fortune. All his trumps were high so that there was no danger of an overruff. He could count five diamond tricks in each hand and the ace and king of hearts, for a total of 12 tricks.

But in cross-ruffing it is imperative to cash the high cards early in the play. The reason is that as you proceed on your criss-cross adventure one of the adversaries is going to run out of the suit you are ruffing and will be at liberty to take discards. They will naturally discard the suit in which you have your high cards as in this case East discarded a heart.

Damage From Frost Bite Extensive

Less hardy trees and shrubs may have suffered their most severe cases of "frost bite" this past winter — injury that will be showing up now.

Old Man Winter kicked up a fuss up and down the line, even into southerly latitudes. This will be evidenced in browning of frozen tissues of plant life. The brownish, watersoaked appearance is not final evidence the affected part is completely dead, however. Many cells may be alive and later in the season twigs and branches may sprout greenery.

P. C. Heintzman, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., advises home owners to stem the temptation to prune affected parts too soon. Extent of damage may not be apparent until well into the season.

Exotic trees and shrubs out of their natural habitat in the north and winter - injured specimens in the south may have a tough time of it this growing season. Weekend gardeners are urged to feed and spray without fail. Feeding helps restore growing vigor and spraying minimizes weakening attacks by insects and diseases. Winter injured parts frequently are invaded by secondary fungi and pests, masking original cause of the trouble.

Almost all parts of the tree or shrub are vulnerable. Roots are susceptible to freezing, as is the "collar" or junction of the roots and trunk. Alternate freezing and thawing causes "sunscald," one of the commonest injuries. This is killing of bark and sapwood on the southwest side of the trunk. Sometimes large areas of sapwood are exposed to infection.

"Voice is important but there have been great cantors who have had limited voices. Their greatness lay in the fact that their interpretations inspired their congregations."

Annuals Answer Yen For Color In Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

Annuals! An answer to that "yen" for color in the garden. Just a few packets of annaul seeds will give you a hundred square feet of rainbow colors, from early July until the first hard frost.

Annuals are dependable, too. You novice gardeners can grow them well with your first try, particularly if you buy started plants. Nurserymen and seedsmen across the country supply sturdy young plants in bands and flats, ready to set out where they are needed.

Annual Care

Prepare beds well, if you're planting seed or using plants. Spade deep, work in some humus and pulverize well. Set the plants in small holes (no deeper than they were planted) and firm the soil gently about the roots. Water.

If you sow seed, when they come up, be sure to thin the plants to the distances recommended on the package. Water all annuals regularly while the plants are small, moistening the top six inches of soil each time.

When you make your annual selections, remember the two 1958 all - American selections: Maytime petunias and petite marigolds.

Jes Gardening

We're all familiar with the common old dusty miller. It's easy to grow, likes sun, and will thrive on little moisture. It brightens the summer garden with its gray-green foliage. In an English garden film shown at the Monroe Garden Club last month, many of the gardens had masses of dwarf dusty miller. None of us older gardeners are familiar with such a plant — but we're all looking for more dwarf "anything." Wonder if our nurseries could get seed for us?

The Imperial Candle tree plants are in the nurseries. They're spectacular for the summer garden. You'll have to put out the plants every year. They will not go through our mildest winter. They're tropical but take well to our hot summers.

Another cheap shade for the new garden is castor bean. This plant re - seeds and comes up year after year. You can get the seed of the green or red foliage plants.

More of the Same

If you're pestered with crayfish in the lawn, use one pound of 50 per cent DDT meltable powder to 10 gallons of water. Put about a cup of this in each crayfish hole.

About this time of year the weeds and grass come up through the brick in your patio and walks. You can kill these by using any weed poison, double strength.

Virginia creeper and poison ivy look very much alike. Poison ivy has three leaves and Virginia creeper five. Both poison ivy and old - fashioned honeysuckle are hard to kill. Any chemical that will get rid of them will kill other plants, too. The surest, safest method of annihilation is to put on your gloves and long sleeves and dig and pull out the roots.

Don't forget to put out a few plants of princess feather. They come in dwarf and tall, and in colors, red and yellow. You'll need these in your summer flower arrangements.

The real tulip tree should be in bloom now. Peggy Garnett, 1606 North Second, Monroe, has a tree in her front garden. The bloom is not easily seen since it is a chartreuse green, but be sure to see these. They're lovely in corsages and arrangements.

Accent Colors

Backgrounds are important but decorators will tell you accent colors are what gives the "umph". There are ever so many ways in which you may achieve the desired accent color effects without spending much for them.

Most of you homemakers have a dusty collection of nicely shaped bottles that you haven't the heart to throw away. Here's a way to swirl them in color to create highly decorative vases or lamp bases: All you need are odds and ends of left - over enamel. First give the bottle a base coat of flat paint — creamy beige is good. When the paint has dried overnight, take a good sized pail and fill it with water to about four inches from the top.

Then dribble a few drops of each of several colors of quick-drying enamel on top of the water. The enamel will float and the drops can be flattened out on the surface by blowing on them gently.

Now comes the fun. Hold the bottle by the neck and dip it down into the water. The bottle will pick up the colors on top of the water as it goes down, so make sure a smooth continuous motion is used. Give it a twist as you dip it to create a swirl of color.

As each bottle is dipped, extra paint should be added to the pail. Don't use too much paint at once. Very small drops do the trick. When dry, give the surface a lustre by polishing with wax.

How Should Baby Sleep?

Bone specialists have discovered there's often a link between deformities in youngsters' legs and feet and their sleeping habits. However, most babies sleep in varied positions, and it's unlikely there will be a problem.

So — after one feeding, place Baby on one side; after the next feeding, on the other side, so he doesn't form the habit of always sleeping on the same side. Let the baby exercise on his stomach when he's awake. All of this is advice from bone specialists — not from Grandma Mildred. It's been too long since I've had experience to try to inform you on any type of baby care.

The arrangements on display at the Garden Center this week were winners from the Fifth District Flower Show held at Bernstein Park. There was a different show every day during the week. Sunday's show is the same as Saturday's. Garden club women from all parts of the district took part and visited the Flower Show.

Winners

The tri-color winner for Tuesday was a design in the French manner, suitable for an entrance hall, won by Mrs. W. E. Smith, Town and Country Garden Club, Monroe. Mrs. Smith used a white classic urn of pottery in which she created a mass design with ivy trailing over either side of the container. Other materials used in the arrangement were blooming privet in the back and at the top of the design. Yellow and pink snapdragon spikes, lush pink roses (in full bloom and in bud) white roses, white Dutch iris with its yellow markings and yellow Dutch iris. To complete the arrangement a cluster of Floribunda roses, Gloradoria inbright orange-red coloring were placed near the base of the arrangement.

Award of distinction was given to Mrs. M. J. Hortman, Home Garden Club, Monroe. Class—Sports — All for Dad. Mrs. Hortman made her triangle design on an oblong brown board. A graceful piece of driftwood was fastened to the board to create the vertical line of the design. Sprays of palm buds added interest to the vertical line. Dried magnolia and red galax leaves were used at the base of the design. Red Amaryllis with white markings in the throat were placed to follow the line of the design. Branches of new growth of Photina were used in the foreground as well as in the back to give depth to the arrangement. This arrangement suitable for a wood panelled den.

Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr. of the Town and Country Garden Club, Monroe, was awarded blue ribbon in contemporary arrangements featuring an accessory. Mrs. Pearce chose a rose red, oblong pottery bowl in which she made a beautiful mass line arrangement using three amaryllis lilies, Equisetum and aspidistra leaves.

Potted Plants

Monday, in the horticulture division Mrs. R. R. Piggott won the Award of Merit with a Jan de Graf Lily, variety — Valencia. This lily stalk had ten gold lilies with maroon marking in the throat. In the potted plants the award of merit was won by Mr. Norman Jardine with a potted amaryllis, brides maid. This plant had two bloom stalks with three blossoms to each stalk.

Tuesday awards — Pot Plant. Mrs. C. G. Clay, Monroe Garden Club won award of merit with African violet plant. Cut specimen — Mrs. Ernest Bryant, Sprig and Twig Garden Club, Ruston, won award of merit with amaryllis-American hybrid.

Philadelphia Held First Mother's Day

South's refusal to pass the five spade bid around to his partner, who might wish to apply the ax, was a gem of impropriety but is not the point at issue.

The king of spades was opened and ruffed; then a club was ruffed in dummy and another spade in the closed hand. This thing went merrily on until the fourth round of spades, at which point East discarded the nine of hearts. Declarer now awoke to the necessity of cashing heart tricks, but it was too late. He was able to cash only one of them, and East was able to ruff the other and return a trump.

Declarer had been blessed with great fortune. All his trumps were high so that there was no danger of an overruff. He could count five diamond tricks in each hand and the ace and king of hearts, for a total of 12 tricks.

But in cross-ruffing it is imperative to cash the high cards early in the play. The reason is that as you proceed on your criss-cross adventure one of the adversaries is going to run out of the suit you are ruffing and will be at liberty to take discards. They will naturally discard the suit in which you have your high cards as in this case East discarded a heart.

Damage From Frost Bite Extensive

Less hardy trees and shrubs may have suffered their most severe cases of "frost bite" this past winter — injury that will be showing up now.

Old Man Winter kicked up a fuss up and down the line, even into southerly latitudes. This will be evidenced in browning of frozen tissues of plant life. The brownish, watersoaked appearance is not final evidence the affected part is completely dead, however. Many cells may be alive and later in the season twigs and branches may sprout greenery.

P. C. Heintzman, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., advises home owners to stem the temptation to prune affected parts too soon. Extent of damage may not be apparent until well into the season.

Exotic trees and shrubs out of their natural habitat in the north and winter - injured specimens in the south may have a tough time of it this growing season. Weekend gardeners are urged to feed and spray without fail. Feeding helps restore growing vigor and spraying minimizes weakening attacks by insects and diseases. Winter injured parts frequently are invaded by secondary funzi and pests, masking original cause of the trouble.

Almost all parts of the tree or shrub are vulnerable. Roots are susceptible to freezing, as is the "collar" or junction of the roots and trunk. Alternate freezing and thawing causes "sunscald," one of the commonest injuries. This is killing of bark and sapwood on the southwest side of the trunk. Sometimes large areas of sapwood are exposed to infection.

"Voice is important but there have been great cantors who have had limited voices. Their greatness lay in the fact that their interpretations inspired their congregations."

MASTERS OF DECEIT

BY J. EDGAR HOOVER
Director, Federal Bureau
Of Investigation

The communist underground in the United States is designed, among other things, to aid Soviet espionage, to place members in strategic positions in industry for potential sabotage, to discredit law enforcement, and to infiltrate the armed forces.

Lenin taught the leaders of Soviet world conquest that the "ememy" must be weakened in advance. To wait for something to happen is not the way to achieve revolution. The way must be prepared. The enemy must be softened up: weaken his will to resist, nullify his capacity for counteraction, impair his morale. Then, when the crisis comes communists can march to power through the ranks of demoralized opponents as Lenin's followers did in Russia in November 1917.

The Party's relation to Soviet espionage is one of the most potent weapons in the communist underground arsenal. As past events have proven — for example the Harry Gold - Klaus Fuchs combination and the case of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, who were executed in 1953 on espionage charges — Moscow - directed spying in a vital danger to the integrity and safety of free government. Espionage is utilized not only to secure information but also to weaken the "enemy" from within.

The Soviets instituted espionage against the United States very early with the full cooperation of the Communist Party, U. S. A. Comintern "reps" became common figures in Party circles. Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, a member of the Russian Communist Party, was sent to the U. S. in January, 1919. Although never recognized by the United States government, he set up an office in New York City. Arthur Adams, who was identified years later as a Soviet spy, on U. S. atomic weapon secrets, was a member of Martens' staff.

In comparison with today's well-organized, efficiently operated spy apparatus, the Soviet agents in the early days were crude and clumsy. Many were not proficient in English. They lacked knowlege of our customs and possessed no special espionage training.

In late July, 1920, a seaman on the SS STOCKHOLM walked up Pier 95 in New York City. Noticing customs officials searching two other seamen, he called attention to himself by turning and running down the pier. Subsequently, after his apprehension, a package was found concealed in his trousers. Inside was a series of envelopes, one inside the other, with the smallest containing over 200 uncut diamonds appraised at $50,000. It developed that smuggling of diamonds was one of the Bolshevik techniques of financing operations in the United States. For whom was the package destined? Inside was a typewritten letter starting, "Comrade Martens."

Unfamilarity with the United States made dependence of Soviet agents on the Communist Party, USA, vital. Without the ready aid of the Communist Party, USA, Soviet espionage would have had tremendous problems in getting started.

Party officials made assistance to Moscow priority Number One. (Significantly, some early leaders in communism in the United States are buried in the walls of the Kremlin. Among those so honored by the Russian Communist Party are Charles Ruthenberg and John Reed.)

What were some of the ways through which the Communist Party, USA, rendered aid to Soviet espionage?

Most important, of course, was recruitment. The Party was able, time after time, to supply recruits, both members and sympathizers, for espionage use. Suppose the Soviet agents wanted a photographer? A source of information in a Pennsylvania steel plant? A trusted short - wave radio expert? The Party was expected to, and did, "fill the bill."

This funneling of talent to the Soviets was often accomplished through a special Party contact who was called a "steerer." A trusted old - time member, he was able to spot recruits for espionage among the Party's ranks and to fulfill requests made by the Soviets.

Suppose a Russian espionage agent entered the United States secretly, en route to another country, or to fill an assignment in Washington, New York or elsewhere in the U. S. Most likely, he would need a new identity, or, in espionage language, a "change of feathers," a faked birth certificate, a false passport, and other identification papers. The Party had the means of supplying these.

There are instances of a Party member setting up a business, ostensibly for legitimate purposes but actually for espionage. World Tourists, which was incorporated in New York in 1927, was operated by Jacob Golos, a communist "steerer," as an espionage "cover."

The Party has helped arrange the transfer of espionage funds, established mail drops (where espionage communications come to a third person, later to be given to the espionage network) and operated couriers.

The Soviets were aware early of the dangers of too close an affiliation with the United States Party. An espionage operation might be jeopardized by a known Party member's participation. In the event of a "blow-up," the Party, would be shown to be linked directly with Soviet Russia. This was one thing both the Soviets and Party officials wanted to avoid. Hence, by the early 1940's there was a definite lessening of direct Soviet dependence on the U. S. Party for espionage assistance. The Soviet spy system was ready then to operate independently of the Party in the U. S. Back in 1924, Amtorg Trading Corporation was established as a Soviet government commercial agency. This gave the Soviets an initial "legal" base for espionage operations. In 1933 diplomatic recognition was afforded the Soviet Union. Now, trained espionage agents, operating under diplomatic immunity, were enabled to direct operations. After World War II Russians assigned to the United Nations headquarters in New York gave additional striking power to Soviet espionage. In addition there were espionage networks of Soviet satellite countries operating in the United States.

One former Communist Party member who did Soviet espionage work told the FBI that the Soviets had instructed agents to conceal their Party affiliations. This soon became a regular tactic: If engaged in espionage, cut off all connections with the Party, even contacts with former Party friends. When Ethel Rosenberg became a link in the Soviet espionage system, she no longer bought the Daily Worker at her usual newsstand. Another agent, while in the company of a Soviet superior, stopped to purchase a communist publication. He was severely reprimanded.

The Soviets, however, still depended on communists or sympathizers for assistance. In one major apparatus detected by the FBI, twelve of seventeen participants had been Party members.

Elizabeth Bentley told how she collected dues from secret members of the Party when she went to Washington as a courier of the Soviet espionage system. Among those from whom she stated she collected dues were officials of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), Department of Commerce, the Air Corps, the Office of the Coordinator of Inter - American Affairs, the Treasury Department, and others. In some instances one person would collect dues for a group and hand them over to Miss Bentley.

The appearance of FBI informants at Smith Act trials made the Soviet Union realize the extent to which FBI agents had penetrated the Communist Party, USA. These, among other revelations, encouraged even more the Soviet tendency to lessen its direct dependence on the Party.

This does not mean, however, that the Party is today not playing an important role in Soviet espionage. As will be explained in these pages, the Party is doing much to prepare the way for the Soviets.

Soviet espionage in the United States is no longer a clumsy, crude affair, but a deadly efficient profession, skillfully directed from Moscow, with well-trained agents supplied with money, modern technical equipment, and experience. To the Soviets, espionage is a part of over-all state policy.

On an April night in 1951, just two minutes before seven o'clock, a tall man wearing a tweed sport coat walked through the darkness toward the Washington Monument in the U. S. Capital city. Brilliant lights played on the famous shrine but the usually bustling place was deserted. Everything was quiet.

Suddenly the tall man stepped from the circle of darkness into the light. He stopped a moment, peered up at the 555-foot top, looked at his watch, then started to walk around the base. On his left hand he wore a glove. A band of adhesive tape circled the middle finger of his right hand, and he carried a red-covered book under his left arm.

This man, whom I shall call Mr. A., was an employee of the United States Defense Department. As part of his work he had access to highly confidential information which the Russians wanted.

Exactly at seven o'clock, another man clad in a dark business suit stepped from the shadows. An espionage contact set up months previously in Austria was being consummated to the exact minute. The second man was Uri V. Novikov, Second Secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Novikov was well known to the FBI, since his activities in the United States had gone far beyond those of a diplomatic official. He was audacious almost beyond belief. His brazenness reached a climax when he sat with defense counsel during the espionage trial of the onetime U. S. Department of Justice employee, Judith Coplon. During this trial Novikov wrote out questions and handed them to defense counsel to direct to FBI agents on the witness stand. He was particularly interested in having questions asked pertaining to our internal administration and procedures.

When Novikov met Mr. A that night in April, 1951, he said, "I'm Mr. Williams," the code of recognition, along with the glove, tape, and red book. The two shook hands, then Novikov took the military specialist by the elbow, directing him from the light. A few words, arranging another meeting, and they parted.

From that night, for an entire year, the Soviets made secretive contacts with Mr. A. Seldom were meetings held in the same place. Some were on lonely lanes or in dead-end streets; one on an arrow rock bridge on a deserted Maryland road after dark.

One time Novikov stood in a movie line the government employee was to pass by and, seeing him there, would know that a meeting was scheduled one hour later at a nearby school. At other times there were chalk marks on trash cans and a pencil mark on page 100 of the Manhattan (New York) telephone directory in Washington's Union Station, as code signals between Novikov and Mr. A.

Mr. A. was a loyal American, and in meeting Novikov he was merely carrying out a duty imposed upon him when he was assigned in Austria with the United States Air Force.

His services were solicited by Otto Verber, who came to the United States as a refugee, as did Kurt L. Ponger, who had married Verber's sister. Both Verber and Ponger were in the armed services, both had acquired American citizenship, and, after the war, both had served in Europe. Upon returning to private life, both settled in Vienna, where they took advantage of the GI Bill and benefits and enrolled in the University of Vienna. In 1949 Ponger was recruited by the Soviet intelligence service, and he in turn recruited Verber. It was later learned that Ponger had been a member of a Communist Party cell in England before he came to the United States as a refugee. He also had indoctrinated Verber.

Mr. A, having immediately reported to superiors the endeavor of Verber to obtain information from him, acted thereafter under instructions. Prior to his return to the United States, Verber and Ponger arranged the rendezvous which Novikov kept with Mr. A at Washington Monument that April night in 1951. I must add that the Treasury of the United States received the thousands of dollars of Soviet funds paid to the loyal American Mr. A.

In June, 1953, after pleading guilty to an espionage indictment, Ponger was sentenced to a prison term of from five to fifteen years, while Verber received a sentence of from three years, four months to ten years. Novikov, who was named in tee indictment as a coconspirator, was declared persona non grata and returned to the Soviet Union.

This and other cases I could cite indicate irrefutably that the Soviet spy system in the United States is a far-flung structure, composed of many networks. There are the "legal" networks; that is, espionage controlled by legal representatives of the Russian government, such as diplomats. Novikov was an example. Then there are illegal networks, meaning spy rings operated by Moscow independent of the legal establishments. The defection in 1945 of Igor Gouzenko, a cipher clerk assigned to the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, revealed a close tieup between Soviet espionage and Canadian communists.

We shall learn more about the illegal networks in the next chapter, in which Mr. Hoover will discuss the reasons why an individual engages in espionage, and what motivates men and women to betray their country for a foreign tyranny.

Joblessness Down 66,900, Report Shows

WASHINGTON (UP) — Unemployment among workers covered by jobless benefits dropped by 66,900 during the week ended April 26, the government reported Friday. It was biggest drop since last July—before the recession started.

It also was the second week in a row that the number of insured jobless had declined. The Labor Department said there were 3,265,700 unemployed among persons entitled to draw jobless benefit payments.

It added, however, that the number of workers claiming unemployment compensation still was more than twice as high as the 1,458,900 for the corresponding week last year.

In a second cheering report, the department said housing construction picked up more than usual in April. Work was started on 95,500 non-farm homes and apartments, compared with 79,000 in March.

More than half the nation's workers are covered by unemployment insurance and the Labor Department's weekly reports generally are considered a good index to the overall job situation.

Forty one states reported declines in insured unemployment last week.

230,000 Exhaust Benefits

The number of persons filing unemployment benefit claims for the first time also dropped last week to the lowest point for any week this year. A total of 403,300 claims were filed, some 19,800 fewer than in the previous week.

The department estimated that 230,000 persons exhausted their benefits in April, compared with 191,400 in March.

Other economic developments:

—The Commerce Department reported that retail sales climbed two per cent in April to $16,100,000,000. The gain was calculated after adjustments for seasonal factors and trading differences.

—The Agriculture Department said the number of persons working on farms during the week of April 20-26 was 20 per cent higher than a month earlier. The increase was somewhat higher than the normal seasonal change from March.

—The anti-recession committee of the government's business advisory council called on President Eisenhower to seek a one-year voluntary freeze on wage and price increases. The council is meeting at Hot Springs, Va.

At other times there were chalk marks on trash cans and a pencil mark on page 100 of the Manhattan (New York) telephone directory in Washington's Union Station, as code signals between Novikov and Mr. A.

Mr. A. was a loyal American, and in meeting Novikov he was merely carrying out a duty imposed upon him when he was assigned in Austria with the United States Air Force.

His services were solicited by Otto Verber, who came to the United States as a refugee, as did Kurt L. Ponger, who had married Verber's sister. Both Verber and Ponger were in the armed services, both had acquired American citizenship, and, after the war, both had served in Europe. Upon returning to private life, both settled in Vienna, where they took advantage of the GI Bill and benefits and enrolled in the University of Vienna. In 1949 Ponger was recruited by the Soviet intelligence service, and he in turn recruited Verber. It was later learned that Ponger had been a member of a Communist Party cell in England before he came to the United States as a refugee. He also had indoctrinated Verber.

Mr. A, having immediately reported to superiors the endeavor of Verber to obtain information from him, acted thereafter under instructions. Prior to his return to the United States, Verber and Ponger arranged the rendezvous which Novikov kept with Mr. A at Washington Monument that April night in 1951. I must add that the Treasury of the United States received the thousands of dollars of Soviet funds paid to the loyal American Mr. A.

In June, 1953, after pleading guilty to an espionage indictment, Ponger was sentenced to a prison term of from five to fifteen years, while Verber received a sentence of from three years, four months to ten years. Novikov, who was named in tee indictment as a coconspirator, was declared persona non grata and returned to the Soviet Union.

This and other cases I could cite indicate irrefutably that the Soviet spy system in the United States is a far-flung structure, composed of many networks. There are the "legal" networks; that is, espionage controlled by legal representatives of the Russian government, such as diplomats. Novikov was an example. Then there are illegal networks, meaning spy rings operated by Moscow independent of the legal establishments. The defection in 1945 of Igor Gouzenko, a cipher clerk assigned to the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, revealed a close tieup between Soviet espionage and Canadian communists.

We shall learn more about the illegal networks in the next chapter, in which Mr. Hoover will discuss the reasons why an individual engages in espionage, and what motivates men and women to betray their country for a foreign tyranny.

TAMPA, Fla. (UP) — Jackie Taylor, 6, was credited today with the quick action which saved his two-year-old sister Karol Lou from drowning. RADIATION DISCUSSED

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (UP)— Some of the world's leading scientists will meet here next week to discuss the problem of safeguarding any forms of life on the moon and planets against biological or radioactive contamination by space exploration experiments from the earth, it was announced today.

People in the United States are due to spend two billion dollars more for recreation in 1960 than they did in 1950 as a result of rising incomes and shorter working hours, reports the Twentieth Century Fund.

Joblessness Down 66,900, Report Shows

WASHINGTON (UP) — Unemployment among workers covered by jobless benefits dropped by 66,900 during the week ended April 26, the government reported Friday. It was biggest drop since last July—before the recession started.

It also was the second week in a row that the number of insured jobless had declined. The Labor Department said there were 3,265,700 unemployed among persons entitled to draw jobless benefit payments.

It added, however, that the number of workers claiming unemployment compensation still was more than twice as high as the 1,458,900 for the corresponding week last year.

In a second cheering report, the department said housing construction picked up more than usual in April. Work was started on 95,500 non-farm homes and apartments, compared with 79,000 in March.

More than half the nation's workers are covered by unemployment insurance and the Labor Department's weekly reports generally are considered a good index to the overall job situation.

Forty one states reported declines in insured unemployment last week.

230,000 Exhaust Benefits

The number of persons filing unemployment benefit claims for the first time also dropped last week to the lowest point for any week this year. A total of 403,300 claims were filed, some 19,800 fewer than in the previous week.

The department estimated that 230,000 persons exhausted their benefits in April, compared with 191,400 in March.

Other economic developments:

—The Commerce Department reported that retail sales climbed two per cent in April to $16,100,000,000. The gain was calculated after adjustments for seasonal factors and trading differences.

—The Agriculture Department said the number of persons working on farms during the week of April 20-26 was 20 per cent higher than a month earlier. The increase was somewhat higher than the normal seasonal change from March.

—The anti-recession committee of the government's business advisory council called on President Eisenhower to seek a one-year voluntary freeze on wage and price increases. The council is meeting at Hot Springs, Va.

Vicksburg's Dark Hours Recorded On Wallpaper

Early Journals Preserved Here

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

July 4, 1863 . . . the Stars and Bars flag is hauled down —and in its place, the Union flag is hoisted over Vicksburg . . . as General U. S. Grant and his army triumphantly march into the city on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River.

On this day, the final edition of "The Daily Citizen" newspaper is printed — on wallpaper.

Today, a Monroe resident, John Steven Daniel, owns several of the papers printed on that last day of the war . . . last as far as Vicksburg was concerned.

The museum pieces, originally bought by his grandparents who lived in Vicksburg at the time of the siege, are a passport into the past, and as you read them, time spins backward at a whirlwind pace . . .

It is July 2, 1863. Vicksburg is surrounded by the Union Blockade — no one can get in or out of the garrison.

General Pemberton is in charge of the 29,000 holding the city against the enemy. Outside, Grant waits impatiently, vowing that he will dine in Vicksburg on Saturday, July 4. General Joseph E. Johnston is in supreme command of this area of the Confederate Army; General Pemberton failed to obey his command — to attack Grant outside the city — until it was too late.

Now, after 22 months of planning and three unsuccessful campaigns, the Union finally has nearly achieved its goal — capture of Vicksburg. Tonight, Grant thinks of what this capture could mean—cutting the Confederacy in half and reopening of the Mississippi for commerce.

Events Of Day

"The Daily Citizen," published on wallpaper after newsprint ran out, lists the events of the past few days.

"Grant's forces did a little firing on Tuesday afternoon, but the balance of that day was comparatively quiet. Yesterday morning, they were very still, and continued so until early in the afternoon, when they opened fire along the line for some distance. We have not been able to ascertain anything definitely as to our loss, but as our officers were on the lookout for this move of the enemy, the expectations of the Yankees were not realized by a great deal."

Forty times this amount of news — 60 inches of handset type, slightly smaller than the printing in newspapers of 1958 — was printed on one side of a piece of wallpaper 16 inches long and 10 inches wide.

"Again we have reliable news from the gallant corps of Gen. Lee in Virginia. Elated with success, encouraged by a series of brilliant victories, marching to and crossing the Rappahannock, defeating Hooker's right wing and thence through the Shenandoah Valley" . . . the paper continues with news of Lee's past victories.

"The great Ulysses — the Yankee Generalissimo, surnamed Grant — has expressed his intention of dining in Vicksburg on Saturday next, and celebrating the 4th of July by a grand dinner and so forth. When asked if he would invite Gen. Joe Johnston to join, he said, "No, I fear there will be a row at the table." Ulysses must get into the city before he dines in it. The way to cook a rabbit is first to catch the rabbit, etc.," J. M. Swords, proprietor of the paper, laughed loudly as he wrote the jibe against Grant. No Yankee will ever capture this city, the newspaperman thought.

Food Scarce

Food is scarce. Soldiers "prowl around, day and night" and take fruit, vegetables and chickens from Vicksburg residents . . . leaving the people with nothing to eat, except . . . mules and cats.

"We are indebted to W. J. Gillespie for a steak of Confederate beef alias meat," Swords writes, adding "We have tried it, and can assure your friends that if it is rendered necessary, they need have no scruples at eating the meat. It is sweet, savory and tender, and so long as we have a mule left we are satisfied our soldiers will be content to subsist on it."

Later, in the fourth column of the one-page paper, the editor warns cats to watch out for a similar fate.

"Victimized — We learned of an instance wherein a 'knight of the quill' and a 'disciple of the black art,' with malice in their hearts and vengeance in their eyes ruthlessly put a period to the existence of a venerable feline that has for time, not within the recollection of the 'oldest inhabitant,' faithfully discharged the duties to be expected of him to the terror of sundry vermin in his neighborhood. Poor, defunct Thomas was then prepared, not for the grave, but the pot, and several friends invited to partake of a nice rabbit.

"As a matter of course, no one would wound the feelings of another, especially in these times, by refusing a cordial invitation to dinner, and the guests assisted in consuming the poor animal with a relish that did honor to their epicurean taste. The 'sold' assure us the meat was delicious and that pussy must look out for her safety."

Death At Hand

All was not weird meals. Death also stood beside each person, not caring if the person was man or woman, young or old, Yankee or Southern.

The paper tells of a Mrs. Cisco who was killed instantly on the Jackson road. Her husband was serving in Moody's artillery in Virginia.

Jerre Askew, an artillery man and "one of our most esteemed merchant - citizens" was wounded and died. "Lt. Col. Griffin, commanding the 31st Louisiana regiment, was killed on Saturday. He was a popular and efficient officer."

Outside Vicksburg, "The Yanks outside our city are considerably on the sick list. Fever, dysentry and disgust are their companions and Grant is their master. The boys are deserting daily and are crossing the river in the region of Warren, and cussing Grant and the abolitionists generally," the paper states, as interested citizens gain hope from these lines.

A note of humor about trouble among the Yankee generals creeps in. "The Federal General McClelland, until recently outside the rear of our city has been superceded. He and Grant could not run in the same harness. He was for splurging and Grant for gassing, both got the loggerheads. So poor Mc had to leave, and Grant has all his own way."

The paper blasts a black-market underway in the starving city. Hoarders who were able to buy up food before the city was blockaded are now selling flour at $5 a pound, molasses at $10 a gallon and corn for $10 a bushel.

Yet a Mr. F. Kiser, "having more corn than he thought necessary to last him during the siege of this place, portioned off what would do him for the brief interval that would elapse before the arrival of succor to our garrison, and since that time has relieved the wants of many families free of charge."

Federal Intelligence

Editor Swords includes in the news some Federal Intelligence, copied from the Memphis Bulletin of June 25. Pointing out that the former editors of the Bulletin "being rather pro - southern men, were arrested for speaking the truth when truth was unwelcome to Yankeedom, and placed in the chain gang working at Warrenton, where they now are."

Feeling that an accurate description of the Bulletin's new editor was necessary, Swords wrote he was a "pink-nosed slab - sided, toad-eating Yankee, who is a lineal descendant of Judas Iscariot and a brother germain of the greatest Puritanical, sycophantic, howling scoundrel unhung — Parson Brownlow. Yet with such a charactor," Swords continues, "this paper cannot cloak the fact that Gen. Robt. E. Lee has given Hooker, Milroy & Co. one of the best and soundest whippings on record, and that the 'galorious Union' is now exceedingly weak in the knees."

Two days later, on Saturday, July 4, the same paper is reprinted . . . with a NOTE at the bottom of the page.

Inhabitants of the city, reading the paper, finally see in print what they have mourned for several hours. The NOTE reads:

"Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. General Grant has 'caught the rabbit, and did bring his dinner with him. The 'Citizen' lives to see it. For the last time it appears on 'wall-paper.' No more will it eulogize the luxury of mule-meat and fricassed kitten—urge Southern warriors to each diet nevermore This is the last wall paper edition and excepting this note from the types as we found them, it will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity."

A cavalry man who had helped in the defense of the city, Stonewall Jackson Prewett and his wife Margaret read the paper in their large, white colonial - type home on Cherry street.

Trembles

Prewett, also an official in the city government, trembles with indignation as he rereads the NOTE. His wife, with tears in her eyes, carefully places several pieces of the wallpaper newspaper in a large cloth and lays it in a trunk — preserving the last paper printed while Vicksburg was a member of the Confederate States of America.

The previous day, Lee surrendered. Vicksburg does not know of it. The day is bitter enough, without this knowledge.

Days slowly creep by, then begin to pass speedily. The occupation ends, Vicksburg again is a free city, the hourglass of time is turned faster and faster, as a good life again seems to make the time pass in whirlwind fashion.

In their wooden colonial house, the Prewett family grows. Three girls, Jane Alice, Marguerite and Eulalie Marie, are born.

Prewett continues in his wholesale grocery business . . . the youngsters grow up . . . and Jane is courted by John Steven Daniel — a railroad man who is conductor and yardmaster for the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific Railway.

In old St. Paul's Cathedral in Vicksburg Jane and John are married . . . and she goes to live in Gibsland, his hometown.

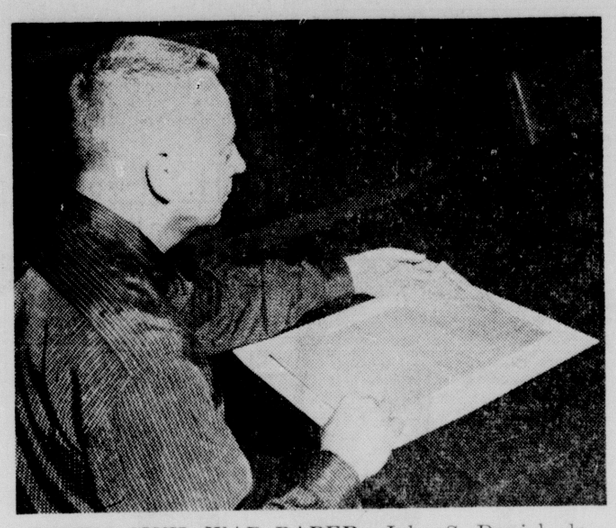
Later, the Daniels move to Monroe, and buy a home at 400 Washington Street Mrs. Daniel brings with her, in an old wardrobe trunk, 12 wallpaper papers, printed on July 4, 1863.

The Prewetts also move to Monroe. Then, when the Daniel's son is five-years-old, Mrs. Daniel dies . . . leaving the priceless final editions of the paper for her son to discover.

"I knew about them since I was 12-years-old," John S. Daniel recalls today. "I've given several copies away — but I still have my grandfather's sword," revealed the Civil Service examiner of the Monroe Post Office.

Vicksburg on the bluffs . . . overlooking the king river, the Mississippi, settled by French and Spanish, named for a Methodist minister, scene of one of the greatest battles of all history . . . where wallpaper was used as newsprint, mule steak was a delicacy and proud families stayed to see a rebirth of the South, after the great war.

Today, where Stonewall Jackson Prewett once fought to prevent Grant from entering the city, another Prewett—Dr. James Prewett Guerriero, his grandson — fights to save lives, as resident physician at Mercy Hospital.



VIEWS CIVIL WAR PAPER—John S. Daniel, descendant of Vicksburg Cavalry officer of the Civil War, looks at "Wallpaper newspaper" printed on July 4, 1863—the day the city surrendered to Grant. Teachers Will Introduce Tax

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A Louisiana Teacher Assn. spokesman said today teachers will sponsor their own two-cent raise in the natural gas gathering tax, despite Rep. Ben Holt's plans for a similar step.

This means a second tax bill dealing with the key issue in the 1958 Legislature will be offered.

Holt, handsome, young Rapides Parish legislator and one of Gov. Earl Long's floor leaders, already has made public his two-part tax deal.

He caught a verbal scorching from fellow members of the Governor's Budget Committee when he announced it a few weeks ago. The administration insists if won't sponsor any taxes.

Since then, Holt has carefully reminded his tax program is all his own idea.

The LTA spokesman, however, said teachers definitely will have their own bill, which will call for the extra revenues to be dedicated to teachers pay.

Holt's bill, quite a bit different, would do this: It would provide a constitutional amendment letting the public vote on the tax issue next November, and a separate legislative act increasing the tax only for two years ending in 1960.

But the Holt proposal, as he originally outlined it, would allocate from the estimated 35 million dollars extra tax revenue only the amount needed to assure teachers they can look forward in the upcoming fiscal year to the same salary level they now have. Any balance would be turned over to other state use. It has been estimated 29 million will be required to keep the teachers where they are now.

The LTA bill, instead, seeks the full tax revenue dedicated to teachers. The LTA since 1956 has been bidding for a permanent tax source dedicated to teachers.

The '56 Legislature voted teachers a higher salary schedule, but then dodged a vote on the money. Since then, the Long administration has given teachers 50 per cent of their authorized pay raise, digging into surplus funds to do it.

Long's Budget Committee says it has no money to keep doing that—the Legislature will have to act.

The LTA already has commended Rep. Holt for his tax efforts on behalf of teachers. But the LTA leaders and Holt have not sat down together and gone over their plans. They may do that next week.

Holt conferred with Gov. Long this week, and hten had new comments about his tax package. But he denied discussing his program with the governor.

Louisiana mayors, through the Louisiana Municipal Assn., are seeking their own tax increase, a 40-cents-per-gallon boost in the whisky levy.

How do the mayors feel about th teacher bid? Mayor B. A. Vetter of Donaldsonville, LMA legislative chairman, put it this way:

"We certainly have no conflict with the teachers. We believe we are both entitled to our proposed tax benefits."

The LMA has taken no stand on the teacher tax plan, Vetter added.

Against these new developments, the fresh words of a utility executive could serve as a warning to the Legislature in this state where an industrial boom has held back the heavier touches of the national recession.

H. C. Leonard, vice president of Gulf States Utilities, which is building a new multi-million-dollar power station near here, said yesterday:

"The station will generate three times as much power per unit of fuel as did the old government street station. Natural gas will be used for fuel, and at full load consumption will amount to 40 million cubic feet a day.

Brooks Blasts Defense

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La) today accused the Pentagon of an attempt to deactivate the 39th National Guard division as punishment for its part in the Little Rock integration crisis.

Brooks, chairman of the House Armed Forces Subcommittee on reserve activities, said the attempt came to his attention today. He said it was part of a proposed National Guard reorganization.

"I am surprised to get this information," Brooks said. "evidently the master minds of the Pentagon remember the events leading up to the occupation of Little Rock and they are displeased over the fact that Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas used some of these troops in support of the doctrine of state sovereignty and found them all in sympathy with that doctrine."

The Shreveport congressman questioned:

"Is this to be punishment to the troops of these two states?"

The proposed National Guard reorganization would abolish six divisions.

The 39th division is made up of men in Louisiana and Arkansas. It includes the 199th Infantry Regiment with headquarters in Shreveport and most National Guard units in Louisiana and Arkansas. Some Air National Guard units and other "casuals" are not included.

Elements of the 39th were called up last September by Gov. Faubus when he said a riot would take place at the opening of Central High School in Little Rock upon first admission of Negroes.

The guardsmen, under command of Faubus, prohibited the Negro children from entering the school. President Eisenhower federalized the units, taking them from the governor's command.

Federal paratroopers were sent later to the Little Rock school. When the paratroopers withdrew, units of the still federalized 39th Division were placed on duty at the school.

Some of the 39th division men remain on duty at the school until May 29, the day after Central High closes for the summer.

Brooks said he would oppose the plan to deactivate the division.

When his subcommittee held hearings on the proposed reorganization, he said, it was agreed that any plan the Pentagon might come up with would be submitted to the governors of the states.

A governora' meeting will be held in Florida within a week, Brooks said, and the Pentagon's guard reorganization plan would be submitted to them at the time.

Gen. George Trousdale of Monroe, commander of the 39th Division, was at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., on special duty and could not be reached for comment.

TOOLS FOUND

Search Narrows For lst Human

By ADRIAN S. HAGEN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Who was the first human?

A little heap of 58 stones, chipped more than 500,000 years ago, has narrowed the search for man's earliest ancestor.

They were unearthed in mid-1957 by Dr. John Talbot Robinson of the Transvall Museum.

The stones, actually primitive implements, took almost a year to remove from their rock covering at Sterkfontein Caves, an area rich in prehistoric deposits. The caves are near the town of Krugersdorp, which is about 40 miles from Johannesburg.

Right now Dr. Robinson is studying the implements and the problem of how they fit into the picture of man's evolution. Helping him are other archeologists and Prof. Ronald A. Dart, a well known anthropologist.

Dr. Robinson's stone age tools were found together with fossil remains of the Australopithecus, a creature hitherto believed to have been a subhuman ape man incapable of any such industry.

Remains of the ape man have been unearthed previously at Sterkfontein but this was the first time evidence of a Lithic stone age culture had been found in the creature's rocky grave.

If toolmaking is the dividing line between beast and man, then the small - brained ape man who walked erect and had teeth like modern man, must have been the first human.

But Dr. Robinson's find has produced two schools of thought. Some scientists now believe that through the evidence of toolmaking, the ape man was the first human and from him large - brained humans rapidly emerged.

Others say that the ape man with his small brain could not have made the implements. They believe other toolmakers penetrated Africa when the Australophithecus was on the decline. They left no physical remains although their tools survived.

Dr. Robinson himself is reluctant to credit the shaggy ape man with human characteristics.

D. B. Malan, head of the government's archaeological survey department, disagrees.

But whatever line of thought, all agree that Dr. Robinson's find brings them closer than ever before to man's common ancestor. The discovery, says Malan, throws light on the controversial borderline problems of the first culture of man.

Dr. Robinson says his discovery has cast a much brighter light on the vague transition stage between animal and man. He adds that the evidence at present is sketchy and more is urgently needed to shed further light on the manufacturer of the 58 stone implements.

U.S. Life Is Different Because 'Things Work'

By LAWRANCE F. STUNTZ

NEW YORK (AP) — I suppose Rip Van Winkle felt something like I did.

Rip slept for 20 years. I was away for 16. We both had surprises due.

To tell the truth, I was a little afraid of coming back. But the kids were growing up and it was time they had some American schooling.

That's why I left the Associated Press' foreign service and came home after 16 years in Latin America.

My first discovery was that life in the United States — if you speak English — is easier than anywhere in the world.

Things work. Public utilities get turned on promptly. You can buy anything you can afford. People do what they say they will when they say they will.

On the other hand, the U. S. is getting more like Latin America in some ways. Take the simple matter of getting a hat cleaned in New York City.

Lots of shoe repair shops display hat cleaning signs. But it doesn't mean a thing. "We don't do that kind of work any more," they tell you.

I finally wound up in a side street hat store. They did the job. But it took a week. In Mexico, they do it in two days.

American department stores are just too big for a simple provincial from south of the border. It takes too long to find what you want to buy.

But it is rather a relief after not being able to find it at all in the biggest store in Rio de Janeiro.

The food stores are wonderful. You can get anything you want all the year 'round.

Latin America exports its best bananas to the United States. I didn't have a really good one for 16 years.

Same with coffee. The best of the crop is exported. Even the growers drink second-rate stuff.

The vending machines everywhere were a surprise. I'll bet I could live for weeks on what I could get out of a machine. I'm getting callouses on my thumb from feeding in the quarters.

One of my nicest surprises, believe it or not, was the income tax.

For one thing, it's not as big as I had judged from the moans of my U. S. - dwelling friends. For another thing, you get so much for your tax money.

For example:

My income tax is less than I had to pay for schools for my children in Brazil, my last post abroad.

For that, I get water I can drink right from the faucet. No filtering and boiling first.

I get honest policemen who don't come around once a week or month for their "tips." I get wonderful free lending libraries. I get the schools.

And I get pretty reliable weather reports, fairly clean streets and a system of public transportation that usually works.

Furthermore, my tax bill gives me a license to complain. The average American living abroad has to keep his mouth shut about things. After all, it's not his country.

I must say, though, that the railroads here seem to have fallen apart. Trains are mostly dirty and frequently late. On the other hand, buses are bigger, cleaner and faster.

American attitudes proved to be not what I expected.

There doesn't seem to be any war psychosis. Nobody seems to think that he, personally, is in any danger from The Bomb.

Right now, everybody is talking about the recession. To a veteran of the 1933 bank holiday, things ought to be pretty worrisome.

But I don't know anybody who is saving money to be ready for a real depression. And there are still more classified ads offering jobs than there are houses for sale.

I haven't made up my mind about television. I still get along with the old-fashioned radio.

And the rock 'n' roll doesn't bother me a bit. It couldn't. Not after years of Mexico's cha cha cha, Rio's Samba and the Argentine gato.

COOL CLEAR WATER: What's it like to come home after many years abroad? Mostly it's small things that are taken for granted by most Americans—like drinking water right from the tap. Associated Press Reporter Laurance F. Stuntz, recently returned after 16 years in Latin America, and his children, Cita, 14, and Stephen, 12, try it in the kitchen of their Pelham, N.Y., home.

Story Of Mothers Day Tragic For Originator

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mothers Day goes back half a century. But behind the joyous occasion we celebrate today is the story of a devoted daughter who died embittered because her motivating idea became commercial. Here's the history.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

On a bright Sunday 50 years ago the sermons of almost every Philadelphia church concerned a single subject: Motherhood.

It was the first formal, organized observance of Mothers Day, held on May 10, 1908. It has now grown into an important holiday, proclaimed annually by the president of the United States. It is an institution in more than 40 other countries as well.

Mothers Day is entirely the idea of a militant, sharp-tongued and sentimental spinster of 44, Anna M. Jarvis. Grieving extravagantly over the death of her own mother three years before, she was determined to establish a national holiday honoring the nation's mothers — particularly her own.

Paradoxically, the popular success of the idea turned Anna Jarvis into a bitter, eccentric recluse.

In the half century since Mothers Day was first observed by a few churches, it has grown into a holiday which the National Retail Merchants Assn. calls a "powerful sales - producing event ranking second only to Christmas."

The National Committee on the Observance of Mothers Day estimates that when the books are closed on Sunday's observance, it will have produced more than 875 million dollars in gift sales, with 55 million families spending an average of $16 each honoring mothers, grandmothers and mothers-in-law.

To Anna Jarvis, however, the nation's merchants turned Mothers Day into a bonanza, and she spent her own modest fortune trying to keep the day within the religious and idealistic bounds which she had set for it. As a result, when she died in 1948, she had been living on the charity of acquaintances in a sanitarium outside Philadelphia. She was 84, deaf, blind — and convinced her crusade was a failure.

Perhaps the germ of the idea came from Anna Jarvis' mother. When the family lived in West Virginia at the end of the Civil War, Mrs. Jarvis was distressed at the way the conflict had split families. She organized a "Mothers' Friendly Day," inviting both Union and Confederate veterans to gather with their families in ceremonies in Pruntyville in an effort to heal the scars.

Beginnings of the modern Mothers day followed Mrs. Jarvis' death in Philadelphia in 1905. On May 9, 1907 — the second anniversary of her mother's death — Anna held memorial services in her own home. Then this devoted daughter was off on a single-minded, lifelong crusade for a national and international holiday.

She was a born crusader and, before she found the ideal cause, had campaigned for suffrage, temperance and had done some welfare work. But her new idea obsessed her to the exclusion of all else.

The first few years were happy, and success was easy beyond her dreams. She wrote to and buttonholed a legion—clergymen, officials, politicians, congressmen, educators, editors and even the White House. Within a year, Philadelphia's churches had fallen into line. Soon governors of various states were agreeing to an annual observance. Then Congress approved the idea of an annual Mothers Day — on the second Sunday in May, Miss Jarvis' choice of a date. In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the first official Mothers Day.

For a while, Anna was in control. She chose the official floral emblem, the carnation. It was her mother's favorite flower. Typically, however, she ignored the fact that carnations bloom outdoors in late summer, and was furious when, in the face of demand, florists raised the price of the greenhouse forced flowers early in the year.

She ignored carnations then, and turned to celluloid badges, paying for them herself and distributing them to schools and churches.

Resolutely turning away from the fact that the public enjoyed giving gifts on Mothers Day, Miss Jarvis began to fight commercialization, and tried to take on the jewelers, the florists, the confectioners and the greeting card people who, she felt, were sullying her project.

She incorporated herself as "The Mothers Day International Assn." although no one could ever find another member, she always spoke thereafter of "we" and firmly staked out the second Sunday in May as the association's own day.

In 1923 New York's Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Sen. Royal S. Copeland and others planned a big Mothers Day celebration. Miss Jarvis, sensing some merchants' interest in the project, threatened to bring suit on a claimed violation of her copyright. The New Yorkers called the whole thing off.

A few years later, she tangled with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who had become associated with another mothers' organization which Miss Jarvis considered a rival.

Once she turned her guns on adult children who, she found, were sending cards to their mothers on Mothers Day. Anna felt they should write letters.

When she started on her crusade, she had a clerk's job with a Philadelphia insurance company. Soon she gave this up, and devoted her life to Mothers Day and to caring for a younger sister, Elsinore, who was blind. Soon the family home overflowed with her correspondence, and she bought the house next door to hold her files. One way or another, the small inheritance from her family was dissipated.

As Mothers Day became bigger and more important, Miss Jarvis' disappointment grew. Gradually she retreated from the world. She rarely left her home, her telephone number was unlisted. Her principal interests were her blind sister and tending her mother's grave.

Elsinore died in 1944, and shortly afterwards it was found that Anna Jarvis herself was in desperate straits — blind, deaf and penniless. Acquaintances raised some money and had her moved to a sanitarium. She died on Nov. 24, 1948.

Mothers Day now is bigger than ever. It's ironic that Anna Jarvis, responsible for it all, died without sympathy for the whole affair.

Vicksburg's Dark Hours Recorded On Wallpaper

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

July 4, 1863 . . . the Stars and Bars flag is hauled down —and in its place, the Union flag is hoisted over Vicksburg . . . as General U. S. Grant and his army triumphantly march into the city on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River.

On this day, the final edition of "The Daily Citizen" newspaper is printed — on wallpaper.

Today, a Monroe resident, John Steven Daniel, owns several of the papers printed on that last day of the war . . . last as far as Vicksburg was concerned.

The museum pieces, originally bought by his grandparents who lived in Vicksburg at the time of the siege, are a passport into the past, and as you read them, time spins backward at a whirlwind pace . . .

It is July 2, 1863. Vicksburg is surrounded by the Union Blockade — no one can get in or out of the garrison.

General Pemberton is in charge of the 29,000 holding the city against the enemy. Outside, Grant waits impatiently, vowing that he will dine in Vicksburg on Saturday, July 4. General Joseph E. Johnston is in supreme command of this area of the Confederate Army; General Pemberton failed to obey his command — to attack Grant outside the city — until it was too late.

Now, after 22 months of planning and three unsuccessful campaigns, the Union finally has nearly achieved its goal — capture of Vicksburg. Tonight, Grant thinks of what this capture could mean—cutting the Confederacy in half and reopening of the Mississippi for commerce.

Events Of Day

"The Daily Citizen," published on wallpaper after newsprint ran out, lists the events of the past few days.

"Grant's forces did a little firing on Tuesday afternoon, but the balance of that day was comparatively quiet. Yesterday morning, they were very still, and continued so until early in the afternoon, when they opened fire along the line for some distance. We have not been able to ascertain anything definitely as to our loss, but as our officers were on the lookout for this move of the enemy, the expectations of the Yankees were not realized by a great deal."

Forty times this amount of news — 60 inches of handset type, slightly smaller than the printing in newspapers of 1958 — was printed on one side of a piece of wallpaper 16 inches long and 10 inches wide.

"Again we have reliable news from the gallant corps of Gen. Lee in Virginia. Elated with success, encouraged by a series of brilliant victories, marching to and crossing the Rappahannock, defeating Hooker's right wing and thence through the Shenandoah Valley" . . . the paper continues with news of Lee's past victories.

"The great Ulysses — the Yankee Generalissimo, surnamed Grant — has expressed his intention of dining in Vicksburg on Saturday next, and celebrating the 4th of July by a grand dinner and so forth. When asked if he would invite Gen. Joe Johnston to join, he said, "No, I fear there will be a row at the table." Ulysses must get into the city before he dines in it. The way to cook a rabbit is first to catch the rabbit, etc.," J. M. Swords, proprietor of the paper, laughed loudly as he wrote the jibe against Grant. No Yankee will ever capture this city, the newspaperman thought.

Food Scarce

Food is scarce. Soldiers "prowl around, day and night" and take fruit, vegetables and chickens from Vicksburg residents . . . leaving the people with nothing to eat, except . . . mules and cats.

"We are indebted to W. J. Gillespie for a steak of Confederate beef alias meat," Swords writes, adding "We have tried it, and can assure your friends that if it is rendered necessary, they need have no scruples at eating the meat. It is sweet, savory and tender, and so long as we have a mule left we are satisfied our soldiers will be content to subsist on it."

Later, in the fourth column of the one-page paper, the editor warns cats to watch out for a similar fate.

"Victimized — We learned of an instance wherein a 'knight of the quill' and a 'disciple of the black art,' with malice in their hearts and vengeance in their eyes ruthlessly put a period to the existence of a venerable feline that has for time, not within the recollection of the 'oldest inhabitant,' faithfully discharged the duties to be expected of him to the terror of sundry vermin in his neighborhood. Poor, defunct Thomas was then prepared, not for the grave, but the pot, and several friends invited to partake of a nice rabbit.

"As a matter of course, no one would wound the feelings of another, especially in these times, by refusing a cordial invitation to dinner, and the guests assisted in consuming the poor animal with a relish that did honor to their epicurean taste. The 'sold' assure us the meat was delicious and that pussy must look out for her safety."

Death At Hand

All was not weird meals. Death also stood beside each person, not caring if the person was man or woman, young or old, Yankee or Southern.

The paper tells of a Mrs. Cisco who was killed instantly on the Jackson road. Her husband was serving in Moody's artillery in Virginia.

Jerre Askew, an artillery man and "one of our most esteemed merchant - citizens" was wounded and died. "Lt. Col. Griffin, commanding the 31st Louisiana regiment, was killed on Saturday. He was a popular and efficient officer."

Outside Vicksburg, "The Yanks outside our city are considerably on the sick list. Fever, dysentry and disgust are their companions and Grant is their master. The boys are deserting daily and are crossing the river in the region of Warren, and cussing Grant and the abolitionists generally," the paper states, as interested citizens gain hope from these lines.

A note of humor about trouble among the Yankee generals creeps in. "The Federal General McClelland, until recently outside the rear of our city has been superceded. He and Grant could not run in the same harness. He was for splurging and Grant for gassing, both got the loggerheads. So poor Mc had to leave, and Grant has all his own way."

The paper blasts a black-market underway in the starving city. Hoarders who were able to buy up food before the city was blockaded are now selling flour at $5 a pound, molasses at $10 a gallon and corn for $10 a bushel.

Yet a Mr. F. Kiser, "having more corn than he thought necessary to last him during the siege of this place, portioned off what would do him for the brief interval that would elapse before the arrival of succor to our garrison, and since that time has relieved the wants of many families free of charge."

Federal Intelligence

Editor Swords includes in the news some Federal Intelligence, copied from the Memphis Bulletin of June 25. Pointing out that the former editors of the Bulletin "being rather pro - southern men, were arrested for speaking the truth when truth was unwelcome to Yankeedom, and placed in the chain gang working at Warrenton, where they now are."

Feeling that an accurate description of the Bulletin's new editor was necessary, Swords wrote he was a "pink-nosed slab - sided, toad-eating Yankee, who is a lineal descendant of Judas Iscariot and a brother germain of the greatest Puritanical, sycophantic, howling scoundrel unhung — Parson Brownlow. Yet with such a charactor," Swords continues, "this paper cannot cloak the fact that Gen. Robt. E. Lee has given Hooker, Milroy & Co. one of the best and soundest whippings on record, and that the 'galorious Union' is now exceedingly weak in the knees."

Two days later, on Saturday, July 4, the same paper is reprinted . . . with a NOTE at the bottom of the page.

Inhabitants of the city, reading the paper, finally see in print what they have mourned for several hours. The NOTE reads:

"Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. General Grant has 'caught the rabbit, and did bring his dinner with him. The 'Citizen' lives to see it. For the last time it appears on 'wall-paper.' No more will it eulogize the luxury of mule-meat and fricassed kitten—urge Southern warriors to each diet nevermore This is the last wall paper edition and excepting this note from the types as we found them, it will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity."

A cavalry man who had helped in the defense of the city, Stonewall Jackson Prewett and his wife Margaret read the paper in their large, white colonial - type home on Cherry street.

Trembles

Prewett, also an official in the city government, trembles with indignation as he rereads the NOTE. His wife, with tears in her eyes, carefully places several pieces of the wallpaper newspaper in a large cloth and lays it in a trunk — preserving the last paper printed while Vicksburg was a member of the Confederate States of America.

The previous day, Lee surrendered. Vicksburg does not know of it. The day is bitter enough, without this knowledge.

Days slowly creep by, then begin to pass speedily. The occupation ends, Vicksburg again is a free city, the hourglass of time is turned faster and faster, as a good life again seems to make the time pass in whirlwind fashion.

In their wooden colonial house, the Prewett family grows. Three girls, Jane Alice, Marguerite and Eulalie Marie, are born.

Prewett continues in his wholesale grocery business . . . the youngsters grow up . . . and Jane is courted by John Steven Daniel — a railroad man who is conductor and yardmaster for the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific Railway.

In old St. Paul's Cathedral in Vicksburg Jane and John are married . . . and she goes to live in Gibsland, his hometown.

Later, the Daniels move to Monroe, and buy a home at 400 Washington Street Mrs. Daniel brings with her, in an old wardrobe trunk, 12 wallpaper papers, printed on July 4, 1863.

The Prewetts also move to Monroe. Then, when the Daniel's son is five-years-old, Mrs. Daniel dies . . . leaving the priceless final editions of the paper for her son to discover.

"I knew about them since I was 12-years-old," John S. Daniel recalls today. "I've given several copies away — but I still have my grandfather's sword," revealed the Civil Service examiner of the Monroe Post Office.

Vicksburg on the bluffs . . . overlooking the king river, the Mississippi, settled by French and Spanish, named for a Methodist minister, scene of one of the greatest battles of all history . . . where wallpaper was used as newsprint, mule steak was a delicacy and proud families stayed to see a rebirth of the South, after the great war.

Today, where Stonewall Jackson Prewett once fought to prevent Grant from entering the city, another Prewett—Dr. James Prewett Guerriero, his grandson — fights to save lives, as resident physician at Mercy Hospital.

Teachers Will Introduce Tax

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A Louisiana Teacher Assn. spokesman said today teachers will sponsor their own two-cent raise in the natural gas gathering tax, despite Rep. Ben Holt's plans for a similar step.

This means a second tax bill dealing with the key issue in the 1958 Legislature will be offered.

Holt, handsome, young Rapides Parish legislator and one of Gov. Earl Long's floor leaders, already has made public his two-part tax deal.

He caught a verbal scorching from fellow members of the Governor's Budget Committee when he announced it a few weeks ago. The administration insists if won't sponsor any taxes.

Since then, Holt has carefully reminded his tax program is all his own idea.

The LTA spokesman, however, said teachers definitely will have their own bill, which will call for the extra revenues to be dedicated to teachers pay.

Holt's bill, quite a bit different, would do this: It would provide a constitutional amendment letting the public vote on the tax issue next November, and a separate legislative act increasing the tax only for two years ending in 1960.

But the Holt proposal, as he originally outlined it, would allocate from the estimated 35 million dollars extra tax revenue only the amount needed to assure teachers they can look forward in the upcoming fiscal year to the same salary level they now have. Any balance would be turned over to other state use. It has been estimated 29 million will be required to keep the teachers where they are now.

The LTA bill, instead, seeks the full tax revenue dedicated to teachers. The LTA since 1956 has been bidding for a permanent tax source dedicated to teachers.

The '56 Legislature voted teachers a higher salary schedule, but then dodged a vote on the money. Since then, the Long administration has given teachers 50 per cent of their authorized pay raise, digging into surplus funds to do it.

Long's Budget Committee says it has no money to keep doing that—the Legislature will have to act.

The LTA already has commended Rep. Holt for his tax efforts on behalf of teachers. But the LTA leaders and Holt have not sat down together and gone over their plans. They may do that next week.

Holt conferred with Gov. Long this week, and hten had new comments about his tax package. But he denied discussing his program with the governor.

Louisiana mayors, through the Louisiana Municipal Assn., are seeking their own tax increase, a 40-cents-per-gallon boost in the whisky levy.

How do the mayors feel about th teacher bid? Mayor B. A. Vetter of Donaldsonville, LMA legislative chairman, put it this way:

"We certainly have no conflict with the teachers. We believe we are both entitled to our proposed tax benefits."

The LMA has taken no stand on the teacher tax plan, Vetter added.

Against these new developments, the fresh words of a utility executive could serve as a warning to the Legislature in this state where an industrial boom has held back the heavier touches of the national recession.

H. C. Leonard, vice president of Gulf States Utilities, which is building a new multi-million-dollar power station near here, said yesterday:

"The station will generate three times as much power per unit of fuel as did the old government street station. Natural gas will be used for fuel, and at full load consumption will amount to 40 million cubic feet a day.

TOOLS FOUND

Search Narrows For Ist Human

By ADRIAN S. HAGEN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Who was the first human?

A little heap of 58 stones, chipped more than 500,000 years ago, has narrowed the search for man's earliest ancestor.

They were unearthed in mid-1957 by Dr. John Talbot Robinson of the Transvall Museum.

The stones, actually primitive implements, took almost a year to remove from their rock covering at Sterkfontein Caves, an area rich in prehistoric deposits. The caves are near the town of Krugersdorp, which is about 40 miles from Johannesburg.

Right now Dr. Robinson is studying the implements and the problem of how they fit into the picture of man's evolution. Helping him are other archeologists and Prof. Ronald A. Dart, a well known anthropologist.

Dr. Robinson's stone age tools were found together with fossil remains of the Australopithecus, a creature hitherto believed to have been a subhuman ape man incapable of any such industry.

Remains of the ape man have been unearthed previously at Sterkfontein but this was the first time evidence of a Lithic stone age culture had been found in the creature's rocky grave.

If toolmaking is the dividing line between beast and man, then the small - brained ape man who walked erect and had teeth like modern man, must have been the first human.

But Dr. Robinson's find has produced two schools of thought. Some scientists now believe that through the evidence of toolmaking, the ape man was the first human and from him large - brained humans rapidly emerged.

Others say that the ape man with his small brain could not have made the implements. They believe other toolmakers penetrated Africa when the Australophithecus was on the decline. They left no physical remains although their tools survived.

Dr. Robinson himself is reluctant to credit the shaggy ape man with human characteristics.

D. B. Malan, head of the government's archaeological survey department, disagrees.

But whatever line of thought, all agree that Dr. Robinson's find brings them closer than ever before to man's common ancestor. The discovery, says Malan, throws light on the controversial borderline problems of the first culture of man.

Dr. Robinson says his discovery has cast a much brighter light on the vague transition stage between animal and man. He adds that the evidence at present is sketchy and more is urgently needed to shed further light on the manufacturer of the 58 stone implements.

Brooks Blasts Defense

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La) today accused the Pentagon of an attempt to deactivate the 39th National Guard division as punishment for its part in the Little Rock integration crisis.

Brooks, chairman of the House Armed Forces Subcommittee on reserve activities, said the attempt came to his attention today. He said it was part of a proposed National Guard reorganization.

"I am surprised to get this information," Brooks said, "evidently the master minds of the Pentagon remember the events leading up to the occupation of Little Rock and they are displeased over the fact that Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas used some of these troops in support of the doctrine of state sovereignty and found them all in sympathy with that doctrine."

The Shreveport congressman questioned:

"Is this to be punishment to the troops of these two states?"

The proposed National Guard reorganization would abolish six divisions.

The 39th division is made up of men in Louisiana and Arkansas. It includes the 199th Infantry Regiment with headquarters in Shreveport and most National Guard units in Louisiana and Arkansas. Some Air National Guard units and other "casuals" are not included.

Elements of the 39th were called up last September by Gov. Faubus when he said a riot would take place at the opening of Central High School in Little Rock upon first admission of Negroes.

The guardsmen, under command of Faubus, prohibited the Negro children from entering the school. President Eisenhower federalized the units, taking them from the governor's command.

Federal paratroopers were sent later to the Little Rock school. When the paratroopers withdrew, units of the still federalized 39th Division were placed on duty at the school.

Some of the 39th division men remain on duty at the school until May 29, the day after Central High closes for the summer.

Brooks said he would oppose the plan to deactivate the division.

When his subcommittee held hearings on the proposed reorganization, he said, it was agreed that any plan the Pentagon might come up with would be submitted to the governors of the states.

A governors' meeting will be held in Florida within a week, Brooks said, and the Pentagon's guard reorganization plan would be submitted to them at the time.

Gen. George Trousdale of Monroe, commander of the 39th Division, was at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., on special duty and could not be reached for comment.

U.S. Life Is Different Because 'Things Work'

By LAWRANCE F. STUNTZ

NEW YORK (AP) — I suppose Rip Van Winkle felt something like I did.

Rip slept for 20 years. I was away for 16. We both had surprises due.

To tell the truth, I was a little afraid of coming back. But the kids were growing up and it was time they had some American schooling.

That's why I left the Associated Press' foreign service and came home after 16 years in Latin America.

My first discovery was that life in the United States — if you speak English — is easier than anywhere in the world.

Things work. Public utilities get turned on promptly. You can buy anything you can afford. People do what they say they will when they say they will.

On the other hand, the U. S. is getting more like Latin America in some ways. Take the simple matter of getting a hat cleaned in New York City.

Lots of shoe repair shops display hat cleaning signs. But it doesn't mean a thing. "We don't do that kind of work any more," they tell you.

I finally wound up in a side street hat store. They did the job. But it took a week. In Mexico, they do it in two days.

American department stores are just too big for a simple provincial from south of the border. It takes too long to find what you want to buy.

But it is rather a relief after not being able to find it at all in the biggest store in Rio de Janeiro.

The food stores are wonderful. You can get anything you want all the year 'round.

Latin America exports its best bananas to the United States. I didn't have a really good one for 16 years.

Same with coffee. The best of the crop is exported. Even the growers drink second-rate stuff.

The vending machines everywhere were a surprise. I'll bet I could live for weeks on what I could get out of a machine. I'm getting callouses on my thumb from feeding in the quarters.

One of my nicest surprises, believe it or not, was the income tax.

For one thing, it's not as big as I had judged from the moans of my U. S. - dwelling friends. For another thing, you get so much for your tax money.

For example:

My income tax is less than I had to pay for schools for my children in Brazil, my last post abroad.

For that, I get water I can drink right from the faucet. No filtering and boiling first.

I get honest policemen who don't come around once a week or month for their "tips." I get wonderful free lending libraries. I get the schools.

And I get pretty reliable weather reports, fairly clean streets and a system of public transportation that usually works.

Furthermore, my tax bill gives me a license to complain. The average American living abroad has to keep his mouth shut about things. After all, it's not his country.

I must say, though, that the railroads here seem to have fallen apart. Trains are mostly dirty and frequently late. On the other hand, buses are bigger, cleaner and faster.

American attitudes proved to be not what I expected.

There doesn't seem to be any war psychosis. Nobody seems to think that he, personally, is in any danger from The Bomb.

Right now, everybody is talking about the recession. To a veteran of the 1933 bank holiday, things ought to be pretty worrisome.

But I don't know anybody who is saving money to be ready for a real depression. And there are still more classified ads offering jobs than there are houses for sale.

I haven't made up my mind about television. I still get along with the old-fashioned radio.

And the rock 'n' roll doesn't bother me a bit. It couldn't. Not after years of Mexico's cha cha cha, Rio's Samba and the Argentine gato.

COOL CLEAR WATER: What's it like to come home after many years abroad? Mostly it's small things that are taken for granted by most Americans—like drinking water right from the tap. Associated Press Reporter Laurance F. Stuntz, recently returned after 16 years in Latin America, and his children, Cita, 14, and Stephen, 12, try it in the kitchen of their Pelham, N.Y., home.

Story Of Mothers Day Tragic For Originator

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mothers Day goes back half a century. But behind the joyous occasion we celebrate today is the story of a devoted daughter who died embittered because her motivating idea became commercial. Here's the history.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

On a bright Sunday 50 years ago the sermons of almost every Philadelphia church concerned a single subject: Motherhood.

It was the first formal, organized observance of Mothers Day, held on May 10, 1908. It has now grown into an important holiday, proclaimed annually by the president of the United States. It is an institution in more than 40 other countries as well.

Mothers Day is entirely the idea of a militant, sharp-tongued and sentimental spinster of 44, Anna M. Jarvis. Grieving extravagantly over the death of her own mother three years before, she was determined to establish a national holiday honoring the nation's mothers — particularly her own.

Paradoxically, the popular success of the idea turned Anna Jarvis into a bitter, eccentric recluse.

In the half century since Mothers Day was first observed by a few churches, it has grown into a holiday which the National Retail Merchants Assn. calls a "powerful sales - producing event ranking second only to Christmas."

The National Committee on the Observance of Mothers Day estimates that when the books are closed on Sunday's observance, it will have produced more than 875 million dollars in gift sales, with 55 million families spending an average of $16 each honoring mothers, grandmothers and mothers-in-law.

To Anna Jarvis, however, the nation's merchants turned Mothers Day into a bonanza, and she spent her own modest fortune trying to keep the day within the religious and idealistic bounds which she had set for it. As a result, when she died in 1948, she had been living on the charity of acquaintances in a sanitarium outside Philadelphia. She was 84, deaf, blind — and convinced her crusade was a failure.

Perhaps the germ of the idea came from Anna Jarvis' mother. When the family lived in West Virginia at the end of the Civil War, Mrs. Jarvis was distressed at the way the conflict had split families. She organized a "Mothers' Friendly Day," inviting both Union and Confederate veterans to gather with their families in ceremonies in Pruntyville in an effort to heal the scars.

Beginnings of the modern Mothers day followed Mrs. Jarvis' death in Philadelphia in 1905. On May 9, 1907 — the second anniversary of her mother's death — Anna held memorial services in her own home. Then this devoted daughter was off on a single-minded, lifelong crusade for a national and international holiday.

She was a born crusader and, before she found the ideal cause, had campaigned for suffrage, temperance and had done some welfare work. But her new idea obsessed her to the exclusion of all else.

The first few years were happy, and success was easy beyond her dreams. She wrote to and buttonholed a legion—clergymen, officials, politicians, congressmen, educators, editors and even the White House. Within a year, Philadelphia's churches had fallen into line. Soon governors of various states were agreeing to an annual observance. Then Congress approved the idea of an annual Mothers Day — on the second Sunday in May, Miss Jarvis' choice of a date. In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the first official Mothers Day.

For a while, Anna was in control. She chose the official floral emblem, the carnation. It was her mother's favorite flower. Typically, however, she ignored the fact that carnations bloom outdoors in late summer, and was furious when, in the face of demand, florists raised the price of the greenhouse forced flowers early in the year.

She ignored carnations then, and turned to celluloid badges, paying for them herself and distributing them to schools and churches.

Resolutely turning away from the fact that the public enjoyed giving gifts on Mothers Day, Miss Jarvis began to fight commercialization, and tried to take on the jewelers, the florists, the confectioners and the greeting card people who, she felt, were sullying her project.

She incorporated herself as "The Mothers Day International Assn." although no one could ever find another member, she always spoke thereafter of "we" and firmly staked out the second Sunday in May as the association's own day.

In 1923 New York's Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Sen. Royal S. Copeland and others planned a big Mothers Day celebration. Miss Jarvis, sensing some merchants' interest in the project, threatened to bring suit on a claimed violation of her copyright. The New Yorkers called the whole thing off.

A few years later, she tangled with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who had become associated with another mothers' organization which Miss Jarvis considered a rival.

Once she turned her guns on adult children who, she found, were sending cards to their mothers on Mothers Day. Anna felt they should write letters.

When she started on her crusade, she had a clerk's job with a Philadelphia insurance company. Soon she gave this up, and devoted her life to Mothers Day and to caring for a younger sister, Elsinore, who was blind. Soon the family home overflowed with her correspondence, and she bought the house next door to hold her files. One way or another, the small inheritance from her family was dissipated.

As Mothers Day became bigger and more important, Miss Jarvis' disappointment grew. Gradually she retreated from the world. She rarely left her home, her telephone number was unlisted. Her principal interests were her blind sister and tending her mother's grave.

Elsinore died in 1944, and shortly afterwards it was found that Anna Jarvis herself was in desperate straits — blind, deaf and penniless. Acquaintances raised some money and had her moved to a sanitarium. She died on Nov. 24, 1948.

Mothers Day now is bigger than ever. It's ironic that Anna Jarvis, responsible for it all, died without sympathy for the whole affair.

Baptist Church Fire Does Small Damage Here

A minor fire in the Monroe First Baptist Church yesterday did little damage to the newly decorated building.

Firemen from Station No. 1 across from the church on St. John Street were summoned to fight the blaze at 2:40 p.m.

Five squares in the accoustical ceiling, 35 feet above the floor, were smouldering. One of them had worked loose, fallen against an electric light, and caught fire from the heat.

Engine Companies 101, 10 and ladder 1 answered the alarm, and spent one hour at the scene.

Ladders had to be set up in the church and outside on the roof, to enable firemen to get at the fire. They said that very little water was used to extinguish it, and added that if they had sprayed water from the floor, extensive water damage would have resulted.

Negro Child Hurt In Accident Here

A 3 - year - old Negro child received minor injuries yesterday morning, when he stepped in front of a car while playing in Texas Avenue, authorities said.

Darnell Glynn Warren, 64B Roy Drive in the Texas Avenue housing project, walked out in front of a car driven by John A. Danna, 307 South McGuire St., at 10:34 a.m. according to Monroe police, who investigated. They said that Danna was driving slowly at the time, and that no charges were being filed against him.

Steven Poe, who operates a super market on Texas Avenue, took the youngster to St. Francis hospital where X-rays were made and one stitch was taken to close a small cut in his head. The boy was then allowed to return home.

Interest Higher Than Ever Before In Public Schools

ATLANTA (AP)—"There is more interest in education today than at any other time in our history—and educators must make the most of it."

That was part of the summation of a three-day Southern regional conference on "quality education" sponsored by the National Citizens Council for Better Schools.

Douglas MacRae of Atlanta, assistant superintendent of Fulton County schools, reached that conclusion in his summary of reports turned in by the conference work groups.

MacRae said that the outstanding students must be given more recognition.

The conference, which drew some 300 persons from 12 Southern states, wound up Saturday with an explanation of how a state program for better schools can be organized and put into operation. The speakers on the panel were from North Carolina, the most recent among the 40 states which have set up state committees.

Baptist Church Fire Does Small Damage Here

A minor fire in the Monroe First Baptist Church yesterday did little damage to the newly decorated building.

Firemen from Station No. 1 across from the church on St. John Street were summoned to fight the blaze at 2:40 p.m.

Five squares in the accoustical ceiling, 35 feet above the floor, were smouldering. One of them had worked loose, fallen against an electric light, and caught fire from the heat.

Engine Companies 101, 10 and ladder 1 answered the alarm, and spent one hour at the scene.

Ladders had to be set up in the church and outside on the roof, to enable firemen to get at the fire. They said that very little water was used to extinguish it, and added that if they had sprayed water from the floor, extensive water damage would have resulted.

Negro Child Hurt In Accident Here

A 3 - year - old Negro child received minor injuries yesterday morning, when he stepped in front of a car while playing in Texas Avenue, authorities said.

Darnell Glynn Warren, 64B Roy Drive in the Texas Avenue housing project, walked out in front of a car driven by John A. Danna, 307 South McGuire St., at 10:34 a.m. according to Monroe police, who investigated. They said that Danna was driving slowly at the time, and that no charges were being filed against him.

Steven Poe, who operates a super market on Texas Avenue, took the youngster to St. Francis hospital where X-rays were made and one stitch was taken to close a small cut in his head. The boy was then allowed to return home.

SIXTH DAY

Visitors, Awards Highlight Show

Visitors from Natchez, Miss., and various points in Louisiana and South Arkansas turned out yesterday for the sixth day of the Fifth District flower show.

The opening today is set for 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Jim Rhodes won the award of merit for the best cut flower at yesterday's show. She exhibited red amaryllis, with four blooms to the stalk. Mrs. Rhodes is a member of the Home Gardener Club of Monroe.

Tri-Color

Tri-color award for best blue ribbon winner using fresh flowers and foliage went to Mrs. Henry Mayo, Monroe Garden Club. This was in class three buffet arrangement for Mother's Surprise Dinner. Mrs. Mayo selected a black compote for her distinctive open crescent design of magnolia buds and a large bloom in the center.

Award of distinction for driftwood composition designed for dad's den went to Mrs. H. A. Malone, Sun and Sand Garden Club. The design was composed of a twisted grape root in natural tan, set on a tan base. Red carnations and teasel burrs followed the lines of the root. Furled aspidistra leaves were placed at the base. Two cigars and a tan coffee mug completed the composition.

The exhibition of native Louisiana birds and bird houses and feeders was of interest to the public. Among the songsters pictured were the blue bird, mockingbird, chickadee, various woodpeckers, blue jays, orchard orioles and others.

Junior Exhibits

Junior exhibitors were given the special green ribbon award. They were presented to Pamela Sampagnaro, Plum Street School for a lovely pastel arrangement; Diana Mickel, Georgia Tucker School, for a colorful arrangement of florabunda roses and eucalyptus in a cut glass vase; Ronnie Bryant, Plum Street School for red roses and fern in a glass vase, and Jimmy Varnado, Plum Street School for a design with horse-tail rush and dainty bess roses in a round green glass bowl placed on a pink round mat.

In the arrangement section, winners were Class One, Mrs. Herschel Colvin, Dubach; two, Mrs. DeWitt Milam and Mrs. Edward Foster, Monroe Garden Club three, Mrs. Huey Stein Garden Gate, Winnsboro, and honorable mention, Mrs. Vergil Orr, Louisiana Tech Garden Club, Ruston.

Class two winners were Mrs. J. B. Dawkins, Monroe Garden Club. Two, Mrs. C. B. Colvin, Dubach and three, Mrs. R. M. Steere, Louisiana Tech Garden Club.

Class four, design featuring driftwood won Mrs. H. A. Malone first place and award of distinction; two Mrs. Fred Massey, Tallulah Home Gardeners; three, Mrs. Earl Vigg, Ivy Guild, Monroe.

Class five, arrangement for teen-agers bedroom went to one, Mrs. Larry Dage, Sun and Sand Garden Club, Monroe; two, Mrs. Fred Massey, Tallulah Home Gardeners; three, Mrs. Ola Mae Passman, Ivy Guild, Monroe.

Class six, farm and market news, featuring fruit and vegetables won a first for Mrs. Luther Branch, Monroe Garden Club; two, Mrs. Fred Massey Tallulah Home Gardeners, and three Mrs L. R. Richardson, Sun and Sand Garden Club, Monroe.

Exhibits By Judges

Exhibits by nationally accredited judges included Mrs. C. T. Payne of Natchez, who exhibited a vertical arrangement of three trimmed palm branches with two large red amaryllis lillies as a center of interest. The container was a black cylinder.

Mrs. P. A. Colvin, Monroe showed a modern vertical arrangement of yucca flowers and buds. The container was a modern compote with a crystal ball stem and flat saucer of green.

Mrs. Norman Jardine created a tropical design featuring a Balinese head of teakwood. A right angle triangular design was formed with aspidistra leaves burlap covered base. Buds and three open amaryllis blooms in brilliant red followed the line of the carved figure.

Mrs. Lamonte Wright, Ruston, exhibited a dramatic design using a large Oriental scroll base. The line was of gray green century plant with a cluster of bananas following the curved lines. A large green fisherman's float of Blenko glass was used as a center of interest.

Interest Higher Than Ever Before In Public Schools

ATLANTA (AP)—"There is more interest in education today than at any other time in our history—and educators must make the most of it."

That was part of the summation of a three-day Southern regional conference on "quality education" sponsored by the National Citizens Council for Better Schools.

Douglas MacRae of Atlanta, assistant superintendent of Fulton County schools, reached that conclusion in his summary of reports turned in by the conference work groups.

MacRae said that the outstanding students must be given more recognition.

The conference, which drew some 300 persons from 12 Southern states, wound up Saturday with an explanation of how a state program for better schools can be organized and put into operation. The speakers on the panel were from North Carolina, the most recent among the 40 states which have set up state committees.

AUTO INDUSTRY

Resistance To Demands Stiffen

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry Friday stiffened its resistance to Walter P. Reuther's wage demands as negotiations on new labor contracts were recessed for the weekend without any noticeable progress.

The first deadline comes at midnight May 29 when the General Motors contract expires.

Henry Ford II said no automobile company could grant the demands of Reuther's United Automobile Workers and stay in business. He said, "most of the automobile companies are today operating at a loss."

Ford estimated the UAW's wage demands would amount to an increase of 70 cents an hour and would raise the cost of a car more than $300.

General Motors Corp. said it gave the union bargaining team documentation of the company's claim that union demands would come to one billion dollars over a two-year period.

The Eaton Manufacturing Co., an automobile supplier with plants in Michigan and Ohio, asked the UAW to freeze wages and extend present contracts for two years.

American Motors Corp. also has asked the union to freeze wages.

In rebuttal, the UAW said GM and Ford estimates of union wage demands are fantastic and inaccurate and the Eaton company is attempting "to use the current recession to pry hard-won gains away from its employes."

Commenting on Ford's claim that even an increase of a few cents an hour in labor costs would mean an increase in car prices, a union spokesman said, "None of our demands would require a price increase." He said the union has offered to lower its demands if the companies can prove increased wages mean higher prices.

E. S. Patterson, UAW administrative assistant, said GM's analysis of wage costs "deliberately ignores the fact that our demands are a two-part package." Patterson said both the union's basic wage demands and profit sharing proposal are noninflationary and require no price increases.

Good News On Nicotine Is Reported

NEW YORK (UP) — Nicotine users will be delighted to know that rabbits stand up to the stuff extremely well. A rabbit can take six times more of it than a goat before he is paralyzed, and more than twice more before he is killed by it.

This and other charming new facts concerning what nicotine does to animals (other than people) come from scientists at the University of Georgia. Of animals tested, the monkey (man's so-called cousin) was the most sensitive. That is, it took much less to turn up a monkey's toes.

None of this is intended as a preachment against smoking, of course—it is only a collection of facts newly emerged from a science vineyard. Anyway it has been well known for generations that nicotine in sufficient dosages acts as a paralyzer and in higher doses as a killer.

Smokers Escape Reaction

Smokers escape these unpleasant reactions by a body chemistry mechanism called "tachyphylaxis." You take a tiny, nonlethal amount of a poison like nicotine into a chemical system like a man and it produces a kind of immunity against the poisonous effects of later and larger doses.

The facts were by-products of experiments with white-tailed deer. The problem was how to make one stand still long enough to be crated and shipped off to areas where there were no deer but deer were wanted. The georgia scientists—S. D. Feurt, J. H. Jenkins, F. A. Hayes, and H. A. Crockford — developed nicotine-tipped darts.

The idea was to bring a deer down, paralyzed, by shooting a dart into him, but it had to be decided how much nicotine would paralyze the deer for a short time without killing him or without doing him any lasting harm.

Works Like Charm

When this amount was established, the idea worked like a charm and Georgia now has transferred more than 200 deer from areas where there were too many to areas where there were not enough. And the scientists transferred their experiments to other animals.

Reporting to the American Association for the advancement of science, they pointed ou that nicotine works on the nerve groups of the autonomic nervous system. The more complex this system, the less nicotine it takes to produce paralysis or death.

By this scale, the autonomics nervious system of the rabbit is quite simple, and that of the deer, quite complex. No experiments of this sort can be made on people, but they have a nervous system that is easily the most complex of all.

Auto Industry Ends Model Year

DETROIT (AP)—A large segment of the auto industry probably will wind up the 1958 model year earlier than usual.

The model changeover will come earlier for some makers because of the lag in sales. The car makers deny their present models lack appeal but they hope the newer cars will bring increased volume.

The pile-up of new cars in dealers' hands has declined only moderately under heavy production cutbacks. Only American Motors has built more cars this year than in comparable 1957.

Industry analysts say the severe production cuts probably will continue throughout the summer months. They apparently do not look for any great upturn in retail demand to aid in reducing inventories.

AUTO INDUSTRY

Resistance To Demands Stiffen

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry labor contracts were recessed for Friday stiffened its resistance to the weekend without any notice-Walter P. Reuther's wage de-able progress.
mands as negotiations on new The first deadline comes at midnight May 29 when the General Motors contract expires.

Henry Ford II said no automobile company could grant the demands of Reuther's United Automobile Workers and stay in business. He said, "most of the automobile companies are today operating at a loss."

Ford estimated the UAW's wage demands would amount to an increase of 70 cents an hour and would raise the cost of a car more than $300.

General Motors Corp. said it gave the union bargaining team documentation of the company's claim that union demands would come to one billion dollars over a two-year period.

The Eaton Manufacturing Co., an automobile supplier with plants in Michigan and Ohio, asked the UAW to freeze wages and extend present contracts for two years.

American Motors Corp. also has asked the union to freeze wages.

In rebuttal, the UAW said GM and Ford estimates of union wage demands are fantastic and inaccurate and the Eaton company is attempting "to use the current recession to pry hard-won gains away from its employes."

Commenting on Ford's claim that even an increase of a few cents an hour in labor costs would mean an increase in car prices, a union spokesman said, "None of our demands would require a price increase." He said the union has offered to lower its demands if the companies can prove increased wages mean higher prices.

E. S. Patterson, UAW administrative assistant, said GM's analysis of wage costs "deliberately ignores the fact that our demands are a two-part package." Patterson said both the union's basic wage demands and profit sharing proposal are noninflationary and require no price increases.

Good News On Nicotine Is Reported

NEW YORK (UP) — Nicotine users will be delighted to know that rabbits stand up to the stuff extremely well. A rabbit can take six times more of it than a goat before he is paralyzed, and more than twice more before he is killed by it.

This and other charming new facts concerning what nicotine does to animals (other than people) come from scientists at the University of Georgia. Of animals tested, the monkey (man's so-called cousin) was the most sensitive. That is, it took much less to turn up a monkey's toes.

None of this is intended as a preachment against smoking, of course—it is only a collection of facts newly emerged from a science vineyard. Anyway it has been well known for generations that nicotine in sufficient dosages acts as a paralyzer and in higher doses as a killer.

Smokers Escape Reaction

Smokers escape these unpleasant reactions by a body chemistry mechanism called "tachyphylaxis." You take a tiny, nonlethal amount of a poison like nicotine into a chemical system like a man and it produces a kind of immunity against the poisonous effects of later and larger doses.

The facts were by-products of experiments with white-tailed deer. The problem was how to make one stand still long enough to be crated and shipped off to areas where there were no deer but deer were wanted. The georgia scientists—S. D. Feurt, J. H. Jenkins, F. A. Hayes, and H. A. Crockford — developed nicotine-tipped darts.

The idea was to bring a deer down, paralyzed, by shooting a dart into him, but it had to be decided how much nicotine would paralyze the deer for a short time without killing him or without doing him any lasting harm.

Works Like Charm

When this amount was established, the idea worked like a charm and Georgia now has transferred more than 200 deer from areas where there were too many to areas where there were not enough. And the scientists transferred their experiments to other animals.

Reporting to the American Association for the advancement of science, they pointed ou that nicotine works on the nerve groups of the autonomic nervous system. The more complex this system, the less nicotine it takes to produce paralysis or death.

By this scale, the autonomics nervious system of the rabbit is quite simple, and that of the deer, quite complex. No experiments of this sort can be made on people, but they have a nervous system that is easily the most complex of all.
